1970: Tragic Episodes Mark Violent Year

One of the most bizarre and tragic episodes in Marin's history, the kidnapping and slaying of a Superior Court judge, left a mark of violence on the year 1970.

On a quiet August day, Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and their accomplice were killed in a sudden burst of gunfire outside the Hall of Justice.

It ended a daring break for freedom by the convicts, who had kidnapped the judge, Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas and two jurors.

Then, two months later, a superior courtroom was wrecked by a bomb, and the Civic Center placed under tight security, including a search of visitors and night closing.

The year also brought a violence-filled strike by San Francisco Typographical Union 21 against the Independent-Journal — a strike which continues.

There was a Valentine's Day demonstration at the I-J which erupted unto violence, and there were incidents of vandalism, harrassment, punctured tires, and shattered store windows in the wake of the Jan. 7 walkout.

A sentimental favorite, the ferry boat, returned to the scene when the Golden Gate Bridge District started service between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The Sausalito School District was in turmoil most of the year and there was a squabble over leadership of the Community Mental Health Center. Peace marchers and students protested expansion of the war in Southeast Asia, teachers and government employees pushed for higher wages and the word "ecology" was often heard.

A capsule report of the events of 1970, month by month, follows:

JANUARY

Two veteran office holders, State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, after 20 years in the Legislature, and William A. Gnoss of Novato, after 17 years on the board of supervisors, announced they wouldn't seek reelection.

San Francisco Typographical Union 21 went on strike against the Independent-Journal but the newspaper continued publication despite picketing and vandalism.

Waddell F. Smith of San Rafael, whose great-grandfather was one of three founders of the Pony Express, died after a brief illness. He was 70.

A storm-whipped fire destroyed the warehouse and wharf of the A. Paladini fishing station, west of Point Reyes station, causing $300,000 damage.

Marin was soaked by 19 consecutive days of rain, with storms flooding Ross and Granton Park, isolating Bolinas, cutting off the main road to Inverness and causing slides that destroyed three homes.

U.S. Bombers Clobber Convoy On Ho Chi Minh Trail In Laos

2,000 Huge Explosions Held Biggest Success Yet

SAIGON (UPI)— U.S. jet fighters on a strike against a North Vietnamese supply convoy on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos triggered the biggest secondary explosions in five years of Allied bombings there, reliable military sources said today.

The sources said the raid earlier this week produced "well over" 2,000 secondary explosions, indicating that large fuel or ammunition supples were hit. They said it could have been the most successful bombing mission of the Indochina War.

The informants said the secondary explosions were "popping off" for more than three hours.

The White House disclosed last week that the Communists were moving supplies down the Ho Chi Minh Trail at a rate 30 per cent higher in preparation for a new offensive, possibly in Cambodia.

The B52 and fighter-bomber strikes against the trail have been the greatest sustained effort of the war—or any other war—but reports from Laos indicated vast quantities still were getting through.

U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has taken note of the big Communist push down the trail—really a maze of dirt roads hidden from aerial view by dense jungles—and has threatened to bomb supply dumps in North Vietnam if necessary to protect American lives in South Vietnam.

Military sources said an American forward air controller (FAC) spott plane pilot sighted headlights moving down a section of the trail leading into Cambodia and South Vietnam and called in U.S. Air Force jets whose bombs got almost "instant secondaries."

The fighter-bomber attack was part of a three-month nonstop effort to block supplies. B52s have almost stopped bombing targets in South Vietnam so they could halt the flow of arms and permit continuation of the U.S. withdrawal plans.

shortly before the Viet Cong's three-day cease-fire was going into effect at 1 a.m. Thursday (noon EST Wednesday), 17 hours before the Allies begin their own 24-hour New Year's cease-fire.

As was the case at Christmas, the cease-fires do not apply to Laos and Cambodia. And in Phnom Penh the government tightened security precautions today following an unsuccessful bomb attack on a U.S. jeep and two reported assassinations outside the city.

An American spokesman said a small plastic bomb apparently thrown from a Honda caused no damage to the jeep and did not harm a U.S. Army sergeant in the vehicle. The Embassy requested the sergeant's name be withheld and flatly denied Cambodian newspaper reports the bomb was thrown at U.S.

Shoot-Out Cost At $1.25 Million

Marin County's costs stemming from the Aug. 7 shoot-out and the pending trial for Angela Y. Davis and Ruchell Magee were estimated yesterday at $1,250,000.

The figure was disclosed yesterday to the board of supervisors by County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who said that the county may be forced to sue the state for reimbursement.

"I believe the only thing this county can do is to go to court and have a judge decide whether the state is obligated to reimburse us," Maloney said.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell told the supervisors that the shoot-out resulted in costs of about $750,000 in damage suits, insurance and medical expenses.

The security clampdown that followed will cost about $300,000, he said, and overtime pay to beef up security while Miss Davis is in Marin County Jail will result in the total bill of about $1.25 million.

"I think that . . . all of this is related to San Quentin's being located in this county," Maloney said. "So I believe the county should pursue legal remedies."

Thus far state officials have refused to discuss the possibility of the state bearing even a part of the cost, Maloney told the supervisors.

Supervisors asked Maloney to get in touch with the attorney general-elect, Evelle J. Younger, to ask if he would agree to state reimbursement.

Gnoss Hailed For Years Of Service

William A. Gnoss, venerable Marin supervisor, bowed out of county service yesterday amid a shower of accolades.

Gnoss's colleagues on the board of supervisors each commended him for an "exemplary career which may never be equaled" and appointed him Marin County Supervisor Emeritus, a permanent honorary title.

"I've enjoyed my work, and I wouldn't give up what I've done for a million dollars," said Gnoss, referring in particular to his vote that gave the necessary majority to build the Frank Lloyd Wright Civic Center.

"I think this board worked more smoothly than any other board," he added. "I'm happy to resign and also kind of sorry."

Gnoss's wife, Gertrude, and several other members of his family attended his last meeting and listened to several members of the audience praise Gnoss for his dedication, compassion and charity.

Gnoss will be succeeded by Arnold M. Baptiste, who defeated former Novato Mayor J. Wayne Womack in last April's election.

Basques Spared By Gen. Franco

BURGOS, Spain (UPI)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco tonight commuted the death sentences of six Basque Nationalists convicted of murder and banditry, the Ministry of Information announced.

A government source said Franco's action automatically commuted the sentences to 30 years and that the sentences cannot be the subject of an amnesty.

Franco planned to explain his action in a yearend address to the nation tonight. He has been under mounting pressure from European governments and the Vatican to commute the death sentences and faced possible widespread unrest in northern Spain if he did not.

There was immediate reaction from the Vatican which said it heard of the commutation with "enormous relief."

Workers in the industrial north went on strike today to protest the death sentences imposed on six of the defendants convicted of murder and banditry. In Madrid, Franco was deluged with petitions for clemency.

Franco called his cabinet to meet with him this afternoon to consider the situation, the Ministry of Information announced in Madrid.

Several of the condemned men were visited by their parents this morning just before confirmation of the death sentences was announced.

"I saw my son and found him cheerful," said Mrs. Rosario de la Iglesia, mother of chief defendant Francisco Javier Izco de la Iglesias. "I know he will be even more cheerful if no

Reds Propose Saigon Coalition; Bruce Catalogues Rejections

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce appealed to the Communists today to work in 1971 to end the "far-too-long and dreary chronicle" of the war in Vietnam. But again today there was no progress at the Paris talks.

The Communists called on President Nixon to agree to formation of a provisional coalition cabinet in South Vietnam composed of three political factions —an apparent further watering down of their position. But the United States and South Vietnam rejected this because it was tied to demands for complete U.S. troop withdrawal by June 30, 1971.

Bruce said Communist intransigence made a negotiated settlement of the conflict seem "no nearer today than it did a year ago, or even two years ago when these talks commenced." He asked the Viet Cong and Hanois delegations to make the coming year "a year which will be recorded prominently in the annals of peace."

Bruce, in a detailed balance sheet, said Communist olposition has thwarted the following main allied peace moves in 1970.

—A "sweeping offer" for an all-Indochina cease-fire which the Communists refused to "even consider." This, Bruce said, showed that the Communists intended to continue "to use armed force and terror as instruments to achieve your political objectives."

—An offer to negotiate a complete withdrawal of foreign troops from all Indochinese countries has been "summarily rejected" by the Communists who insist on an unilateral U.S. withdrawal.

—Offers to start talks on an over-all political settlement reflecting the wishes of the Vietnamese people have been turned down by the Communists who want to impose a government of their choice on the South.

Swing-Wing Fighter Wiped Out In Landing

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — The F14 swing-wing fighter, successor to the Navy's version of the controversial F111, crashed on its second flight today as it was attempting a landing and was "wiped out," a Grumman Corp. spokesman said.

Test pilots William Miller and Robert Smythe, ejected and parachuted to safety just before the plane crashed on a runway at the Grumman Air field at Calverton, next to the Long Island Expressway.

In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman, Jerry Freidheim, said initial reports indicated the crash was caused by "some sort of hydraulic malfunction."

The F14's first flight, which lasted just 10 minutes, was conducted successfully Dec. 21 and the next day Navy Secretary John H. Chafee christened the plane "the Tomcat."

Grumman got the contract to build the F14 two years ago after the Navy halted its participation in the trouble-plagued F111 program because that plane was unsuitable for aircraft carrier operations, and the first 26 F14s already are on the assembly line at the Grumman plant.

Chafee said the F14 would be an air superiority fighter with greater capability than the esteemed F4 Phantom that now forms the backbone of the U.S. fleet's airpower.

Initial versions of the plane are designed to fly at about 1,400 miles per hour and have a combat radius of up to 300 miles.

But after fewer than 70 of these are produced, the Navy plans an improved model with a new engine that will have a top speed of about 1,650 miles per hour and a combat radius that could go as high as 800 miles.

Appeals Heard For Condemned Jews

MOSCOW (UPI)—Defense attorneys today presented clemency appeals for two Soviet Jews condemned to death in the Leningrad hijack plot and nine others sentenced to prison terms. The court adjourned until Thursday for prosecution rebuttal.

The death sentences imposed on two of the defendants, Mark Dymshits and Eduard Kuznetsov, have aroused a storm of international protest and the court moved with unusual speed to hear the appeals.

Friends and relatives of the 11 told newsmen as they left the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation that the 10 defense attorneys used the same argument they put forth unsuccessfully at the main trial —that their clients resorted to an airplane hijacking attempt only as a desperation measure to gain their freedom.

Court officials forbad both Western newsmen and a small group of Moscow Jews outside the building to witness the hearing on grounds the room was "too small." One man who did gain entry, however, was Andrei D. Sakharov, the Soviet nuclear physicists who also heads an illegal Human Rights Committee.

He told the group of Jews and Moscow dissidents clustered outside that he felt the defense presentation was "very effective."

One of the Soviet Jews excluded from the trial, 46-year-old Mrs. Ester Mostkova, was taken, screaming, by plainclothes police after she had talked at length with newsmen about the efforts of Jews to emigrate. Mrs. Mostkova was released after two hours and told newsmen the police had warned her never to speak to correspondents again.

Later, she and her husband were shooed away by a plainclothes man.

The 11 appellants were not present for the appeal, but some of their relatives were and one of them, at least, was pessimistic about the prospects for clemency in the death sentences of Dymshits and Kuznetsov.

Angela Davis Still Lacks A Legal Staff In Slaying

Miss Davis is scheduled to appear Tuesday before Judge Joseph G. Wilson in Marin Superior Court arraignment.

Albert W. Harris Jr., state assistant attorney general who will prosecute the case, said today he had not been informed of any final results of Miss Davis's discussions with California attorneys who will take over the case from attorneys John J. Abt and Margaret Burnham, who represented her in New York extradition proceedings.

Harris said Miss Davis was discussing the case with four attorneys—Allen Brotsky of San Francisco, Dannis J. Roberts of Berkeley, John Thorne of San Jose and Michael Tigar of Los Angeles.

Brotsky's office refused to comment today on developments.

First Divorce

MODENA, Italy (UPI) — The first couple in modern Italian history to be granted a divorce legally became single today when their decree was registered at the city hall of the town where they were married.

Judge Aurelio Galasso, president of the Modena court, granted the divorce Tuesday to Alfredo Cappi, 28, and Giorgia Luisa Benassi, 25, just 11 days after Italy's new divorce law took effect.

The decree was granted on what lawyers predicted would be the most common grounds for the estimated one million Italians eligible to seek divorce — separation for more than five years.

Custody of the couple's only child, Massimo, 7, was granted to the mother and the father was ordered to guarantee payment of $8,000 child support.

Scared Away

NEW YORK (UPI) — Susan Elaine Eisenhower, 18, granddaughter of the late President Eisenhower, made an appearance Tuesday night at a ball so highly publicized it scared away Tricia Nixon.

Miss Nixon, 24, the President's elder daughter, was junior chairman of the International Debutante Ball and had been scheduled to attend with her boyfriend Edward Finch Cox, also 24.

At the last minute, however, Miss Nixon and Cox decided to duck reporters and photographers interested in their impending engagement and continued their holiday together elsewhere. Cox's mother, Mrs. Howard Ellis Cox, was chairman of the ball at which Miss Nixon made her own debut six years ago.

Miss Eisenhower, a tall brunette gowned in white silk with seed pearl dog collar, was escorted by her fiance, British barrister Alexander Bradshaw, 29.

Higher Premiums

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Medicare premiums paid monthly by 19.5 million aged persons to cover doctor bills will increase 30 cents to $5.60 a month July 1, federal officials said today.

Most of the 6 per cent increase is necessary to meet the rising costs of physicians' fees, the Health, Education and Welfare Department said. The increase also will cover a greater use of doctors' services among the elderly.

Premiums paid by the elderly go into a trust fund used to reimburse doctors for their services under Medicare, a health insurance program for persons 65 and older. By law, HEW must adjust the premium annually to keep the fund in balance.

New For Yemen

CAIRO (UPI) — The Republic of Yemen received its first constitution in a proclamation in Sana Tuesday by Republican Council President Aadi Abdel Rahman Al Iryani.

The constitution, as outlined by the Middle East News Agency, centered power in the projected consultative council parliament, the republican council, the cabinet and the judiciary.

It provided that 20 per cent of the 159-member parliament would be appointed by the government and the rest elected by the people.

New Navy Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Navy officers no longer must hold a major command at sea as a prerequisite for promotion to admiral.

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, the Chief of Naval Operations who earlier introduced beards and beer to Navy life, said changing conditions made it necessary to assign the best available men to a command job whether it is on sea or shore.

Zumwalt said boards selecting officers for promotion to admiral will be "given the strongest advice and encouragement to select not only those officers who have followed the traditional pattern of command at sea, but also those who have demonstrated their management expertise in the shore establishment in lieu of command at sea."

'System' Blamed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Coast Guard officers forced into early retirement for not allowing a Lithuanian sailor to defect from a Soviet ship to a Coast Guard cutter blame "the system" for the mixup.

Adm. William B. Ellis, commander of the 1st Coast Guard District in Boston, and Capt. Fletcher Brown, his second-in-command, testified before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee Tuesday and spoke with newsmen.

Ellis said he was sick at home at the time of the Nov. 23 incident, and lacking advice from Washington, told Brown to allow the Soviets to recapture Simas Kudirka, who had jumped aboard the cutter Vigilant to seek asylum while the two ships were tied together for official talks off Massachusetts.

Brown ordered the Vigilant's captain, Cmdr. Ralph Eustis, to allow Soviet sailors to drag Kudirka back aboard the Soviet vessel.

Death At Airport

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — An Italian jetliner taxiing for takeoff from Turin's fog-shrouded Caselle Airport smashed into a snowplow on the runway today.

Nearly five tons of fuel spewed from a broken wingtip and caught fire, burning the snowplow driver to death. The 33 passengers and five crewmen of the Alitalia Caravelle, a Turin-Rome flight, escaped injury.

Snowdon Home

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret took her husband Lord Snowdon home from the hospital today and away from the public glare that followed an American report they have agreed to divorce.

Margaret, wearing one of the midi coats that has become her trademark, drove away with Snowdon in a Rolls-Royce from the London clinic, where he has been hospitalized for two weeks for minor surgery.

"I feel much better and am going to take things easy for a bit," Snowdon told newsmen.

Developer Backs Down On Plan

AUBURN (UPI)—A major developer has discarded a controversial proposal to erect three high-rise apartment towers along the west shore of scenic Lake Tahoe.

The Perini Corp. told the Placer County superivisors that it abandoned its plan to build the nine-story structures at Chambers Landing because of "strong sentiments" expressed by adjacent landowners and county planners.

The company said in a telegram it would draft a new plan which "will be more consistent with the desires of the planning commission and the general community.

The firm said it still believed in the excellence of the high-rise development but wouldn't "seek to introduce it into the community where it is evidently unwelcome."

DEFOLIATION IN VIETNAM

The photographs of a normal mangrove forest and one sprayed with chemical herbicides in Vietnam were released yesterday by the Herbicide Assessment Commission, which said the exact effects on human life from the defoliants were hard to measure. The study said the effects of the defoliant are long-term ecological damage.

Hats Off For Good —Stetson

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Stetson, the firm that covered the heads of prairie ranchers and presidents, announced Tuesday it would end the production of hats "early in 1971."

The firm was famous for its cowboy star clientele who wore white hats when they were good guys and black hats when they were bad guys.

Stetson once employed 5,000 employes in its factory here. Some 300 employes remain. They were on holiday leave when the closing was announced.

John Batterson Stetson founded the firm on his return from a trip to the West 105 years ago. His first hat was a 10-gallon western, an ancestor of the Stetsons worn by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Other presidents who wore Stetsons, in more conservative models, were Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The announcement cited the "severe decline in the use of hats" and said attempts would be made to license the Stetson name to another manufacturer.

Nothing More Than An Erotic Sigh

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Champagne Producers of France Tuesday advised New Year's revelers not to "pop" their corks.

"Champagne corks simply aren't popped," said Joseph Dargent, managing director of the association. "Flying corks can be dangerous. Open a champagne bottle by slightly tilting it, holding the cork firmly with one hand and rotating the bottle with the other. The cork will come out easily with nothing more than an erotic sigh."

Manson's Attorney Calls Trial Lynching

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's attorney, who has shown a disdain for decorum and tact throughout the Tate murder case, Tuesday called the trial a "lynching."

Irving Kanarek, a bull-shouldered man whom Manson has sought to have dismissed as his lawyer, took over the closing arguments for the defense and almost immediately handed the jury bloody color photographs of the bodies of the victims.

It was the first time the seven men and five women had seen the pictures close up. They passed them around quickly and one woman juror refused even to glance at them. "What the prosecution wants to discuss with you in this case are these prejudicial photographs," Kanarek said. "They are trying to lynch Mr. Manson. They are appealing to the rankest kind of prejudice that divides this country today."

Kanarek had to be stopped by Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older when he began adressing one of the older male jurors by name and referring to his experience with "vigilante" groups in the United States.

With the defendants listening in adjoining rooms by loudspeaker, Kanarek attacked the publicity surrounding the case and accused the prosecution of terrorist tactics against witnesses. He said the district attorney's office had attacked him personally.

Older had to shut him off again and it appeared the trial will be in for several days of stormy sessions when Kanarek gets around to the evidence in the case.

Chief defense counsel Paul Fitzgerald preceded Kanarek, telling the jury it was quite feasible that someone other than the "Manson family" committed the seven slayings.

Fitzgerald said the fact that a fingerprint of Patricia Krenwinkel was found at the residence could be explained by the possiblity that she was a house guest who had been invited to the home by Sharon Tate for a swim.

Fitzgerald cast doubt on the truthfulness of the prosectuion witnesses. He particularly ripped into the testimony of star state witness Linda Kasabian that she went to the Tate home with Charles "Tex" Watson, Miss Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins.

British Build, Test Satellite

LONDON (UPI) — British Aircraft Corporation (BAC) said yesterday it had become the first company outside the U.S. to build an test a communications satellite.

It announced that Intelsat IV —the world's largest commercial satellite—has been successfully spin-tested at the BAC space systems group spacecraft assembly building at Bristol.

BAC is the main overseas contractor to the Hughes Aircraft Co., of the U. S. and the satellite was assembled from sub-systems built by BAC and other contractors in the 11-nation co-operative program.

Eban Rebukes Sadat For Threat On Mideast Truce

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban criticized Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today for threatening to let the Middle East cease-fire expire Feb. 5 unless progress is made in peace talks.

"We need a cease-fire in terms of bullets and in terms of threats about terminating the cease-fire," Eban said at a news conference in Jerusalem.

Eban said he would suggest to U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring that the talks be held somewhere other than New York, but would not make this a condition for returning to the talks.

Political sources said it is unlikely that Arab opposition to such an arrangement could be overcome. At the insistence of Egypt and Jordan, the talks began in August at the ambassador level at the United Nations.

In the past, Israel has repeatedly suggested Cyprus as a site.

"The nearer the talks are to the centers of decision, the better," Eban said. "New York and the U.N. headquarters are a good place for debates but not for quiet conciliation."

Eban said Israel would not object to Palestinian representatives attending the talks, if they were included as members of the Jordanian delegation rather than as a separate delegation.

"It would be natural and normal for the Palestinians to be included in the talks," he said.

Israeli U.N. Ambassador Yosef Tekoah is expected to return to New York this week to officially notify Secretary-General Thant of Israel's intention to return to the talks that it has boycotted since Sept. 6.

Starvation Threatens 2 Million In Cyclone-Torn East Pakistan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A cyclone which killed 300,000 persons when it ravaged a region equal to Rhode Island and Delaware in East Pakistan threatens the lives of 2 million others unless massive aid is continued, the U.S. ambassador to Pakistan says.

Ambassador Joseph Farland said in an interview Tuesday with UPI the great storm which swept out of the Bay of Bengal Nov. 13 destroyed all food crops and livestock. He said the survivors face long range hunger and possible starvation. The storm has been described as the century's worst natural disaster.

"I am afraid that now that Christmas is over people will forget," Farland said. "I am afraid that some other disaster somewhere else will divert public attention and the horror of East Pakistan will fade in the public mind into a problem of last year."

Farland is back in the United States on leave after directing American aid efforts in East Pakistan. He toured the stricken region extensively.

"At one point, the bodies of victims got caught in a riptide," Farland recalled. "They tossed to and fro and then stacked up for several miles. I simply couldn't believe what I was seeing."

Farland estimated 2 million persons in the low-lying delta region were now without the means of producing their own food.

In addition to destroying crops and livestock, the ambassador said, the storm smashed an estimated 9,000 boats, crippling the important fishing industry, and may have damaged the soil.

"We have no idea what all that water has done to the soil," Farland said. "It might be too saline, which could mean there would be no food crop there next year."

Farland said the region needs a steady, continuuous flow of food and "at least 500,000 cattle and as many chickens" to replenish those lost in the cyclone.

"I'm proud of the United States, our people in the field, and my government's response, and I just pray that this response will not diminish in the months ahead because the need then is going to be even more intense than was evident at the beginning," Farland said.

The American government has provided 1.1 million pounds of food, medicines and other supplies to the cyclone victims, Farland said.

A large proportion of the initial victims of the storm were children and women, he said.

"There are very few kids left there now," he said. "They couldn't swim and got washed away. The women couldn't hold on and simply vanished."

S. Vietnam 10th Biggest Naval Power

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy today hauled down the Stars and Stripes on the last 125 craft of its "brown water" Riverine force and raised the red and gold banner of South Vietnam, creating the world's 10th biggest naval power.

At a turnover ceremony in front of South Vietnamese naval headquarters on the Saigon River, a newly painted river patrol boat was handed over, symbolizing the transfer of title today of the last of the 650 boats which comprised the U.S. Riverine Navy in Vietnam two years ago.

The South Vietnamese Navy has expanded from 2,000 men in six river assault groups and 30 ships in 1954 to nearly 1,500 combat and logistics vessels, manned by nearly 40,000 men this year. The result is that South Vietnam is the world's 10th largest naval force.

Rear adm. Tran Van Chon, South Vietnam's chief of naval operations, accepted title to the boats under the U.S. Navy's Accelerated Turnover of Assets to the Vietnamese Navy (ACTOV) program.

The American brown water navy in Vietnam, first U.S. sailors to tangle daily on a hand to hand basis with an enemy since the 19th century days of sail, was created Sept. 1, 1966, with the commissioning of River Assault Flotilla 1.

Arkansas Death Row Sentences Commuted

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller Tuesday commuted the sentences of all 15 men on Arkansas' Death Row in an effort to "hasten the elimination of barbarism as a tool of American justice."

"He's a pretty cool dude," one condemned inmate of Tucker Prison said of Rockefeller when he heard the news.

"I thank Governor Rockefeller and God," said another.

The lame-duck governor, who leaves office Jan. 12, urged "all other chief executives" to follow his lead and reduced to life imprisonment the sentences of those criminals in their stages awaiting execution.

Rockefeller, an ardent opponent of capital punishment, said he "cannot and will not turn my back on life-long Christian teachings and beliefs, merely to let history run out its course on a fallible and failing theory of punitive justice."

"I yearn to see other chief executives throughout the nation follow suit, so that as a people we may hasten the elimination of barbarism as a tool of American justice," said Rockefeller. It was the first time a governor declared a moratorium on executions since the U.S. Supreme Court agreed in 1968 to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

There have been no executions in the nation since 1967 and none in Arkansas since Jan. 25, 1964.

Included in the group were 11 blacks and four whites. Six black men on Death Row were sentenced for rape. Nine were sentenced for murder. One man had been awaiting execution since 1959.

One of the Death prisoners heard a news bulletin about the commutations a few minutes after Rockefeller's announcement. Then an official announcement was made to the prisoners by a prison official.

Starvation Threatens 2 Million In Cyclone-Torn East Pakistan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A cyclone which killed 300,000 persons when it ravaged a region equal to Rhode Island and Delaware in East Pakistan threatens the lives of 2 million others unless massive aid is continued, the U.S. ambassador to Pakistan says.

Ambassador Joseph Farland said in an interview Tuesday with UPI the great storm which swept out of the Bay of Bengal Nov. 13 destroyed all food crops and livestock. He said the survivors face long range hunger and possible starvation. The storm has been described as the century's worst natural disaster.

"I am afraid that now that Christmas is over people will forget," Farland said. "I am afraid that some other disaster somewhere else will divert public attention and the horror of East Pakistan will fade in the public mind into a problem of last year."

Farland is back in the United States on leave after directing American aid efforts in East Pakistan. He toured the stricken region extensively.

"At one point, the bodies of victims got caught in a riptide," Farland recalled. "They tossed to and fro and then stacked up for several miles. I simply couldn't believe what I was seeing."

Farland estimated 2 million persons in the low-lying delta region were now without the means of producing their own food.

In addition to destroying crops and livestock, the ambassador said, the storm smashed an estimated 9,000 boats, crippling the important fishing industry, and may have damaged the soil.

"We have no idea what all that water has done to the soil," Farland said. "It might be too saline, which could mean there would be no food crop there next year."

Farland said the region needs a steady, continuous flow of food and "at least 500,000 cattle and as many chickens" to replenish those lost in the cyclone.

"I'm proud of the United States, our people in the field, and my government's response, and I just pray that this response will not diminish in the months ahead because the need then is going to be even more intense than was evident at the beginning," Farland said.

The American government has provided 1.1 million pounds of food, medicines and other supplies to the cyclone victims, Farland said.

A large proportion of the initial victims of the storm were children and women, he said.

"There are very few kids left there now," he said. "They couldn't swim and got washed away. The women couldn't hold on and simply vanished."

S. Vietnam 10th Biggest Naval Power

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy today hauled down the Stars and Stripes on the last 125 craft of its "brown water" Riverine force and raised the red and gold banner of South Vietnam, creating the world's 10th biggest naval power.

At a turnover ceremony in front of South Vietnamese naval headquarters on the Saigon River, a newly painted river patrol boat was handed over, symbolizing the transfer of title today of the last of the 650 boats which comprised the U.S. Riverine Navy in Vietnam two years ago.

The South Vietnamese Navy has expanded from 2,000 men in six river assault groups and 30 ships in 1954 to nearly 1,500 combat and logistics vessels, manned by nearly 40,000 men this year. The result is that South Vietnam is the world's 10th largest naval force.

Rear adm. Tran Van Chon, South Vietnam's chief of naval operations, accepted title to the boats under the U.S. Navy's Accelerated Turnover of Assets to the Vietnamese Navy (ACTOV) program.

The American brown water navy in Vietnam, first U.S. sailors to tangle daily on a hand to hand basis with an enemy since the 19th century days of sail, was created Sept. 1, 1966, with the commissioning of River Assault Flotilla 1.

Arkansas Death Row Sentences Commuted

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller Tuesday commuted the sentences of all 15 men on Arkansas' Death Row in an effort to "hasten the elimination of barbarism as a tool of American justice," said Rockefeller. It was the first time a governor declared a moratorium on executions since the U.S. Supreme Court agreed in 1968 to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

There have been no executions in the nation since 1967 and none in Arkansas since Jan. 25, 1964.

Included in the group were 11 blacks and four whites. Six black men on Death Row were sentenced for rape. Nine were sentenced for murder. One man had been awaiting execution since 1959.

One of the Death prisoners heard a news bulletin about the commutations a few minutes after Rockefeller's announcement. Then an official announcement was made to the prisoners by a prison official.

Final Tribute To Mendel Rivers

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Friends, constituents and national leaders paid final tribute today to Rep. L. Mendell Rivers, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee who died of heart failure Monday.

Mourners came throughout the night to file past the flag-draped casket in historic Charleston's 122-year-old Grace Episcopal Church, and scores more poured in at dawn to pay their respects before heading off to work in the seaport's shipyards and nearby military bases.

Burial spot for the 65-year-old Rivers, who spent much of his life battling for funds for the military, was at St. Stephen, a low country town 40 miles north of here where Rivers was instrumental in having an aircraft manufacturing plant established.

More than 5,000 mourners signed the register at Grace Episcopal, which accommodates only about 650 persons.

A five man honor guard, representing each of the armed services, stood guard over the casket, which was unadorned except for the flag. Rivers' family had requested that in place of flowers, donations be sent to an Alabama heart fund.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird represented President Nixon at the funeral, and leaders from across the South, including Gov.-elect George Wallace of Alabama, outgoing Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia, and Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi, also paid their respects—along with many top military and government officials.

Furniture Store Fire Damage: $7,000

A fire in a Larkspur furniture store early today did $7,000 damage to the building and caused $20,000 in smoke damage to merchandise, according to the Larkspur fire chief.

Chief William C. Schurtz said the blaze at Saltzman of Marin Furniture, 1011 Magnolia Avenue, broke out on the mezzanine floor about 3:17 a.m.

While fire damage was confined to the mezzanine, smoke damaged all the furniture in the store, according to the chief.

Schurtz said fire was under investigation.

It took 21 firemen on the scene half an hour to control the flames, he said.

Search Called Off For Quinn, Crew

The Coast Guard has abandoned an aerial search in the Pacific for Lee Quinn and his all-women crew aboard the yacht Neophyte Too, but has alerted other vessels to be on the lookout.

The Coast Guard ended its four-day search for Quinn and his three-member crew on Sunday, but has been continuing to broadcast an "urgent marine information" bulletin.

Quinn began his adventures in 1962 when he and another all-girl crew sailed out of Sausalito in a 54-foot ketch. The ship was sunk in 1965 when she collided with a freighter near Australia. Neophyte Too is his second boat.

With Quinn on the Neophyte Too when they left Japan were Pat Seedman, 23, of Australia, and Jaruko Kome, 29, and Saeki Yonko, 19, both of Japan.

Ton Of Pot Seized In Dope Raid

SAN CARLOS (UPI)—A ton of marijuana, valued at up to $2 million, was seized Tuesday as police arrested 15 persons in a small house in the west San Carlos hills.

The raid by sheriff's deputies, the district attorney's office and police from San Carlos and nearby Redwood City on the San Francisco Peninsula came after a six-month undercover investigation, he added.

Seized were 514 kilogram bricks of marijuana, each weighing 2.2 pounds.

Johnson said the haul would be worth $183,000 wholesale at the current price of $200 a kilo. But broken into street sale "lids," it would be worth $600,000 and if sold on a single cigarette basis, it would be worth $2 million, he continued.

The 10 raiding officers stayed in the house four hours and the district attorney's office said some of those arrested were peddlers coming for supplies.

Occupied was the home of Mrs. Barbara Stacey, 31, whose four-year-old son and another infant found inside were turned over to relatives.

Board Splits On Vietnam Lights Idea

The issue arose when San Anselmo businessman Chac Reichman asked the supervisors to support his proposal that Christmas lights decorating Marin homes be left burning through the month of January as an expression of support for the men in Vietnam, the President's policies and release of American prisoners of war.

"I think that's a good idea," said Supervisor Louis H. Baar.

But Supervisor Michael Wornum balked at endorsing the President's Indo-China program. "I'm in favor of the men in Vietnam and getting prisoners back, but I do not support the president's policies."

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. backed Wornum. "Proposition A is the stated policy of the people of Marin and so I don't think we can support that (Nixon's policies) at this time," said Arrigoni. Proposition A, approved by Marin voters on Nov. 3, called for a complete troop pullout from Southeast Asia by next June.

Supervisors decided there was no consensus and did not act on Reichman's proposal.

"We should let each person decide," said Chairman John F. McInnis. "I see no point in having the county government take a stand on national and international policies."

My Lai Defendant Cleared

ATLANTA (UPI)—Police today dropped murder charges against all but one of 17 young hippies accused of killing a motorcycle gang member. One of the youths cleared of the charge is a My Lai massacre suspect.

Army Spec. Robert W. T'Souvas, 21, of San Jose, Calif., who is accused of two murders at My Lai, was one of the persons rounded up at a boarding house in Atlanta's "tight squeeze" hippie area in the investigation of Tuesday's shotgun slaying of Barney Leigh McSherry, a bearded 6-foot-7 motorcyclist known as "Tree."

T'Souvas and 16 other hippies were initially charged with murdering McSherry. In a preliminary hearing today the murder charges were dropped against all of them but 18-year-old John Wesley Roberts.

Post-Bombing Hike In Insurance Agreed

On the recommendation of Walter W. Carter, the county's insurance consultant, the board of supervisors agreed to a raise in the amount of deductible to a maximum of $15,000 for any one claim and a maximum total of $30,000 for any and all claims between now and next July 1.

Previously, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. insured the Civic Center and Hall of Justice at an annual premium of $29,000 for $16 million coverage. The deductible was a nominal $100. Under contract with USF&G in November, however, Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies became a reinsurer, taking over one-half the coverage.

Last month, Fireman's Fund suggested a raise in deductible to $100,000, which outraged the county supervisors.

After negotiations with Assist. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella and with Carter, Fireman's Fund offered the $15,000-$30,000 proposal.

The vote on the compromise was unanimous but Supervisor Louis H. Baar said his support was reluctant because he believed USF&G should have honored the terms under the former contract, which was not to have expired until July.

New Filing Expected In Policeman Slaying

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A murder charge against a man in the slaying of Patrolman Richard P. Radetich of Igancio has been dismissed but is expected to be refiled after further investigation by the district attorney's office.

Chief Asst. Dist. Atty. Walter Giubbini said yesterday that Wesley A. Johnson, 26, remains in jail under high bail, however, on other charges.

Guibbini said he intends to investigate further evidence which has come up in the case since Johnson was returned to San Francisco earlier this month after a month of extradition proceedings in Dayton, Ohio.

He added that he expects that Johnson will be indicted by the grand jury within a few weeks on the murder charge or that it will be refiled in municipal court.

Johnson is suspected of firing three bullets into Radetich last June as the 25-year-old San Francisco policeman was writing a ticket.

He is also facing charges of assault with a deadly weapon, assault with intent to commit murder, attempted robbery and being in possession of a firearm as a convict.

New Security Step: Fence To Cost County $4,000

Steel wire fences at both ends of the Civic Center buildings — a new security step — will cost $4,079, asst. county administrator John F. Barrows reported yesterday to Marin supervisors.

He said the contract went to Able Fence Co. of San Rafael, which submitted the lowest of three bids. Construction will start about Jan. 5 and will be completed in about two weeks.

An eight-foot steel wire fence, topped by barbed wire, will enclose the north end of the Hall of Justice, where the county jail is located. The enclosure will serve the dual purpose of holding jail inmates during evacuation in the event of bomb scares and to keep intruders away from the building where it juts into the hillside.

A second fence, six feet high, will be built around the south end to keep intruders away from the hillside which leads onto the fourth floor of the Civic Center Administration Building.

The fences will be erected as unobtrusively as possible so as to be scarcely noticeable, said Barrows.

Illegal Search Hit In Dope Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A police search of an empty house without a warrant is illegal, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday, while ordering that evidence found that way be withheld from a narcotics trial.

The ruling concerns David Michael Horack who was arrested on narcotics charges after police entered an empty house in Newport Beach.

Inside they found a stereo system playing loudly and a small quantity of marijuana, hashish and documents they said implicated Horack.

Justice Stanley Mosk wrote the majority opinion and said there was no emergency situation which would have justified the search.

County Drops Secrecy Bid For 'Security' Meetings

Marin County supervisors will not push for the right to hold closed meetings to discuss protection of citizens and property from conspiratorial attack.

A bill seeking the right to hold such meetings was on the county's legislative package for 1971, but the board yesterday voted unanimously to remove it.

"I don't think we need any further amendment of the Ralph M. Brown Act," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni.

Wornum said he had studied the proposed measure and decided that closed meetings "for public security" would be too broad, and would invite closed meetings for almost any topic.

"I'm not for secret meetings to do something behind someone's back," said Louis H. Baar. "But there are certain things we didn't want to publicize."

Chairman John F. McInnis said that the language "protection of public citizens and property" could apply to most anything. "I'm sure that was not our intent," he said.

New Security Step: Fence To Cost County $4,000

Steel wire fences at both ends of the Civic Center buildings — a new security step — will cost $4,079, asst. county administrator John F. Barrows reported yesterday to Marin supervisors.

He said the contract went to Able Fence Co. of San Rafael, which submitted the lowest of three bids. Construction will start about Jan. 5 and will be completed in about two weeks.

An eight-foot steel wire fence, topped by barbed wire, will enclose the north end of the Hall of Justice, where the county jail is located. The enclosure will serve the dual purpose of holding jail inmates during evacuation in the event of bomb scares and to keep intruders away from the building where it juts into the hillside.

A second fence, six feet high, will be built around the south end to keep intruders away from the hillside which leads onto the fourth floor of the Civic Center Administration Building.

The fences will be erected as unobtrusively as possible so as to be scarcely noticeable, said Barrows.

Illegal Search Hit In Dope Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A police search of an empty house without a warrant is illegal, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday, while ordering that evidence found that way be withheld from a narcotics trial.

The ruling concerns David Michael Horack who was arrested on narcotics charges after police entered an empty house in Newport Beach.

Inside they found a stereo system playing loudly and a small quantity of marijuana, hashish and documents they said implicated Horack.

Justice Stanley Mosk wrote the majority opinion and said there was no emergency situation which would have justified the search.

County Drops Last Sub-Chaser Charge

The only remaining criminal charges resulting from a raid on a gun-laden submarine chaser in Tiburon harbor last July were dropped yesterday by the Marin County District Attorney's office.

At the request of Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, misdemeanor marijuana charges against two of the converted sub-chaser's crewmen — Robert Allen Drake, 19, and James Lee Harris, 25 — were dismissed and their guilty pleas set aside.

Anthony said the suspected pot found aboard the vessel was merely stems and seeds of the plant and did not contain narcotics.

The two were among seven arrested last summer when federal, state and Marin drug agents boarded the 107-foot vessel anchored off Tiburon.

The agents found only a small quantity of marijuana, but seized about 40 revolvers and pistols and 10 rifles, many of them loaded.

No charges were filed against three of the seven arrested. The other two — the ship's captain, Gerald Noel McDonald, and first mate George William Lawson — were cleared Dec. 10 when Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court said there was not enough evidence to link them to the weapons, many of which were stolen.

McDonald has since been identified as the apparent informant who prompted a drug raid on the home of Sausalito attorney Michael Henry Metzger, Dec. 6.

Metzger is accused of felony possession of LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon, as well as a misdemeanor count of having a device for smoking pot.

Indochina conference to settle the wars in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos simultaneously has been "flatly rejected" by the Communists. This, Bruce contended, also indicated that the Communists intended "to continue your aggression throughout the region."

—The Communists have rejected all attempts to exchange prisoners or achieve international control of prison camps on both sides.

Today's session lasted from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and produced no results, according to the delegates.

The rephrasing of the standing Communist call for the setting up of a new Saigon cabinet that would organize new general elections in South Vietnam came at the 87th session of the Paris peace talks.

At the session, marked by a considerable toning down of Communist diatribe against the Nixon administration, North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Foreign Minister Madame Nguyen Thi Binh offered the Allies again a two-stage cease-fire and release of American prisoners.

Thuy and Madame Binh criticized secretary of State William P. Rogers for raising in his Dec. 23 statement the threat of new possible retaliatory U.S. air strikes against the North and vowed to fight on.

TRIAL

Josif Mendelvich, who was sentenced to 15 years in prison, said, "I am afraid, I am pessimistic, because conditions look very bad.

"I pray to God they will change the death sentences, but the men got death under two different (legal code) articles and so even if they drop one there is still the other. I'm pessimistic."

The trial sources said only three of the 10 defense lawyers would remain for continuation of the proceedings Thursday.

Mrs. Mostkova was grabbed on the street by police who stepped from a car.

Most of the Jews waiting at the door of the court for the decision scattered briefly when the woman was taken into custody but they quickly regrouped and returned to their vigil, 12 to 15 strong. A few members of Moscow's underground dissident group also were present.

The only information published by the Soviets during the appeal was a Tass report on an editorial that appeared in the Daily World, the U.S. Communist Party newspaper in New York. The editorial followed the official Soviet line in denouncing "Zionist" criticism of the death sentences.

Eleven persons were convicted in the Leningrad trial, nine of them Jews. Two Jews were sentenced to death before a firing squad and the other nine were given prison sentences ranging from 4 to 15 years.

Scanty Reward For Burglar

A thief who made strenuous efforts to rob a safe at the North Bay Produce Co. in San Rafael today finally settled for $1.50 taken from a desk, police said.

A patrolling officer noticed a broken window at 1:54 a.m. at the business, 95 Louise Street. Entering he noticed that the burglar had tried to pry open a safe from the front and even pushed it away from the wall in an effort to pry off the back.

All that was missing was change from a desk, police said.

Another Fatal Leap From Span

The California Highway Patrol identified the man as Siah Ling Sae-ow, a native of Thailand and a student at the City College of San Francisco.

Officers quoted four witnesses as saying Sae-ow walked to the bridge's east railing just south of the north tower at 4:55 p.m., dropped his brown overcoat on the sidewalk and vaulted over the rail.

Found with his oat was his wallet, a contact lens holder, a key ring with six keys and a note — "This is my last selfish act."

Officers said the note's wording was identical to a message left by Robert Morgan Dickinson, 22, a San Francisco mailman who jumped to his death Christmas Eve. Dickinson and Sae-ow were friends.

James H. McKeown of San Francisco, Sae-ow's sponsor in America, said the student apparently partially blamed himself for Dickinson's death.

The Coast Guard said today Sae-ow's body had not been recovered.

A resolution pledging the sum and describing Miss Davis as a "political prisoner" failed by 11 votes, despite cries of "racism" from some delegates.

Instead, the convention adopted a resolution expressing the teachers' union's "concern" that Miss Davis receive a fair trial, and authorizing collection of "voluntary donations" for her defense.

CFT president Raul Teihet left the chair to argue against the $1,000 pledge. He said the organization has turned down more than 100 similar requests for defense funds.

Accident Victim Reported Fair

Steven Robert Leonard, 15, of 78 Toyon Drive, Fairfax, who suffered a paralyzed right arm in a motorcycle-bicycle accident Dec. 23, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Fairfax police reported that a bicycle being ridden by Arnold Gove, 16, of 33 Willow Avenue, collided with Leonard's motorcycle on Cascade Drive near the Cascade Gates at 2:59 p.m.

Leonard suffered nerve damage to his shoulder which paralyzed his arm, police said. Gove, who suffered multiple bruises, was treated at Marin General and Kaiser hospitals.

Lucky Drive Sewer Plan Revisions Are Approved

Revised plans for the Lucky Drive sewer project were approved last night by the Corte Madera Sanitary Commission.

Redesign of the sewer system was recommended by the commission in November when the low construction bid received was $87,000, $43,000 above estimates.

In overhauling the original plan, project engineer Brown and Caldwell switched from a gravity flow system to one which requires installation of a pump (lift) station on Lucky Drive between Fifer Avenue and Nellen Drive, Arthur N. Morrison, Corte Madera Sanitary District engineer, said today.

He estimated the cost of the new system at $51,000 — $36,000 less than the low bid but still $7,000 above the project engineer's original estimate.

Still to be added to the project cost, Morrison said, are the legal and administrative costs incurred in forming the special assessment district which will build the system. He said, however, those costs would be minimal.

The revised proposal now will be considered by the sanitary district board at its Jan. 4 meeting.

The controversial sewer project has been in the works since August when the sanitary district board approved annexing the Lucky Drive area to the district. The annexation followed two years of bickering with property owners who wanted to annex to the district but not to the town of Corte Madera. Annexation to the town was a condition imposed by the sanitary district board, which is made up of town councilmen.

In other action last night, the commission directed Morrison to investigate options to repair a damaged sewer line at Lakeside Drive and the High Canal.

Morrison said the commission may either repair the line for about $3,500 or repair and relocate it for about $8,000. The line now runs under a section of private property adjacent to the High Canal.

pardon is granted him (since he would become a martyr).

"You can imagine my own feelings. But I am proud of him."

Reports reaching Burgos said several factories in the Basque provinces fronting France had closed down and that others operated with half their normal work forces. However, the strikes were far less drastic than those marking the start of the trial of 16 Basques in early December.

The lawyers representing the six condemned Basques asked Franco for clemency a few hours before he was scheduled to address the nation. Another appeal came from Cardnal Dernando Quiroga y Palacios, archbishop of Santiago de Compostela.

An opposition source said several hundred generals and colonels had sent telegrams to Franco urging clemency. In Barcelona, 300 doctors met in an all night vigil to protest the sentences. Lawyers there have carried out similar vigils.

"For reasons of justice, we urge that no executions be carried out in connection with the (Burgos) court-martial," the lawyers' telegram said.

Man Trails His Own Car, Finds It Minus Gear

A San Rafael man who reported his car stolen Monday found it himself yesterday, according to police.

David S. Burrows of 6 Madrona Avenue, San Rafael, told police he loaned his car to a woman for an hour Monday, but she did not return it.

After searching for it all day yesterday, Burrows told police he saw the vehicle in downtown San Rafael and trailed it to the Bermuda Palms Motel on Francisco Boulevard, where he recovered it at 6 p.m.

There was no sign of the woman or a $35 speaker that had been in the trunk, police said.

Counterfeit Bills Passed At Store

Two counterfeit $20 bills were passed at Payless Drugstore in San Rafael between Thursday and Saturday, San Rafael police said today.

The phony bills were identified after the money was deposited at the Union Bank, police said. The manager of Payless, 866 Fourth Street, told police he did not know when the bills were received.

HEW Monies Win Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate gave final congressional approval today to a bill appropriating $18.9 billion for federal health and welfare programs, but with only four days remaining before adjournment there was still no break in the logjam on other major bills.

Transportation, foreign aid and Social Security legislation were the principal measures tied up in the Congress.

The appropriations bill, passed by a 69-0 roll call vote, carries funds for the Labor Department and the Health, Education and Welfare Department. It is $210 million higher than President Nixon sought but congressional leaders predicted he would sign the bill.

Stuck In Snow

PARIS (UPI) — The government sent Foreign Legion and engineering troops today to dig out thousands of motorists stranded for three days in the Rhone Valley's worst snow storm in 25 years.

WAR

Ambassador Emory Swank's car.

Victims of the assassinations were a village chief on the outskirts of the capital and the driver of a gasoline truck on Highway 7 leading to Kompong Cham who was dragged from his truck and shot. The Viet Cong also kidnapped a village official on the outskirts of Phnom Penh but freed him.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said South Vietnamese paratroopers had returned to South Vietnam from an operation in which they sought to break the five week Communist siege of Kompong Cham, Cambodia's third largest city.

In another action the Cambodians reported Communist mortar crews Tuesday night bombarded Cambodian troops trying to reopen Phnom Lenh's route to the seaport of Kompong Som.

The Cambodian Command said the Communist artillerymen opened up at dusk with 20 rounds of 82mm mortar fire against Cambodian positions at Sre Khlong. There were no reports of casualties or damage.

An earlier mortar and ground attack on Sre Khlong and the nearby position of Talat on Highway 4 left nine Cambodians dead and 28 wounded, field reports showed. Three of those killed, including a child, were the soldiers' dependents.

Col. Pell Nal, a staff member of the Cambodian 2nd Military Region headquarters on Highway 4, said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong appeared to be reinforcing their units along the highway, perhaps in anticipation of a new Cambodian and South Vietnamese push to reopen the vital roadway.

Woman Slugged, Robbed Of $5, $700 Ring

Police said Cleone E. Woodcock was returning about 6:40 p.m. from a market on Belvedere Street to her home at 185 Larkspur Street, Apt. 303, when she was attacked at 150 Belvedere.

The assailant punched her in the mouth, knocking her to the pavement, and took her purse containing the ring and cash, police said.

The woman was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for mouth injuries and leg cuts and scrapes.

Burglary Tries Are Reported

Two attempted burglaries that resulted in vandalism were reported by San Rafael police today.

Scanty Reward For Burglar

A thief who made strenuous efforts to rob a safe at the North Bay Produce Co. in San Rafael today finally settled for $1.50 taken from a desk, police said.

A patrolling officer noticed a broken window at 1:54 a.m. at the business, 95 Louise Street. Entering he noticed that the burglar had tried to pry open a safe from the front and even pushed it away from the wall in an effort to pry off the back.

All that was missing was change from a desk, police said.

Another Fatal Leap From Span

Officers quoted four witnesses as saying Sae-ow walked to the bridge's east railing just south of the north tower at 4:55 p.m., dropped his brown overcoat on the sidewalk and vaulted over the rail.

Found with his oat was his wallet, a contact lens holder, a key ring with six keys and a note — "This is my last selfish act."

Officers said the note's wording was identical to a message left by Robert Morgan Dickinson, 22, a San Francisco mailman who jumped to his death Christmas Eve. Dickinson and Sae-ow were friends.

James H. McKeown of San Francisco, Sae-ow's sponsor in America, said the student apparently partially blamed himself for Dickinson's death.

The Coast Guard said today Sae-ow's body had not been recovered.

A resolution pledging the sum and describing Miss Davis as a "political prisoner" failed by 11 votes, despite cries of "racism" from some delegates.

Instead, the convention adopted a resolution expressing the teachers' union's "concern" that Miss Davis receive a fair trial, and authorizing collection of "voluntary donations" for her defense.

CFT president Raul Teihet left the chair to argue against the $1,000 pledge. He said the organization has turned down more than 100 similar requests for defense funds.

Accident Victim Reported Fair

Steven Robert Leonard, 15, of 78 Toyon Drive, Fairfax, who suffered a paralyzed right arm in a motorcycle-bicycle accident Dec. 23, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Fairfax police reported that a bicycle being ridden by Arnold Gove, 16, of 33 Willow Avenue, collided with Leonard's motorcycle on Cascade Drive near the Cascade Gates at 2:59 p.m.

Leonard suffered nerve damage to his shoulder which paralyzed his arm, police said. Gove, who suffered multiple bruises, was treated at Marin General and Kaiser hospitals.

Lucky Drive Sewer Plan Revisions Are Approved

Revised plans for the Lucky Drive sewer project were approved last night by the Corte Madera Sanitary Commission.

Redesign of the sewer system was recommended by the commission in November when the low construction bid received was $87,000, $43,000 above estimates.

In overhauling the original plan, project engineer Brown and Caldwell switched from a gravity flow system to one which requires installation of a pump (lift) station on Lucky Drive between Fifer Avenue and Nellen Drive, Arthur N. Morrison, Corte Madera Sanitary District engineer, said today.

He estimated the cost of the new system at $51,000 — $36,000 less than the low bid but still $7,000 above the project engineer's original estimate.

Still to be added to the project cost, Morrison said, are the legal and administrative costs incurred in forming the special assessment district which will build the system. He said, however, those costs would be minimal.

The revised proposal now will be considered by the sanitary district board at its Jan. 4 meeting.

The controversial sewer project has been in the works since August when the sanitary district board approved annexing the Lucky Drive area to the district. The annexation followed two years of bickering with property owners who wanted to annex to the district but not to the town of Corte Madera. Annexation to the town was a condition imposed by the sanitary district board, which is made up of town councilmen.

In other action last night, the commission directed Morrison to investigate options to repair a damaged sewer line at Lakeside Drive and the High Canal.

Morrison said the commission may either repair the line for about $3,500 or repair and relocate it for about $8,000. The line now runs under a section of private property adjacent to the High Canal.

pardon is granted him (since he would become a martyr).

"You can imagine my own feelings. But I am proud of him."

Reports reaching Burgos said several factories in the Basque provinces fronting France had closed down and that others operated with half their normal work forces. However, the strikes were far less drastic than those marking the start of the trial of 16 Basques in early December.

The lawyers representing the six condemned Basques asked Franco for clemency a few hours before he was scheduled to address the nation. Another appeal came from Cardnal Dernando Quiroga y Palacios, archbishop of Santiago de Compostela.

An opposition source said several hundred generals and colonels had sent telegrams to Franco urging clemency. In Barcelona, 300 doctors met in an all night vigil to protest the sentences. Lawyers there have carried out similar vigils.

"For reasons of justice, we urge that no executions be carried out in connection with the (Burgos) court-martial," the lawyers' telegram said.

Man Trails His Own Car, Finds It Minus Gear

A San Rafael man who reported his car stolen Monday found it himself yesterday, according to police.

David S. Burrows of 6 Madrona Avenue, San Rafael, told police he loaned his car to a woman for an hour Monday, but she did not return it.

After searching for it all day yesterday, Burrows told police he saw the vehicle in downtown San Rafael and trailed it to the Bermuda Palms Motel on Francisco Boulevard, where he recovered it at 6 p.m.

There was no sign of the woman or a $35 speaker that had been in the trunk, police said.

Counterfeit Bills Passed At Store

Two counterfeit $20 bills were passed at Payless Drugstore in San Rafael between Thursday and Saturday, San Rafael police said today.

The phony bills were identified after the money was deposited at the Union Bank, police said. The manager of Payless, 866 Fourth Street, told police he did not know when the bills were received.

HEW Monies Win Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate gave final congressional approval today to a bill appropriating $18.9 billion for federal health and welfare programs, but with only four days remaining before adjournment there was still no break in the logjam on other major bills.

Transportation, foreign aid and Social Security legislation were the principal measures tied up in the Congress.

The appropriations bill, passed by a 69-0 roll call vote, carries funds for the Labor Department and the Health, Education and Welfare Department. It is $210 million higher than President Nixon sought but congressional leaders predicted he would sign the bill.

Stuck In Snow

PARIS (UPI) — The government sent Foreign Legion and engineering troops today to dig out thousands of motorists stranded for three days in the Rhone Valley's worst snow storm in 25 years.

Woman Slugged, Robbed Of $5, $700 Ring

Police said Cleone E. Woodcock was returning about 6:40 p.m. from a market on Belvedere Street to her home at 185 Larkspur Street, Apt. 303, when she was attacked at 150 Belvedere.

The assailant punched her in the mouth, knocking her to the pavement, and took her purse containing the ring and cash, police said.

The woman was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for mouth injuries and leg cuts and scrapes.

Burglary Tries Are Reported

Two attempted burglaries that resulted in vandalism were reported by San Rafael police today.

Police said someone attempted to pry open a coin box at Canal Car Wash, 65 Vivian Way, prior to 6:36 p.m. yesterday, but set off an alarm and fled.

Damage totaling $60 was done to the door at 355 Canal Street, Apt. 37, between Dec. 23 and Christmas by a would-be burglar, police said.

Innocent Plea To Pot Possession

Kevin Richard Stein, 23, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possession of marijuana and dangerous drugs.

Preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 19.

Stein was arrested Dec. 12 while sitting on a San Rafael fence smoking a hand-rolled cigarette. Police said a search of his coat and car revealed a container of white powder and one with three pills in it.

Ambassador Emory Swank's car.

Victims of the assassinations were a village chief on the outskirts of the capital and the driver of a gasoline truck on Highway 7 leading to Kompong Cham who was dragged from his truck and shot. The Viet Cong also kidnapped a village official on the outskirts of Phnom Penh but freed him.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said South Vietnamese paratroopers had returned to South Vietnam from an operation in which they sought to break the five week Communist siege of Kompong Cham, Cambodia's third largest city.

In another action the Cambodians reported Communist mortar crews Tuesday night bombarded Cambodian troops trying to reopen Phnom Lenh's route to the seaport of Kompong Som.

The Cambodian Command said the Communist artillerymen opened up at dusk with 20 rounds of 82mm mortar fire against Cambodian positions at Sre Khlong. There were no reports of casualties or damage.

An earlier mortar and ground attack on Sre Khlong and the nearby position of Talat on Highway 4 left nine Cambodians dead and 28 wounded, field reports showed. Three of those killed, including a child, were the soldiers' dependents.

Col. Pell Nal, a staff member of the Cambodian 2nd Military Region headquarters on Highway 4, said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong appeared to be reinforcing their units along the highway, perhaps in anticipation of a new Cambodian and South Vietnamese push to reopen the vital roadway.

Antipollution Trick: Eating Oil Slicks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Navy is fermenting a yeasty idea for breaking down and dispersing oil slicks.

The idea is being studied at Georgia State College in Atlanta under a contract with the Office of Naval Research (ONR).

The study is part of a program aimed at controlling, by natural processes of biological degradation, of oil pollution of harbors and beaches.

The idea is to put yeasts, perhaps teamed with oil-eating microbes, to work in oil polluted waters. Says ONR:

It should be. Some time ago a U.S. aircraft carrier accidentally dumped a lot of oil in the Mediterranean. It cost the Navy many man-hours and much money to clean up the mess it had made on Riviera beaches.

Several strains of yeast, according to ONR, have been found in oily waters, and "the populations of these yeasts seem to increase with the extent of the pollution."

"This indicates," says ONR, "that they may thrive on oil and, along with bacteria and other microorganisms, contribute greatly to oil degradation."

ONR also is sponsoring studies of marine bacteria which digest oil. The thought is that it may be practical to seed slicks with oil-consuming microbes.

The bacteria, however, are vulnerable to sunlight and to osmotic pressure which enables sea water to crush their cells.

This is where yeast got into the picture. The cells of most yeasts are more resistant to the germicidal effect of sunlight and to osmotic pressure. Yeast, a fungus, appears to be better protected against the vicissitudes of life in the raw than the less highly organized bacteria.

According to ONR, laboratory tests show that many yeasts attack and flourish on oil droplets. Some yeast colonies can break the membrane, or skin, of the droplet, and grow within it. This gives them protection in a marine environment from such organisms as are known to feed on yeast and bacteria.

ONR has asked Georgia State College researchers to find out what yeast strains are the most efficient oil eaters and to discover practical ways of using them, perhaps in conjunction with bacteria, to combat slicks.

Thus far more than 700 strains of yeast have been collected from polluted beaches, estuaries and rivers and screened for their ability to break down oil.

Wine Sellers Predict Record

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sales of California wine in 1970 should total a record 190 million gallons, the Wine Institute's president says in a year-end review.

President Harry G. Serlis noted Monday that shipments totalled 158 million gallons for the January-October period, an increase of 17 million gallons over the same period last year.

"Wine distribution this year has been accelerating at better than 12 per cent," he added.

In its 200th year, California's "wine industry now produces more than 80 per cent of all U.S. wines and accounts for about 73 per cent of all wines used in this country."

Rogers Plans Visit To Middle East

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers hopes to visit Egypt, Israel and other Middle East countries but not before Israel and Arab nations have resumed peace talks under United Nations auspices.

The trip by Rogers will be made when it will be "most productive," State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said Monday. He said there was no thought of Rogers becoming involved as an intermediary between the two sides.

Antipollution Trick: Eating Oil Slicks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Navy is fermenting a yeasty idea for breaking down and dispersing oil slicks.

The idea is being studied at Georgia State College in Atlanta under a contract with the Office of Naval Research (ONR).

The study is part of a program aimed at controlling, by natural processes of biological degradation, of oil pollution of harbors and beaches.

The idea is to put yeasts, perhaps teamed with oil-eating microbes, to work in oil polluted waters. Says ONR:

It should be. Some time ago a U.S. aircraft carrier accidentally dumped a lot of oil in the Mediterranean. It cost the Navy many man-hours and much money to clean up the mess it had made on Riviera beaches.

Several strains of yeast, according to ONR, have been found in oily waters, and "the populations of these yeasts seem to increase with the extent of the pollution."

"This indicates," says ONR, "that they may thrive on oil and, along with bacteria and other microorganisms, contribute greatly to oil degradation."

ONR also is sponsoring studies of marine bacteria which digest oil. The thought is that it may be practical to seed slicks with oil-consuming microbes.

The bacteria, however, are vulnerable to sunlight and to osmotic pressure which enables sea water to crush their cells.

This is where yeast got into the picture. The cells of most yeasts are more resistant to the germicidal effect of sunlight and to osmotic pressure. Yeast, a fungus, appears to be better protected against the vicissitudes of life in the raw than the less highly organized bacteria.

According to ONR, laboratory tests show that many yeasts attack and flourish on oil droplets. Some yeast colonies can break the membrane, or skin, of the droplet, and grow within it. This gives them protection in a marine environment from such organisms as are known to feed on yeast and bacteria.

ONR has asked Georgia State College researchers to find out what yeast strains are the most efficient oil eaters and to discover practical ways of using them, perhaps in conjunction with bacteria, to combat slicks.

Thus far more than 700 strains of yeast have been collected from polluted beaches, estuaries and rivers and screened for their ability to break down oil.

Wine Sellers Predict Record

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sales of California wine in 1970 should total a record 190 million gallons, the Wine Institute's president says in a year-end review.

President Harry G. Serlis noted Monday that shipments totalled 158 million gallons for the January-October period, an increase of 17 million gallons over the same period last year.

"Wine distribution this year has been accelerating at better than 12 per cent," he added.

In its 200th year, California's "wine industry now produces more than 80 per cent of all U.S. wines and accounts for about 73 per cent of all wines used in this country."

Rogers Plans Visit To Middle East

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers hopes to visit Egypt, Israel and other Middle East countries but not before Israel and Arab nations have resumed peace talks under United Nations auspices.

The trip by Rogers will be made when it will be "most productive," State Department spokesman Robert J.McCloskey said Monday. He said there was no thought of Rogers becoming involved as an intermediary between the two sides.

High Court Rules On Juveniles

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court yesterday ruled that juveniles have the same right of inspection as adult criminal defendants.

The court said unanimously that a juvenile has a limited right to inspect his prior conversations, statements and admissions to the police before the start of juvenile court proceedings.

Joe Z., a 15-year-old minor, and two other minors, were charged with murder and assault with intent to commit murder. Before the juvenile court delinquency proceedings, Joe's attorney asked to see all the statements and admissions to the police and the recordings of conversations with them made by Joe and his co-defendants.

A trial court ruled that the attorney may inspect such statements only if he stated he did not recall the conversations and that even so, he could not inspect co-defendants' statements.

The Supreme Court said that the juvenile had the same right of inspection as an adult and ordered the material disclosed upon a proper showing.

Any Good Detective Can Play Correctly For Victory

Everybody's familiar with a certain kind of detective work: "The crime was committed by a man 5-feet-9 inches tall, weighing 350 pounds. He had a thick Bulgarian accent and a sixth finger on each hand. No other distinguishing marks." Another kind of detective work is not so specific: "John Smith cannot be guilty of this crime because he was a thousand miles away at the time it was committed." This second type of detection applies in today's hand.

COINS WITH ACE

West opened the deuce of diamonds, and declarer played dummy's ten in the hope that West had led low from the queen-jack. East played the jack of diamonds, however, and South won with the ace.

Now the only problem was to play the clubs in such a way as to win all five tricks. This would be easy if the three missing clubs broke 2-1, but South would have to win the first club trick in the correct hand if it turned out that all of the clubs were in the same opponent's hand.

The actual declarer led a low club to dummy's king, only to discover that he had guessed wrong. He had to lose a club trick and now had only eight tricks. Down one.

REVEALING LEAD

West's opening lead should have told South the whole story. East might be void of clubs, but West could not be.

West had led the deuce of diamonds, presumably his fourth-best card in his longest suit. Since West couldn't have any diamonds lower than the deuce, it was clear that he had led from a suit of only four cards.

FIVE OR MORE

If West were void in clubs, he would surely have some suit of five or more cards, and he would have led that suit rather than the diamonds. But since West had chosen to lead a diamond, it was reasonable to assume that West did not have a five-card suit. Therefore West was not void in clubs.

On this reasoning South should lead the ace of clubs at the second trick. East would show out, and South would be in position to finesse through West's queen.

He had a thick Bulgarian accent and a sixth finger on each hand. No other distinguishing marks." Another kind of detective work is not so specific: "John Smith cannot be guilty of this crime because he was a thousand miles away at the time it was committed." This second type of detection applies in today's hand.

COINS WITH ACE

West opened the deuce of diamonds, and declarer played dummy's ten in the hope that West had led low from the queen-jack. East played the jack of diamonds, however, and South won with the ace.

Now the only problem was to play the clubs in such a way as to win all five tricks. This would be easy if the three missing clubs broke 2-1, but South would have to win the first club trick in the correct hand if it turned out that all of the clubs were in the same opponent's hand.

The actual declarer led a low club to dummy's king, only to discover that he had guessed wrong. He had to lose a club trick and now had only eight tricks. Down one.

REVEALING LEAD

West's opening lead should have told South the whole story. East might be void of clubs, but West could not be.

West had led the deuce of diamonds, presumably his fourth-best card in his longest suit. Since West couldn't have any diamonds lower than the deuce, it was clear that he had led from a suit of only four cards.

FIVE OR MORE

If West were void in clubs, he would surely have some suit of five or more cards, and he would have led that suit rather than the diamonds. But since West had chosen to lead a diamond, it was reasonable to assume that West did not have a five-card suit. Therefore West was not void in clubs.

On this reasoning South should lead the ace of clubs at the second trick. East would show out, and South would be in position to finesse through West's queen.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Tap Broker Data For OTC Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a newcomer to the United States and have much to learn. I have attempted to purchase a $3 stock from three brokers each of whom refused to handle the transaction. What is "Over-the-Counter" and where can I buy my $3 shares? — W.L.

A. "Over-the-Counter" is by far the largest securities market, in terms of issues traded, in this country. Approximately 4,000 listed issues are auctioned on the New York, American, National and regional exchanges, whereas close to 50,000 (unlisted issues) are traded by negotiation in the over-the-counter market.

While it is true that all new issues and a good number of low-priced weak stocks are unlisted, there are a like number of high grade securities that are traded OTC. All government debt securities, most bank and insurance company stocks, and municipal bonds and, under certain conditions, listed stock are traded in this market.

SEC registration is required for all OTC issues. The National Association of Security Dealers, to which most OTC dealers belong, polices its membership in somewhat the same way as an Exchange regulates the actions of its members.

Various dealers "make a market" in one or more stocks, in other words these firms are prepared to buy or sell those particular issues at quoted prices. Wholesale prices in unlisted issues, that is prices from one dealer to another, are printed daily by the National Quotation Bureau and are called the "Pink Sheets."

You should first open an account with a brokerage firm, preferably a member of the National Association of Security Dealers. As you have found, some broker-dealers are unwilling to handle low-priced or financially ailing securities, a procedure which is the result of their long experience.

You would be wise to take advantage of the brokers knowledge; he will give you reports on various recommended OTC issues, which will help you in selecting a suitable investment.

Big Job Market For Youngsters Open In Japan

TOKYO (UPI — Labor-short Japanese employers are pursuing teen-agers with all the zeal of college athletic coaches going after star athletes.

Cash gifts, presents to parents, and promises of overseas travel all are being used by aggressive personnel men to hire Japanese children down to the junior high school level, the ministry of labor said in a report.

It estimated that when the Japanese school year ends in March, 1971, eight job offers will await every junior high school graduate who doesn't choose to go on to high school.

For any high school diploma winner who isn't interested in college, an average of 6.6 jobs will be at his disposal.

Stocks Soar Higher For Sixth Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Stock Market was higher for the sixth day in a row Wednesday, but profit taking appeared to be slowing the advance. Turnover was heavy.

Institutions appeared to be doing most of the buying. One analyst said institutions are worried they may have missed an opportunity to purchase stocks at more attractive levels, and so now are committing some of their funds.

Another analyst, however, said he was advising his clients to take profits on the advance because he believed there was little in the news background to sustain demand for stocks much longer.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones industrial average was ahead slightly, while advances were leading declines by more than a two-to-one margin.

Prices also moved higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of 1,031 issues crossing the tape, 492 advanced, 260 declined.

Among the most active AMEX issues were Royal Inns of America, fractionally lower on 32,000 shares, Nytronics, also slightly lower on over 30,000 shares, and Castleton Industries, up fractionally on 23,000 shares.

On the big board, Louisville & Nashville Railroad gained more than 2, while stocks up a point or better included Merck & Co., Du Pont, Norfolk & Western Railway, Memorex, Texas Instruments, and Polaroid.

Among the heavily traded stocks were General Portland Cement up ¼, Sperry Rand ⅝ higher (ex-dividend), Babcock & Wilcox down ⅛, Williams Brothers 1 higher, R. H. Macy 1½ higher, and CNA Financial ⅛ lower.

Japanese See Economy Slip

TOKYO (UPI) — The Economic Planning Agency said the Japanese economy has turned downward for the first time after 58 straight months or rising prosperity.

The agency, in a report on economic activity in October, said 24 of 25 indicators showed negative reports.

In September, the agency said the Japanese economy had reached a turning point with 13 negative indicators, and now could be expected to go down.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Tap Broker Data For OTC Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a newcomer to the United States and have much to learn. I have attempted to purchase a $3 stock from three brokers each of whom refused to handle the transaction. What is "Over-the-Counter" and where can I buy my $3 shares? — W.L.

A. "Over-the-Counter" is by far the largest securities market, in terms of issues traded, in this country. Approximately 4,000 listed issues are auctioned on the New York, American, National and regional exchanges, whereas close to 50,000 (unlisted issues) are traded by negotiation in the over-the-counter market.

While it is true that all new issues and a good number of low-priced weak stocks are unlisted, there are a like number of high grade securities that are traded OTC. All government debt securities, most bank and insurance company stocks, and municipal bonds and, under certain conditions, listed stock are traded in this market.

SEC registration is required for all OTC issues. The National Association of Security Dealers, to which most OTC dealers belong, polices its membership in somewhat the same way as an Exchange regulates the actions of its members.

Various dealers "make a market" in one or more stocks, in other words these firms are prepared to buy or sell those particular issues at quoted prices. Wholesale prices in unlisted issues, that is prices from one dealer to another, are printed daily by the National Quotation Bureau and are called the "Pink Sheets."

You should first open an account with a brokerage firm, preferably a member of the National Association of Security Dealers. As you have found, some broker-dealers are unwilling to handle low-priced or financially ailing securities, a procedure which is the result of their long experience.

You would be wise to take advantage of the brokers knowledge; he will give you reports on various recommended OTC issues, which will help you in selecting a suitable investment.

Big Job Market For Youngsters Open In Japan

TOKYO (UPI — Labor-short Japanese employers are pursuing teen-agers with all the zeal of college athletic coaches going after star athletes.

Cash gifts, presents to parents, and promises of overseas travel all are being used by aggressive personnel men to hire Japanese children down to the junior high school level, the ministry of labor said in a report.

It estimated that when the Japanese school year ends in March, 1971, eight job offers will await every junior high school graduate who doesn't choose to go on to high school.

For any high school diploma winner who isn't interested in college, an average of 6.6 jobs will be at his disposal.

Stocks Soar Higher For Sixth Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Stock Market was higher for the sixth day in a row Wednesday, but profit taking appeared to be slowing the advance. Turnover was heavy.

Institutions appeared to be doing most of the buying. One analyst said institutions are worried they may have missed an opportunity to purchase stocks at more attractive levels, and so now are committing some of their funds.

Another analyst, however, said he was advising his clients to take profits on the advance because he believed there was little in the news background to sustain demand for stocks much longer.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones industrial average was ahead slightly, while advances were leading declines by more than a two-to-one margin.

Prices also moved higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of 1,031 issues crossing the tape, 492 advanced, 260 declined.

Among the most active AMEX issues were Royal Inns of America, fractionally lower on 32,000 shares, Nytronics, also slightly lower on over 30,000 shares, and Castleton Industries, up fractionally on 23,000 shares.

On the big board, Louisville & Nashville Railroad gained more than 2, while stocks up a point or better included Merck & Co., Du Pont, Norfolk & Western Railway, Memorex, Texas Instruments, and Polaroid.

Among the heavily traded stocks were General Portland Cement up ¼, Sperry Rand ⅝ higher (ex-dividend), Babcock & Wilcox down ⅛, Williams Brothers 1 higher, R. H. Macy 1½ higher, and CNA Financial ⅛ lower.

Japanese See Economy Slip

TOKYO (UPI) — The Economic Planning Agency said the Japanese economy has turned downward for the first time after 58 straight months or rising prosperity.

The agency, in a report on economic activity in October, said 24 of 25 indicators showed negative reports.

In September, the agency said the Japanese economy had reached a turning point with 13 negative indicators, and now could be expected to go down.

49ers To Be Up Against A Rugged Cowboy Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Forty Niners have proved they can score in any kind of weather. Now they have to prove they can score against the Dallas defense.

Last Sunday, San Francisco traveled to cold weather country Minnesota, but the low temperatures didn't seem to bother quarterback John Brodie as he led the Forty Niners to an upset 17-14 win over the Vikings.

Two weeks ago, the Forty Niners exploded for 38 points on a wet and muddy field in Oakland against the Raiders.

It may rain Sunday when San Francisco meets the Cowboys in Kezar Stadium, but the weather is not what's worrying Forty Niner coach Dick Nolan.

"Any defense that stops Detroit as Dallas did last week 5-0 has to be tough," Nolan said. "We certainly don't expect a picnic."

With the way the Forty Niner defense has been playing lately, Nolan should be satisfied with 24 points when his club meets Dallas for the National Football Conference championship.

After watching the Minnesota game films, Forty Niner defensive line coach Paul Wiggin called it "our best defensive effort of the year."

Wiggin gave much of the credit for the improved defensive line to the early development of ends Tommy Hart and rookie Cedrick Hardman.

"Hart, Hardman, Bill Belk and Stan Hindman give us four defensive ends capable of playing on any club in the league," Wiggin said.

San Francisco is a four point favorite to beat the Cowboys, but like the weather, Nolan isn't thinking about the odds.

"I don't know who figures out those odds," Nolan said, "they sure aren't reliable. Minnesota was picked by seven over us and you know what happened."

Stein Has Hopes Of Pro Football

Karl Stein of San Anselmo, the Drake High School alumnus who did so many great things at University of Montana, from where he will be graduated next June, would love to play professional football.

He told me this the other day when he lunched with John Hodgen of Novato and other members of the Marin chapter of the San Francisco 49er Goal Rushers Club.

Karl set all kinds of interception records in his junior and senior seasons at Montana and is a virtual cinch to be grabbed by some pro club in the draft next month. I'd love to see the 49ers or Raiders pluck him just to keep him in the Bay Area so that we all could enjoy his great talents. Karl, as you know, made first team on the college division of the Kodak All-American team.

Happy New Year, Karl.

SAM YOUNG of the 49er Goal Rushers went to the Cow Palace bright and early Monday for his tickets to next Sunday's and was amazed at the crowd. "The lines were four blocks long," said Sam. "There were two lines going to the box office and they each looked like a mile long."

RUSSELL PATRICK HODGES, my old buddy with the golden tonsils, had his handsome mug pictured in the latest issue of Giants Jottings, the official organ of the San Francisco Giants. Hodges, one of the finest men you'd ever want to meet, will be profiled in this Saturday's Marin Magazine in a fine piece written by Davi Einstein of our staff. Don't miss it.

Hodges, as you know, recently retired as voice of the Giants and all I can say is that I will miss his "Bye, Bye, Baby!" classic.

SPEAKING OF the Giants, their Boosters Club president, Allan B. Murray of Marin, already has a tour set up for spring training in Phoenix in March. Interested? Just call Al at GTS Travel Service, San Rafael.

IF YOU HAVE nothing to do New Year's Day you might join the Water Skiers of Marin at their 10th annual "Ice Cube Day" outing at Mira Monte Marina, north of Novato.

Open to the public, the event will start at 11 a.m. and will include the exciting sport of water skiing without the benefit of a wet suit.

Cold? "It's murder," says Jaap Suyderhoud of San Anselmo, coordinator of the event. "In fact, it's so cold it burns. I think I'll just watch this year."

Me too.

Rangers Defeat Seals

NEW YORK (UPI)—A tired Earl Ingarfield shrugged his shoulder as he walked from the California Seals' dressing room following their Tuesday night 3-2 loss to the New York Rangers.

The victory game the Rangers first place in the National Hockey League's East by a single point over Boston. It was their 19th consecutive home game this season with a loss and 21 in a row over two seasons for a Ranger record.

The home court is exactly what the Seals are missing most.

"There's no way we can beat this schedule," said Ingarfield. "I looked it up and we have one game out of nine at home starting last Saturday. We spent six hours in the air and could not get any ice time for practice yesterday. It's a wonder the Rangers didn't run us out of the building."

General manager-coach Fred Glover indicated he was as pleased as it was possible to be with any loss. The Seals came from behind 3-0 in the second period to cut the final margin to 3-2. Particularly impressive was the work of Don O'Donoghue who, while working on a line with Dennis Hextall and Gary Croteau, fashioned California's first goal. It was unassisted as O'Donoghue went the length of the ice after breaking away from Ranger defenseman Arnie Brown.

The tally was Don's second in six games since his recall from Providence in the American Hockey League.

"We did something a bit different tonight," said Glover. "I used four lines, working Ted Hampson with Billy Hicke and Gary Jarrett, Ingarfield with Ernie Hicke and Gerry Ehman and Dennis Hextall with Tony Featherstone and Norm Ferguson on one combination and Croteau and O'Donoghue on another.

"Hextall seemed to bear up well under the double duty," he continued. "And everyone else was fresh out there at all times."

Glover indicated that this aided the Seals' forechecking—a department in which they had been woefully lacking. He expressed disappointment at the loss because a victory would have put the Seals into sixth place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

CRAM SESSION FOR NEW WEST PLAYER

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Long Beach State fullback Leon Burns has made his first appearance at the West Shrine team training camp.

Head coach Eddie Crowder of Colorado said Burns, who arrived Tuesday to fill in for the injured Willie Armstrong of Grambling, had no trouble making the adjustment to the squad.

Crowder explained that his coaching staff gave Burns a "cram session" and Burns handled his assignments in a flawless manner.

Crowder has refused to name a starting backfield for the game Saturday in the Oakland Coliseum. But sideline observers believe the starters would include quarterback Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara, Bo Cornell of Washington at halfback, USC's Bob Chandler at flanker and Burns at fullback.

Paul Brown AFC Coach Of The Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—With the help of the National Football League's realignment, Paul Brown lopped two years off his five-year plan. And he was named the American Football Conference's Coach of the Year by United Press International for the second straight year.

The 62-year-old Brown said when he took over the expansion Cincinnati Bengals in 1968 that he had a five-year plan to make his club a contender. He got a two-year jump when the NFL and the American Football League merged into six divisions.

Brown's Bengals righted themselves after an appalling 1-6 start this season and rushed victorious through their remaining seven games to beat out Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Houston for the AFC Central crown.

Baltimore handed the Bengals a 17-0 shutout last Saturday to end Cincinnati's Super Bowl dream, but Brown had taken the Bengals farther than any NFL expansion team had gone before in a comparable period of time.

Brown gained great satsifaction in edging Cleveland for the Central title. He founded the Cleveland Browns in the old All-America Conference in 1946, and led them to four straight AAC titles before the team joined the NFL.

He took the Browns to the NFL title in 1950, their first season in the league, and went on to win six more conference crowns and two more world titles before he was dismissed by Cleveland owner Art Modell in 1962.

Brown's overall record in the AAC from 1946 through 1949 wae 52-4-3 and his overall record with the Browns in the NFL from 1950 through 1962 was 115-49-6.

Brown, who has accumulated 311 victories in 36 years of coaching, made a basic decision in 1968 to stock the Bengals with young players. His new team had a 3-11 cord in their first season and a 4-9-1 mark last year.

Brown is the second coach to win the award two straight years. Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills won in 1964 and 1965.

Redwood Frosh Reach Finals Of Tournament

The Giants will meet Serra, which yesterday defeated St. Patrick's, 56-28, in the title game tonight at 7 o'clock, while the Wildcats go against St. Pat's for third place at 5.

In losers bracket games yesterday, Bishop O'Dowd beat Bellarmine, 45-36, and Riordan walloped Justin, 70-36. The losers of those games play today at 1 p.m., and the winners square off for the consolation trophy at 3.

Famed Track Coach Hamilton Succumbs

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Brutus Hamilton, a 1920 Olympic Medalist in the gruelling decathlon who moulded track and field champions for three decades at the University of California, is dead.

Hamilton succumbed at the age of 70 on Monday in an Oakland hospital from massive aortic hemorrhaging after being admitted during the weekend. Funeral services are pending.

The silver-haired Hamilton retired in 1965 after 32 years of coaching track at Berkeley and three stints as a U.S. Olympic Games coach.

He was born in Peculiar, Mo., in 1900 and won the silver medal 20 years later in the decathlon at the 1920 Olympic Games in Antwerp, Belgium, after capturing the National AAU title that year.

The decathlon, in which athletes compete in 10 events in two days, is a gruelling determination of the best all-around track performer.

Hamilton, regarded by many as the top technician in track, was decathlon coach for the U.S. Olympic teams in 1932 and 1936.

He took Jim Bausch, his own protege from Kansas, to Olympic and world records in the Los Angeles games and Glenn Morris to the same marks in the Berlin games.

In 1952, he was head track coach for the American teams that went to the Helsinki games.

Hamilton, who took over the track coaching job at Berkeley in 1933, took his final assignment as a coach in the summer of 1965 when he led a team of American athletes to Kiev, Russia, for a dual meet.

At California, his teams set 20 world records and 12 collegiate marks.

NO PAPER LIONS

Raiders Save For Biggies

OAKLAND (UPI)—On paper, the Oakland Raiders have the poorest defense of the four teams still in the running for the Super Bowl.

When it comes to the "must" games, however, the Raiders can be as tough as any team in pro football.

"We play better when it counts," linebacker Dan Conners said.

During the season, Oakland gave up 293 points while the offense scored 300.

The other three playoff teams have a much better defensive record.

Baltimore scored 87 points more than it gave up while San Francisco and Dallas scored 85 and 78 more, respectively.

But when the Raiders needed a win over Kansas City to capture the American Football Conference West division title, the Raider defense rose up to hold the Chiefs to six points.

Last Sunday in the AFC playoffs, the Raider defense stalled a strong Miami running attack and gave the Dolphins only 14 points.

"We play better with a challenge," defensive end BEN Davidson said.

The Raiders will have enough of a challenge Sunday when they meet Baltimore on the Colts' home ground for the AFC title.

The Raider defense respects Baltimore, since Oakland has met the Colts three times in exhibition games and came out on the losing end each time.

Most of all, the Raiders respect the Colts' quarterback Johnny Unitas, who can make an opponent's afternoon miserable by picking a defense apart.

"Baltimore will be tougher than Kansas City," offensive guard Gene Upshaw said. "Both of us want to avenge losses in the Super Bowl. Look what the Colts did to Cincinnati, they just kicked them in the pants 17-0.

The Raiders won't be out for a kick in the pants Sunday.

There are only three defensive starters on this year's team who didn't start three years ago in the Super Bowl — when the Raiders were kicked in the pants by Green Bay, 33-14.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Redwood Stuns St. Ignatius; San Marin, San Rafael Win

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Watching the Redwood High School Giants last night in Larkspur, it was hard to believe they lost four of their first six games this year. Because, playing the kind of basketball that has made them a perennial powerhouse in the Marin County Athletic League, they knocked off seventh ranked St. Ignatius High of San Francisco, 52-44.

In other preseason games yesterday involving MCAL teams, San Marin dumped Arcata, 77-63, San Rafael defeated DeAnza, 51-44, and Drake lost to Lincoln, 66-61.

Redwood took command early against the Wildcats of San Francisco's Catholic League, and although they faltered and fell behind at the half, the Giants looked like winners all the way. They outscored S.I. in the third quarter, 18-10, and held a safe, 38-32 lead at the end of that period. The victory was their fourth in a row, and gives them a 6-4 record.

The Giants' offense centered around the team's leading scorer, forward Scott Trobbe, who pumped in 20 points, but the engineer of the victory was pivot man Steve McGee. He scored only nine points, but was instrumental in making Redwood's fast break effective; at times he seemed to be at both ends of the court at once.

When Redwood's defense was most effective, in the opening and third periods, the Wildcats were reduced to unloading shots from way outside. Dan Nevin, who led S.I. with 11 points, hit four field goals from beyond 20 feet, but his percentage was not good. And when the Wildcats missed, Trobbe and McGee and Dave Tikker were waiting for the rebounds. Tikker, like McGee, finished with nine points.

S.I. went ahead shortly before the end of the first half, but never led by more than two. They lost that margin for good midway through the third quarter, when Trobbe hit a jumper from just inside the key, and seconds later Bert Farb cashed in a three point play to give the Giants a 34-30 lead. They never looked back.

The Wildcats came in to the game with 10 wins against a single loss, and one of their victories came against highly regarded Tamalpais. So Redwood all of a sudden jumps squarely into the picture for the MCAL season, as a threat to win it all.

San Marin trailed Arcata at halftime, 35-33. Behind center Dana LaFerriere, however, the Mustangs of Novato surged ahead in the third quarter, and blew the unfortunate Northerners off the court with 28 points in the final quarter.

LaFerriere led all scorers with 34 points, a slightly above-average effort for him, and was backed by teammates Greg Mazeres with 11 points, and Hoza Wright with 10.

San Rafael gained the consolation finals of the Pinole Spartan Holiday classic by beating De Anza. The Bulldogs lost their first round game to Pinole, 78-62, but last night appeared sharp. They outscored the Dons, 16-8 in the second quarter and guarded their lead the rest of the way.

Jim Thorne had 16 points to pace the victory, followed by Mark Farrar with 10 and Wayne Lechner with nine.

Now Official: Title Bout March 8 in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The heavyweight title fight between Joe Frazier, the recognized champion, and Cassius Clay, the deposed champion, at Madison Square Garden on March 8 became official today at noon.

A news conference was held at Toots Shor for the signing of the contracts that will guarantee each of the unbeaten Philadelphians $2.5-million for their showdown in the biggest sports attraction in history. The fight has a potential gross of $10-million, and just a single ringside seat is expected to cost $150, or more.

The biggest payday in history might easily be the last for Frazier—and Clay, too.

Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, said during the negotiations, "Joe told me that he wants to retire, and that's fine with me. Win, lose or draw, it could be his last fight."

Clay has said, "After I beat Frazier, I'm going to hang up the gloves. There'll be nowhere to go from there."

Certainly it would be a tough act for any fighter or promoter to follow. If Frazier and Clay do decide to go through with their decisions, the job of following their act will probably be left to young George Foreman, who has carved his way through the contenders since winning the Olympic heavyweight title in 1968.

After Frazier and Clay, Foreman will be the next champion," Durham stated bluntly.

Foreman is following the path already laid down by Clay, the 1960 Olympic light heavyweight champion, and Frazier, the 1964 Olympic heavyweight champion. Like them, he also is unbeaten.

Clay, who will be 29 next month, has 31 consecutive victories, including 25 knockouts, and Frazier, 26, has won 26 straight with 23 kayoes.

Never before have an unbeaten former champion and an unbeaten current champion fought for the undisputed title. Most former champions were far past their prime when they tried to regain their titles, and Floyd Patterson was the only one to succeed of the many who tried.

Alcindor Leads West Stars Team

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, and Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers, its No. 1 playmaker, were named Tuesday to the West squad which will play the East in the circuit's annual All-Star game, Jan. 12, in San Diego, Calif.

Named to the starting five along with Alcindor and West were Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns, Jerry Lucas of the San Francisco Warriors and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons.

Completing the nucleus of eight players selected by voting among sportswriters and sportscasters in all the NBA cities were Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers, Oscar Robertson of the Bucks and Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls.

The nine coaches in the Western Conference will round our the squad of 14 by naming six more players. Since each NBA club must be represented by at least one player and not more than three, the coaches will select at least one player from San Diego, Seattle and Portland.

49ers To Be Up Against A Rugged Cowboy Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) The San Francisco Forty Niners have proved they can score in any kind of weather. Now they have to prove they can score against the Dallas defense.

Last Sunday, San Francisco traveled to cold weather country Minnesota, but the low temperatures didn't seem to bother quarterback John Brodie as he led the Forty Niners to an upset 17-14 win over the Vikings.

Two weeks ago, the Forty Niners exploded for 38 points on a wet and muddy field in Oakland against the Raiders.

It may rain Sunday when San Francisco meets the Cowboys in Kezar Stadium, but the weather is not what's worrying Forty Niner coach Dick Nolan.

"Any defense that stops Detroit as Dallas did last week (5-0) has to be tough," Nolan said. "We certainly don't expect a picnic."

With the way the Forty Niner defense has been playing lately, Nolan should be satisfied with 24 points when his club meets Dallas for the National Football Conference championship.

After watching the Minnesota game films, Forty Niner defensive line coach Paul Wiggin called it "our best defensive effort of the year."

Wiggin gave much of the credit for the improved defensive line to the early development of ends Tommy Hart and rookie Cedrick Hardman.

"Hart, Hardman, Bill Belk and Stan Hindman give us four defensive ends capable of playing on any club in the league," Wiggin said.

San Francisco is a four point favorite to beat the Cowboys, but like the weather, Nolan isn't thinking about the odds.

"I don't know who figures out those odds," Nolan said, "they sure aren't reliable. Minnesota was picked by seven over us and you know what happened."

Stein Has Hopes Of Pro Football

Karl Stein of San Anselmo, the Drake High School alumnus who did so many great things at University of Montana, from where he will be graduated next June, would love to play professional football.

He told me this the other day when he lunched with John Hodgen of Novato and other members of the Marin chapter of the San Francisco 49er Goal Rushers Club.

Karl set all kinds of interception records in his junior and senior seasons at Montana and is a virtual cinch to be grabbed by some pro club in the draft next month. I'd love to see the 49ers or Raiders pluck him just to keep him in the Bay Area so that we all could enjoy his great talents. Karl, as you know, made first team on the college division of the Kodak All-American team.

Happy New Year, Karl.

SAM YOUNG of the 49er Goal Rushers went to the Cow Palace bright and early Monday for his tickets to next Sunday's and was amazed at the crowd. "The lines were two blocks long," said Sam. "There were two lines going to the box office and they each looked like a mile long."

RUSSELL PATRICK HODGES, my old buddy with the golden tonsils, had his handsome mug pictured in the latest issue of Giants Jottings, the official organ of the San Francisco Giants. Hodges, one of the finest men you'd ever want to meet, will be profiled in this Saturday's Marin Magazine in a fine piece written by Davi Einstein of our staff. Don't miss it.

Hodges, as you know, recently retired as voice of the Giants and all I can say is that I will miss his "Bye, Bye, Baby!" classic.

SPEAKING OF the Giants, their Boosters Club president, Allan B. Murray of Marin, already has a tour set up for spring training in Phoenix in March. Interested? Just call Al at GTS Travel Service, San Rafael.

IF YOU HAVE nothing to do New Year's Day you might join the Water Skiers of Marin at their 10th annual "Ice Cube Day" outing at Mira Monte Marina, north of Novato.

Open to the public, the event will start at 11 a.m. and will include the exciting sport of water skiing without the benefit of a wet suit.

Cold? "It's murder," says Jaap Suyderhoud of San Anselmo, coordinator of the event. "In fact, it's so cold it burns. I think I'll just watch this year."

Me too.

Rangers Defeat Seals

NEW YORK (UPI)—A tired Earl Ingarfield shrugged his shoulder as he walked from the California Seals' dressing room following their Tuesday night 3-2 loss to the New York Rangers.

The victory game the Rangers first place in the National Hockey League's East by a single point over Boston. It was their 19th consecutive home game this season with a loss and 21 in a row over two seasons for a Ranger record.

The home court is exactly what the Seals are missing most.

"There's no way we can beat this schedule," said Ingarfield. "I looked it up and we have one game out of nine at home starting last Saturday. We spent six hours in the air and could not get any ice time for practice yesterday. It's a wonder the Rangers didn't run us out of the building."

General manager-coach Fred Glover indicated he was as pleased as it was possible to be with any loss. The Seals came from behind 3-0 in the second period to cut the final margin to 3-2. Particularly impressive was the work of Don O'Donoghue who, while working on a line with Dennis Hextall and Gary Croteau, fashioned California's first goal. It was unassisted as O'Donoghue went the length of the ice after breaking away from Ranger defenseman Arnie Brown.

The tally was Don's second in six games since his recall from Providence in the American Hockey League.

"We did something a bit different tonight," said Glover. "I used four lines, working Ted Hampson with Billy Hicke and Gary Jarrett, Ingarfield with Ernie Hicke and Gerry Ehman and Dennis Hextall with Tony Featherstone and Norm Ferguson on one combination and Croteau and O'Donoghue on another.

"Hextall seemed to bear up well under the double duty," he continued. "And everyone else was fresh out there at all times."

Glover indicated that this aided the Seals' forechecking—a department in which they had been woefully lacking. He expressed disappointment at the loss because a victory would have put the Seals into sixth place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

CRAM SESSION FOR NEW WEST PLAYER

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Long Beach State fullback Leon Burns has made his first appearance at the West Shrine team training camp.

Head coach Eddie Crowder of Colorado said Burns, who arrived Tuesday to fill in for the injured Willie Armstrong of Grambling, had no trouble making the adjustment to the squad.

Crowder explained that his coaching staff gave Burns a "cram session" and Burns handled his assignments in a flawless manner.

Crowder has refused to name a starting backfield for the game Saturday in the Oakland Coliseum. But sideline observers believe the starters would include quarterback Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara, Bo Cornell of Washington at halfback, USC's Bob Chandler at flanker and Burns at fullback.

Paul Brown AFC Coach Of The Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—With the help of the National Football League's realignment, Paul Brown lopped two years off his five-year plan. And he was named the American Football Conference's Coach of the Year by United Press International for the second straight year.

The 62-year-old Brown said when he took over the expansion Cincinnati Bengals in 1968 that he had a five-year plan to make his club a contender. He got a two-year jump when the NFL and the American Football League merged into six divisions.

Brown's Bengals righted themselves after an appalling 1-6 start this season and rushed victorious through their remaining seven games to beat out Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Houston for the AFC Central crown.

Baltimore handed the Bengals a 17-0 shutout last Saturday to end Cincinnati's Super Bowl dream, but Brown had taken the Bengals farther than any NFL expansion team had gone before in a comparable period of time.

Brown gained great satsifaction in edging Cleveland for the Central title. He founded the Cleveland Browns in the old All-America Conference in 1946, and led them to four straight AAC titles before the team joined the NFL.

He took the Browns to the NFL title in 1950, their first season in the league, and went on to win six more conference crowns and two more world titles before he was dismissed by Cleveland owner Art Modell in 1962.

Brown's overall record in the AAC from 1946 through 1949 wae 52-4-3 and his overall record with the Browns in the NFL from 1950 through 1962 was 115-49-6.

Brown, who has accumulated 311 victories in 36 years of coaching, made a basic decision in 1968 to stock the Bengals with young players. His new team had a 3-11 cord in their first season and a 4-9-1 mark last year.

Brown is the second coach to win the award two straight years. Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills won in 1964 and 1965.

Redwood Frosh Reach Finals Of Tournament

In losers bracket games yesterday, Bishop O'Dowd beat Bellarmine, 45-36, and Riordan walloped Justin, 70-36. The losers of those games play today at 1 p.m., and the winners square off for the consolation trophy at 3.

Named to the starting five along with Alcindor and West were Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns, Jerry Lucas of the San Francisco Warriors and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons.

Completing the nucleus of eight players selected by voting among sportswriters and sportscasters in all the NBA cities were Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers, Oscar Robertson of the Bucks and Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls.

The nine coaches in the Western Conference will round our the squad of 14 by naming six more players. Since each NBA club must be represented by at least one player and not more than three, the coaches will select at least one player from San Diego, Seattle and Portland.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Some Terminology Is Still Baffling

The salty speech of the old time mariner some of which has crept into the terminology of modern day boating has resisted change probably more than any other part of the language. However, with every generation, old expressions of the sea have less and less meaning.

But there's one ancient and antiquated bit of terminology which baffles many boatmen, but it stays with us as strongly as ever. It's the system of describing the angles or arcs of a circle through which navigation lights are visible.

In every system of measurement used in day-to-day living, a circle is broken up into 360 degrees. Everybody must have learned in school that a right angle, a quarter of a circle, is 90 degrees.

However, when it comes to discribing navigation lights, we have to revert to an archaic system, several hundred years old, in which the 360 - degree circle of the compass is broken up into 32 "points" Forget about degrees.

Most boatmen comprehend that the four main points of the compass are north, south, east and west. In between these are other points, northeast, southeast, etc. And between these are still others, such as north by northeast, north northeast, northeast by north etc., and they make up 32 points in all.

It's a complicated system and although still used or accepted by many oceangoing seamen, most modern boatmen have never even heard the names for all 32 points of the compass.

But it naturally follows that if the 360-degree circle is divided into 32 parts, each must be 11 1/4 degrees. So one "point" of the compass represents 11 1/4 degrees.

All this was brought up by a couple of questions I've been asked which can't be answered without explaining the "point" system:

Q. The red and green lights on a boat are described as 10-point lights. What does that mean?

A. The lights must be visible from a line dead ahead of the boat through an angle of 10 points. Ten points represents 112 1/2 degrees (10x11 1/4) . . . just a little more than a quarter of a circle.

Q. What is the purpose of a white bow light of 20 points and a stern light of 12 points?

A. If you notice, the 20 and 12 add up to 32 points, a full circle. If you draw a diagram of navigation lights arranged this way, it is apparent that on a full broadside view, only the white bow light and a colored side light are visible. It is to show the relative bearing or position of a passing boat.

Q. I see sailing craft with red and green lights on the mast. What do they signify?

A. This is a relatively new idea of carrying two colored lights at the masthead and is good. It makes a sailing craft instantly identifiable at night. The colored lights . . . red over green are 20 point light . . 225 degrees.

Q. Where can I learn all about (navigation) lights? I'm taking a cruise to the Bahamas and Puerto Rico.

A. The text I like best is Chapman's Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling. Other good ones are Basic Boating by Andrews and Russell, or Basic Seamanship by Walliser.

Q. In a column last year you said the compass is divided into 32 points. My understanding is that it is 96 points . ?

A. This was done to "simplify" the compass and allow ships to steer more accurate courses Each of the 32 points was divided into halves and quarters. The naming of the new division became a nightmare. For instance they came up with names like this: "south east by east a quarter east." All the navies in the world and most merchant marine services have dropped all this nonsense and use degrees.

Women Stars In Net Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A total of 15 of the world's top tennis stars have been signed for the Jan. 6-9 British Motors Women's Pro Tennis Championships at Civic Auditorium.

A sixteenth name will be added when the draw is held this weekend or after a set of elimination matches Monday.

The four top-seeded women in the $15,000 event, the richest ever held for women tennis stars, are Billie Jean King, Long Beach, Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, Nancy Richey Gunter, San Angelo, Tex., and Ann Jones, Birmingham, England.

Might Be Rainy Game In Kezar

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Forty Niners and the Dallas Cowboys may do battle in the rain Sunday in the last pro football game scheduled for Kezar Stadium in Golden Gate Park.

The Weather Bureau said there is a chance of rain "early Friday and again by Sunday afternoon." If that holds true, the East-West Shrine game at the Oakland Coliseum Saturday should be under dry skies.

Kezar will be used primarily for high school sports next year when the Niners move to an expanded and artificially-turfed Candlestick Park.

TENNIS

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Australia won its fifth Women's Federation Cup tennis title Tuesday as 19-year-old Evonne Goolagong and Grand Slam champion Margaret Court led a 3-0 sweep over Great Britain in steaming 122 degree tevperature at the Royal King's Park Court.

Miss Goolagong's youth proved decisive in her 6-4, 6-1 singles victory over Virginia Wade while the 28-year-old Mrs. Court had to battle from behind to defeat Ann Jones 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

NBA ROUNDUP

Big Cavaliers Crowd Can't Prevent Loss

By United Press International

The Cleveland Cavaliers may look back on Dec. 29, 1970 as a night on which they lost a game but saved a franchise.

The weak sisters of the National Basketball Association in their first season, both on the court and at the gate, the Cavaliers faced the Milwaukee Bucks with a two-game winning streak—and drew 7,682 fans, the largest crowd in their history.

The Cavaliers lost to the Bucks and Lew Alcindor, 119-97, but not before they gave the homeotwn fans a thrill by drawing to within four points with 7:56 left in the second period. Then the Bucks' fast break proved too much and Milwaukee ran off a 24-11 spurt which produced a 59-42 halftime lead.

Alcindor and Bob Dandridge scored 23 points each and Greg Smith had 20 for the Bucks while John Johnson led the Cavaliers with 22. The victory raised the Bucks' record to 29-6 and the loss dropped the Cavaliers' mark to 5-38.

Bob Lanier scored five points in the last two minutes to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 99-97 triumph over the Atlanta Hawks in a game the Hawks played under protest on the grounds that Detroit coach Bill Van Breda Kolff left his team's bench area and counted out the clock during the final 23 seconds. The victory was the sixth in eight games for the Pistons while the loss was the fifth in a row for the Hawks.

Archie Clarke scored 35 points and Bill Cunningham had 29 as the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Buffalo Braves, 124-113. The 76ers trailed by as many as nine points with less than two minutes left in the third period but rallied for an 84-84 tie at the end of the session and outscored the Braves, 40-29, in the fourth quarter. Bob Kauffman had 22 points for the Braves.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 34 points and Jerry West added 27 as the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the Chicago Bulls, 126-117. Bob Love had 31 and Jerry Sloan 27 for the Bulls. It was the Lakers' third straight victory.

Rookie Dave Cowens sank two free throws with 15 seconds left in the game to give the Boston Celtics a 110-108 win over the San Diego Rockets. Elvin Hayes scored 37 points, including 14 in the second period during which the Rockets opened up a 53-42 lead.

A Quick Trip For Warriors

NEW YORK (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors are in New York City just long enough to unfasten seat belts and—they hope—to come out on top of the New York Knicks today in Madison Square Garden before hopping on another plane to Boston.

The Warriors' current road trip through Milwaukee and Cincinnati wasn't fruitful until they reached Atlanta Monday and broke a three-game losing streak against the Hawks.

2 O'Clock Start For 49er Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Football Conference championship game Sunday between the Baltimore Colts and the Oakland Raiders at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium will start at 11 a.m. PST, and the National Football Conference title contest at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium between the Forty Niners and the Dallas Cowboys will begin at 2 p.m. PST.

Sunday's winners will meet in the Super Bowl at Miami Jan. 17 at 2 p.m. EST.

Marin Tars Near League Opener

By DAVID EINSTEIN

College of Marin's basketball team plays only twice, tonight's 8 o'clock alumni game in Kentfield and Saturday night in Aptsos against Cabrillo College, before the start of the Camino Norte Conference schedule next week.

The Tars' record stands at 13 - 1, and in the first poll of the season regarding junior college teams, which will be announced later this week, the Kentfield club will rank in the state's top 10.

It is curious, therefore, and perplexing, that the Marin pressbook, written last fall, should have this to say: "The coaching staff at Marin faces a unique situation this season in that they do not have a returning letterman from last year's team. Hit hard by graduation, the Tars are in a rebuilding year."

John Panagakis, a coach in the traditional mold not given to overstatement, said before the season started, "I've never had a situation like this. Without any returning lettermen, there's a problem of getting the kids to work together."

Not much of a problem, it turns out. After sweeping three games to win their own tournament two weeks ago, Panagakis said, "We've been coming along rapidly. The players share the ball and they work well together as a unit."

Evidence of that is the spread in scoring among the players; three men are averaging in double figures guard Joe Smith at 18.8 points per game, center Roosevelt Green at 18.2, and forward Mike Peden at 10 points even.

With that kind of balanced scoring, the Tars have consistently run away from their opposition. To date they have averaged 77 points a game, while holding their opponents to 63. Of their 13 wins, none has come by less than six points, and some have been devastating. They trounced Napa by 34 points, Yuba by 32, the USF Frosh by 23 and Ohlone by 22.

There is no real secret to Marin's success in the nonconference season. The fact is they have two superstars in Smith and Green, and have built a near-professional style offense around them. Green controls the game from the inside in the manner of an NBA center, passing off and taking percentage shots, and Smith, like pro guard, works hard to get to his favorite spots on the floor, and has a feather-perfect touch when he shoots.

The forwards, Peden and Ed Herrnberger, compliment those two with formidable outside shooting; they'll gladly kill you if you leave them open.

Then there's Ron Small, the other guard, whom Panagakis calls the best defensive player on the club, and Charlie Flynn, a perfect sixth man who has the knack for making the big defensive play that turns things around.

In fact, the Tars have no apparent weakness. And they will get stronger after the Christmas break, when former Tamalpais High star Floyd Jackson joins the team. At 6-foot-e, ane with an uncanny ability to jump, Jackson just has to break into the starting lineup the problem is where, and that's one of the sweeter problems Panagakis will have to face this year.

Stanford, Ohio State Finish Heavy Drills

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Ohio State and Stanford football teams are through with heavy workouts today in preparation for their Rose Bowl game New Year's Day.

Final contact work Tuesday at East Los Angeles College produced two Buckeye casualties which Hayes appeared to believe were not serious.

Hayes said the Buckeyes will retire New Year's Eve to a monastery in nearby Sierra Madre, a custom of Big Ten teams bent on getting away from the celebration in the hotel where they've been staying.

Ralston, who suddenly switched this week from Cal State Long Beach to a secret practice field, said the Indians worked for an hour and a half Tuesday morning in helmets, shoulder pads and sweat suits.

They took a breather in the afternoon, watching whales and porpoises and other denizens of the deep cavort at Marneland.

"We're physically prepared," said Ralston. "Now we must get mentally prepared."

Ralston was asked if he thought his players could get "too high emotionally" for the favored Buckeyes who were undefeated during the regular season.

"I would hope they would be high," said Ralston. "They might get a little jittery and drop a pass but I'm sure hey'll shake it off. We want them to be at the highest possible emotional pitch."

The salty speech of the old time mariner some of which has crept into the terminology of modern day boating has resisted change probably more than any other part of the language. However, with every generation, old expressions of the sea have less and less meaning.

But there's one ancient and antiquated bit of terminology which baffles many boatmen, but it stays with us as strongly as ever. It's the system of describing the angles or arcs of a circle through which navigation lights are visible.

In every system of measurement used in day-to-day living, a circle is broken up into 360 degrees. Everybody must have learned in school that a right angle, a quarter of a circle, is 90 degrees.

However, when it comes to discribing navigation lights, we have to revert to an archaic system, several hundred years old, in which the 360 - degree circle of the compass is broken up into 32 "points" Forget about degrees.

Most boatmen comprehend that the four main points of the compass are north, south, east and west. In between these are other points, northeast, southeast, etc. And between these are still others, such as north by northeast, north northeast, northeast by north etc., and they make up 32 points in all.

It's a complicated system and although still used or accepted by many oceangoing seamen, most modern boatmen have never even heard the names for all 32 points of the compass.

But it naturally follows that if the 360-degree circle is divided into 32 parts, each must be 11 1/4 degrees. So one "point" of the compass represents 11 1/4 degrees.

All this was brought up by a couple of questions I've been asked which can't be answered without explaining the "point" system:

Q. The red and green lights on a boat are described as 10-point lights. What does that mean?

A. The lights must be visible from a line dead ahead of the boat through an angle of 10 points. Ten points represents 112 1/2 degrees (10x11 1/4) . . . just a little more than a quarter of a circle.

Q. What is the purpose of a white bow light of 20 points and a stern light of 12 points?

A. If you notice, the 20 and 12 add up to 32 points, a full circle. If you draw a diagram of navigation lights arranged this way, it is apparent that on a full broadside view, only the white bow light and a colored side light are visible. It is to show the relative bearing or position of a passing boat.

Q. I see sailing craft with red and green lights on the mast. What do they signify?

A. This is a relatively new idea of carrying two colored lights at the masthead and is good. It makes a sailing craft instantly identifiable at night. The colored lights . . . red over green are 20 point light . . 225 degrees.

Q. Where can I learn all about (navigation) lights? I'm taking a cruise to the Bahamas and Puerto Rico.

A. The text I like best is Chapman's Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling. Other good ones are Basic Boating by Andrews and Russell, or Basic Seamanship by Walliser.

Q. In a column last year you said the compass is divided into 32 points. My understanding is that it is 96 points . ?

A. This was done to "simplify" the compass and allow ships to steer more accurate courses Each of the 32 points was divided into halves and quarters. The naming of the new division became a nightmare. For instance they came up with names like this: "south east by east a quarter east." All the navies in the world and most merchant marine services have dropped all this nonsense and use degrees.

Women Stars In Net Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A total of 15 of the world's top tennis stars have been signed for the Jan. 6-9 British Motors Women's Pro Tennis Championships at Civic Auditorium.

A sixteenth name will be added when the draw is held this weekend or after a set of elimination matches Monday.

The four top-seeded women in the $15,000 event, the richest ever held for women tennis stars, are Billie Jean King, Long Beach, Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, Nancy Richey Gunter, San Angelo, Tex., and Ann Jones, Birmingham, England.

Might Be Rainy Game In Kezar

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Forty Niners and the Dallas Cowboys may do battle in the rain Sunday in the last pro football game scheduled for Kezar Stadium in Golden Gate Park.

The Weather Bureau said there is a chance of rain "early Friday and again by Sunday afternoon." If that holds true, the East-West Shrine game at the Oakland Coliseum Saturday should be under dry skies.

Kezar will be used primarily for high school sports next year when the Niners move to an expanded and artificially-turfed Candlestick Park.

TENNIS

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Australia won its fifth Women's Federation Cup tennis title Tuesday as 19-year-old Evonne Goolagong and Grand Slam champion Margaret Court led a 3-0 sweep over Great Britain in steaming 122 degree tevperature at the Royal King's Park Court.

Miss Goolagong's youth proved decisive in her 6-4, 6-1 singles victory over Virginia Wade while the 28-year-old Mrs. Court had to battle from behind to defeat Ann Jones 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

NBA ROUNDUP

Big Cavaliers Crowd Can't Prevent Loss

By United Press International

The Cleveland Cavaliers may look back on Dec. 29, 1970 as a night on which they lost a game but saved a franchise.

The weak sisters of the National Basketball Association in their first season, both on the court and at the gate, the Cavaliers faced the Milwaukee Bucks with a two-game winning streak—and drew 7,682 fans, the largest crowd in their history.

The Cavaliers lost to the Bucks and Lew Alcindor, 119-97, but not before they gave the homeotwn fans a thrill by drawing to within four points with 7:56 left in the second period. Then the Bucks' fast break proved too much and Milwaukee ran off a 24-11 spurt which produced a 59-42 halftime lead.

Alcindor and Bob Dandridge scored 23 points each and Greg Smith had 20 for the Bucks while John Johnson led the Cavaliers with 22. The victory raised the Bucks' record to 29-6 and the loss dropped the Cavaliers' mark to 5-38.

Bob Lanier scored five points in the last two minutes to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 99-97 triumph over the Atlanta Hawks in a game the Hawks played under protest on the grounds that Detroit coach Bill Van Breda Kolff left his team's bench area and counted out the clock during the final 23 seconds. The victory was the sixth in eight games for the Pistons while the loss was the fifth in a row for the Hawks.

Archie Clarke scored 35 points and Bill Cunningham had 29 as the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Buffalo Braves, 124-113. The 76ers trailed by as many as nine points with less than two minutes left in the third period but rallied for an 84-84 tie at the end of the session and outscored the Braves, 40-29, in the fourth quarter. Bob Kauffman had 22 points for the Braves.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 34 points and Jerry West added 27 as the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the Chicago Bulls, 126-117. Bob Love had 31 and Jerry Sloan 27 for the Bulls. It was the Lakers' third straight victory.

Rookie Dave Cowens sank two free throws with 15 seconds left in the game to give the Boston Celtics a 110-108 win over the San Diego Rockets. Elvin Hayes scored 37 points, including 14 in the second period during which the Rockets opened up a 53-42 lead.

A Quick Trip For Warriors

NEW YORK (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors are in New York City just long enough to unfasten seat belts and—they hope—to come out on top of the New York Knicks today in Madison Square Garden before hopping on another plane to Boston.

The Warriors' current road trip through Milwaukee and Cincinnati wasn't fruitful until they reached Atlanta Monday and broke a three-game losing streak against the Hawks.

2 O'Clock Start For 49er Game

Marin Tars Near League Opener

By DAVID EINSTEIN

College of Marin's basketball team plays only twice, tonight's 8 o'clock alumni game in Kentfield and Saturday night in Aptsos against Cabrillo College, before the start of the Camino Norte Conference schedule next week.

The Tars' record stands at 13 - 1, and in the first poll of the season regarding junior college teams, which will be announced later this week, the Kentfield club will rank in the state's top 10.

It is curious, therefore, and perplexing, that the Marin pressbook, written last fall, should have this to say: "The coaching staff at Marin faces a unique situation this season in that they do not have a returning letterman from last year's team. Hit hard by graduation, the Tars are in a rebuilding year."

John Panagakis, a coach in the traditional mold not given to overstatement, said before the season started, "I've never had a situation like this. Without any returning lettermen, there's a problem of getting the kids to work together."

Not much of a problem, it turns out. After sweeping three games to win their own tournament two weeks ago, Panagakis said, "We've been coming along rapidly. The players share the ball and they work well together as a unit."

Evidence of that is the spread in scoring among the players; three men are averaging in double figures guard Joe Smith at 18.8 points per game, center Roosevelt Green at 18.2, and forward Mike Peden at 10 points even.

With that kind of balanced scoring, the Tars have consistently run away from their opposition. To date they have averaged 77 points a game, while holding their opponents to 63. Of their 13 wins, none has come by less than six points, and some have been devastating. They trounced Napa by 34 points, Yuba by 32, the USF Frosh by 23 and Ohlone by 22.

There is no real secret to Marin's success in the non-conference season. The fact is they have two superstars in Smith and Green, and have built a near-professional style offense around them. Green controls the game from the inside in the manner of an NBA center, passing off and taking percentage shots, and Smith, like pro guard, works hard to get to his favorite spots on the floor, and has a feather-perfect touch when he shoots.

The forwards, Peden and Ed Herrnberger, compliment those two with formidable outside shooting; they'll gladly kill you if you leave them open.

Then there's Ron Small, the other guard, whom Panagakis calls the best defensive player on the club, and Charlie Flynn, a perfect sixth man who has the knack for making the big defensive play that turns things around.

In fact, the Tars have no apparent weakness. And they will get stronger after the Christmas break, when former Tamalpais High star Floyd Jackson joins the team. At 6-foot-e, ane with an uncanny ability to jump, Jackson just has to break into the starting lineup the problem is where, and that's one of the sweeter problems Panagakis will have to face this year.

Stanford, Ohio State Finish Heavy Drills

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Ohio State and Stanford football teams are through with heavy workouts today in preparation for their Rose Bowl game New Year's Day.

Final contact work Tuesday at East Los Angeles College produced two Buckeye casualties which Hayes appeared to believe were not serious.

Hayes said the Buckeyes will retire New Year's Eve to a monastery in nearby Sierra Madre, a custom of Big Ten teams bent on getting away from the celebration in the hotel where they've been staying.

Ralston, who suddenly switched this week from Cal State Long Beach to a secret practice field, said the Indians worked for an hour and a half Tuesday morning in helmets, shoulder pads and sweat suits.

They took a breather in the afternoon, watching whales and porpoises and other denizens of the deep cavort at Marneland.

"We're physically prepared," said Ralston. "Now we must get mentally prepared."

Ralston was asked if he thought his players could get "too high emotionally" for the favored Buckeyes who were undefeated during the regular season.

"I would hope they would be high," said Ralston. "They might get a little jittery and drop a pass but I'm sure hey'll shake it off. We want them to be at the highest possible emotional pitch."

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Short Term Trusts For Children Are Very Attractive

For those of you who can do so, short term trusts are more attractive than ever.

Assume that you have securities or income property that produces income of $1,825 or more per year and that you have one or more minor children, of course you would like to accumulate sufficient funds, tax free, to put them through college.

The answer is, set up a short term trust. That is one for more than 10 years which will pay to your child or children not more than $1,800 per year per child.

Under the new low income allowance for 1971, $1,050 and the increased personal exemption $650 plus the $100 dividend exclusion, each child will have no tax to pay on the first $1,800 of income each year.

If the child does not use the income for his support, but saves it, you can still claim the child as your dependent for income tax purposes.

Any income in excess of the $1,800 will be taxed but it would probably be taxed at much lower rates than your own income.

At the end of the term of the trust, that is more than 10 years, the principal of the trust can revert to you and the income go to the child, providing funds for the college education tax free.

If this is intriguing to you be sure to consult your tax advisor and your attorney before attempting to set up any such trust.

Personnel Director To Be Chosen First

The Marin County Schools Personnel Commission has acquiesced to an employee association's demand that the commission first select a personnel director before proceeding with an attitude survey of clerical workers.

Asst. Supt. Byron W. Mauzy said the commission compromised with the California School Employees Association Monday by agreeing not to review results of the survey until a director is selected. However, Mauzy said, the survey will still be taken in January as previously planned.

"They (commission) just will not be able to use the survey results" to aid them in selecting a director, Mauzy said. He added, however, that this was one of the reasons for the survey.

The commission is an autonomous body established under the state education code and is charged with classifying and hiring all classified personnel for the Marin County Schools Office.

Mauzy said Gregory A. Dunn, field representative for employees association listed selection of the director, development of an employees' classification plan and working rules and regulations for the employees as being higher priority items than the attitude survey.

The attitude survey was approved in November and will ask 140 clerical employees how they view their jobs, salaries, supervisors and future job prospects. It will be conducted by Stever and Co. of San Francisco for a $2,100 fee.

Dunn said he does not object to the survey but felt further delay in selection of a personnel director could have detrimental effect on employees.

He said a director could help the commission in its efforts to establish a merit system.

In related action Monday, the commission set qualification standards for the hiring of a part-time personnel director as well as a timetable which indicated the position will be filled by Feb. 7.

Mauzy said the half-time position will pay $710 per month. Testing of applicants will begin Jan. 23 and interviewing, Jan. 30.

Window Broken

Mrs. Garth Tufts, 8 Haven Drive, Petaluma, told police a BB gun was shot through a large picture window at her home Monday. Damage was estimated at $200.

San Rafael Men Suffer Cuts In Corner Mishap

Two San Rafael men have been injured in an auto collision at a San Rafael intersection.

Robert C. Jackson, 27, of 247 D Street, Apt. 204, was treated at Marin General Hospital for multiple cuts on the forehead. His companion, Joel R. De Silva, 26, of 225 First Street, was treated for scalp cuts.

The two were injured when a car driven by De Silva collided at 7:35 p.m. Monday with one driven by Dalton F. Short Jr., 19, of Sonoma, police said.

Short was cited for no license in his possession and De Silva for lack of caution at an intersection after the accident at First and D streets.

Bartender Takes Expensive Snooze

ATLANTIC CITY N.J. (UPI) —Business was pretty slow in Mr. Raymond's Bar here Monday night. There were no customers, so bartender George Thompson dozed off while watching television.

A while later some patrons came in and woke him up. He found the cash register emptied of $80, the shelves minus $115 worth of liquor and the television set missing.

Two Local Chefs Win Cafeteria Contract

Two San Rafael chefs beat out a chain cafeteria firm yesterday for the right to operate the Marin Civic Center cafeteria, beginning next month.

The board of supervisors voted unanimously in favor of Donald A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter, chefs at West End Villa in San Rafael. The loser was Manning's Inc.

The choice of the chefs was a surprise. Both the county administrator's office and the Marin County Employees Association had recommended the Manning firm because of lower food prices offered.

Supervisor Michael Wornum said, "everything we have now seems to be national chains, and I'd like to reverse this tendency."

Supervisor William A Gnoss, pointed out that local chefs probably will give local suppliers a chance to sell to the cafeteria operation, while a national chain would have its own suppliers.

Manning's had said it would offer hot food for 85 cents to $1.05, while, Giovannoni said he would offer more personalized service, with hot food running from $1.20 to $1.40.

Giovannoni will buy chairs, tables and other equipment and lease them to the county at 9 per cent interest over a five-year period. Giovannoni also wants between 3.5 per cent and 28 per cent of the gross receipts, depending on the amount of total sales.

The state Department of Rehabilitation, which had operated the cafeteria through a vendor, has pulled out. There were frequent employee complaints of bad food.

Bomb Threat At Bakery A Hoax

According to police, an "older woman" told an employee of California Bakery, 919 Fourth Street, "There is a bomb in your store and it will go off at 1:45 p.m."

The call was received at 1:20 p.m. No device was found, police said.

Rec Panel Seeks Program Ideas

The Rohnert Park Recreation Commission has said it would seek suggestions from parents for new programs.

J. Hayes Hunter said the commission was especially interested in providing additional activities for girls. Hunter suggested formation of girls' drill cheerleading teams.

Mark Raymond, a new commission appointee, said he had investigated the possibility of a boxing program and estimated that costs would run from $500 to $800.

The commission said it felt the expenditure would be worthwhile if there was enough interest.

Supervisors On 'Sounding Board'

Problems facing Marin in 1971 will be discussed by the board of supervisors on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Speaking will be John F. McInnis, board chairman; Peter R. Arrigoni, Michael Wornum, Louis H. Baar and William A. Gnoss, who is retiring this week.

Moderator Kitty Oppenheimer said that listeners may phone in questions to the supervisors. The program will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Two Local Chefs Win Cafeteria Contract

Two San Rafael chefs beat out a chain cafeteria firm yesterday for the right to operate the Marin Civic Center cafeteria, beginning next month.

The board of supervisors voted unanimously in favor of Donald A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter, chefs at West End Villa in San Rafael. The loser was Manning's Inc.

The choice of the chefs was a surprise. Both the county administrator's office and the Marin County Employees Association had recommended the Manning firm because of lower food prices offered.

Supervisor Michael Wornum said, "everything we have now seems to be national chains, and I'd like to reverse this tendency."

Supervisor William A Gnoss, pointed out that local chefs probably will give local suppliers a chance to sell to the cafeteria operation, while a national chain would have its own suppliers.

Manning's had said it would offer hot food for 85 cents to $1.05, while, Giovannoni said he would offer more personalized service, with hot food running from $1.20 to $1.40.

Giovannoni will buy chairs, tables and other equipment and lease them to the county at 9 per cent interest over a five-year period. Giovannoni also wants between 3.5 per cent and 28 per cent of the gross receipts, depending on the amount of total sales.

The state Department of Rehabilitation, which had operated the cafeteria through a vendor, has pulled out. There were frequent employee complaints of bad food.

Bomb Threat At Bakery A Hoax

According to police, an "older woman" told an employee of California Bakery, 919 Fourth Street, "There is a bomb in your store and it will go off at 1:45 p.m."

The call was received at 1:20 p.m. No device was found, police said.

Rec Panel Seeks Program Ideas

The Rohnert Park Recreation Commission has said it would seek suggestions from parents for new programs.

J. Hayes Hunter said the commission was especially interested in providing additional activities for girls. Hunter suggested formation of girls' drill cheerleading teams.

Mark Raymond, a new commission appointee, said he had investigated the possibility of a boxing program and estimated that costs would run from $500 to $800.

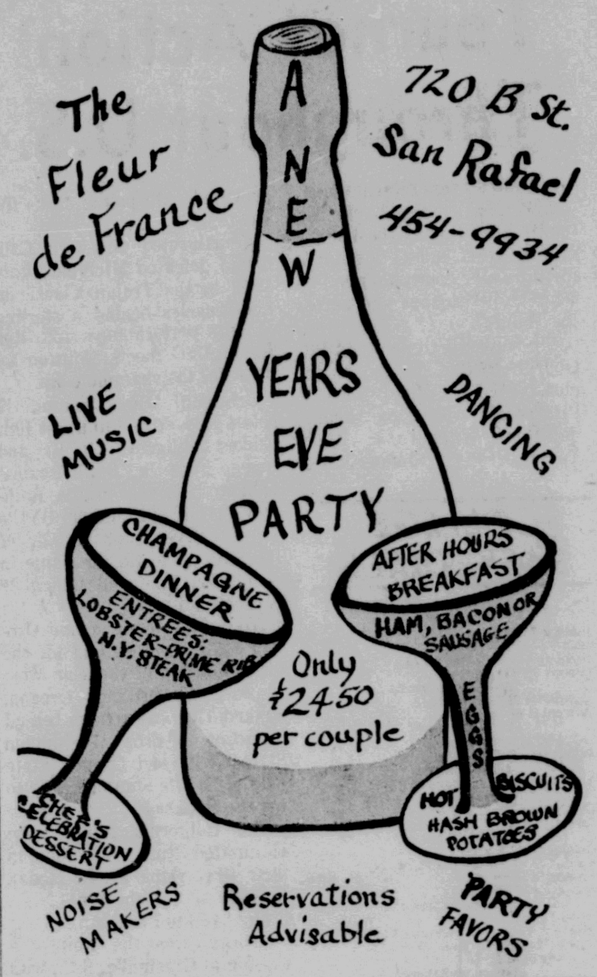
The commission said it felt the expenditure would be worthwhile if there was enough interest.

Supervisors On 'Sounding Board'

Problems facing Marin in 1971 will be discussed by the board of supervisors on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Speaking will be John F. McInnis, board chairman; Peter R. Arrigoni, Michael Wornum, Louis H. Baar and William A. Gnoss, who is retiring this week.

Moderator Kitty Oppenheimer said that listeners may phone in questions to the supervisors. The program will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.



Personnel Director To Be Chosen First

The Marin County Schools Personnel Commission has acquiesced to an employee association's demand that the commission first select a personnel director before proceeding with an attitude survey of clerical workers.

Asst. Supt. Byron W. Mauzy said the commission compromised with the California School Employees Association Monday by agreeing not to review results of the survey until a director is selected. However, Mauzy said, the survey will still be taken in January as previously planned.

"They (commission) just will not be able to use the survey results" to aid them in selecting a director, Mauzy said. He added, however, that this was one of the reasons for the survey.

The commission is an autonomous body established under the state education code and is charged with classifying and hiring all classified personnel for the Marin County Schools Office.

Mauzy said Gregory A. Dunn, field representative for employees association listed selection of the director, development of an employees' classification plan and working rules and regulations for the employees as being higher priority items than the attitude survey.

The attitude survey was approved in November and will ask 140 clerical employees how they view their jobs, salaries, supervisors and future job prospects. It will be conducted by Stever and Co. of San Francisco for a $2,100 fee.

Dunn said he does not object to the survey but felt further delay in selection of a personnel director could have detrimental effect on employees.

He said a director could help the commission in its efforts to establish a merit system.

In related action Monday, the commission set qualification standards for the hiring of a part-time personnel director as well as a timetable which indicated the position will be filled by Feb. 7.

Mauzy said the half-time position will pay $710 per month. Testing of applicants will begin Jan. 23 and interviewing, Jan. 30.

Robin Quigley Heads Waves

By CAROL ANN ROSS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If she had had her choice, Robin Lindsay Quigley would have pursued a career as a classical music discjockey.

After all, what better use could she have made of her two years background experience in radio and a major in violin at Dominican College, San Rafael.

But as it turned out, the new director of the WAVES managed only a two-year stint in music, as a teacher, before yielding to her Air Force father's advice to join the Navy, but she has no regrets.

Captain Quigley will officially begin her new appointment Monday, succeeding Capt. Rita Linehan, who will join the office of Vice Adm. B. J. Semmes Jr., deputy chief of Naval operations for fleet operations and readiness.

THROUGHOUT HER school days Robin Quigley lived with her family on Fawn Drive in Sleepy Hollow, and she was graduated from grammar school in San Anselmo and Dominican Upper School before she received a bachelor of music degree from Dominican College in May, 1951. During her time at Dominican College Miss Quigley also did work in speech and drama and participated in Sister Cyril's programs on KTIM radio.

"She came back to the campus several years ago when she was a recruiter for the Navy and talked to students," says Sister Marie, O.P., Dominican College director of admissions, "And she wrote in a letter that she may return in 1971 for her 20th year class reunion in San Rafael."

Miss Quigley said that back in 1954 when she was commissioned as an ensign "I didn't think I would become director of the WAVES, but I did want to make captain."

Now, after promotion to Commander in April, 1969, and then to Captain last January, Miss Quigley says "my head is reeling; I just want to settle down into one grade for a while."

And with that she adds, "no, no, I'm not even thinking about becoming an admiral."

Captain Quigley said she really looks forward to the job of WAVE director, "especially at this particular point in time."

"IT WILL BE a very exciting time to have this position because the Navy is going in all kinds of new directions," she said, adding that she "agrees" with the liberalizing new directives for men put out by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, chief of Naval operations.

They include allowing beer dispensers to be placed in shore barracks and permission to wear mustaches and long hair.

"There are some areas in which we will do similar things for the women," Captain Quigley said. "We're coming into the mainstream of society."

But she said that before making any announcements on changes, "Iwant to hear from the women themselves . . . to find out what they'd like."

She has already heard some requests from the men, however, mostly "to forbid midis and maxis."

ALTHOUGH A native of Prescott, Ariz., Captain Quigley said that beginning her fourth tour in Washington is like "coming back home."

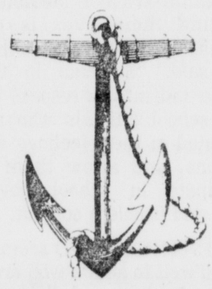
She said she hopes to get an apartment in a high rise building in Arlington, Va., with a view of the city across the Potomac River.

Captain Quigley credits her Navy career in part to military tradition in her family. Besides her father, retired Air Force Lt. Col. Patrick A. Quigley, who "always had a soft spot in his heart for the Navy," her mother's father was an Army dental officer and her brother-in-law is a Marine.

"We've got all the services covered nicely," she said.

Although she is saddened by the fact her parents will miss her change-of-command ceremony Monday (her father is hospitalized with a heart ailment in Shingle Springs, now the family home) Miss Quigley is excited about embarking on the job of directing 600 officers and 6,000 enlisted women.

DOMINICAN COLLEGE graduate Capt. Robin L. Quigley will begin her assignment Monday as new director of the U.S. Navy WAVES. A music major who studied violin and piano in college, Captain Quigley grew up in Marin and she joined the Navy in 1954. She hopes to see the use of women officers in the Navy expanded, especially in the management area. (UPI Telephoto)



SHE SAID that as WAVE director she would like to see the use of women officers expanded, "especially in the management area . . . women could bring a great deal of expertise into personnel planning areas."

As for Women's Liberation, she says she's "always felt that women in the military were the avant garde of Women's Lib . . . we've been so marvelously accepted in our profession."

Captain Quigley spends her spare time cooking, sewing and reading and says that now that she's back in Washington she wants to "get out on the golf course again."

And the Navy woman admitted, "I would even like to learn to sail."

Marin Women

Martha Mitchell Is Eager To Pounce On Pots and Pans

By ISABELLE HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Unlike many women who yearn to get out of the kitchen Martha Mitchell is itching to put her apron on and start banging the pots and pans again.

"I love to cook," she said in an interview before flying to Key Biscayne, Fla., for the an interview. 'BW' I used to cook all the time."

"BW" is her half-sarcastic reference to life "before Washington" as the wife of a successful Wall Street bond lawyer. Now, there is little time for cooking with Attorney General John N. Mitchell and his wife in demand for as many as three or four parties an evening.

Mrs. Mitchell, a vivacious blonde of 53, has gained a prominence in Washington that many politicians would envy. She wouldn't exactly chuck it all for her kitchen, but she does miss it.

Her cook, Ruth Howard, now reigns among the spice jar motif wallpaper, wood cabinets and copper double oven, five-burner stove and copper-toned refrigerator in the Mitchells' luxury Watergate apartment suite overlooking the Potomac.

"I'll tell you the kind of cook I am," Mrs. Mitchell said. "I have loads of cookbooks but if I decide I want to make something, I get them all down and read all the recipes. Then I put them all back on the shelf and do it my own way."

"I like to cook unusual dishes and I've always been the kind who tries out everything on company first," she said with a laugh. "So far it's always worked out."

The sweet potato-banana casserole and spoon bread reflect her southern upbringing in Pine Bluff, Ark. The shrimp sukiyaki and cream puff pyramid betray a more sophisticated taste cultivated here and in New York, but one of her fondest girlhood memories is of Sunday night "tamale pie suppers" for young people in her home town.

A selection of her favorite recipes is on file at the Justice Department, and copies are mailed on request to any wife who wants to serve her husband the same cheese and olive tidbits that John Mitchell munches with his before-dinner scotch.

"The first thing that happens when you come to Washington is a request for recipes," Mrs. Mitchell said. "They don't want to know your name, rank or serial number —just your recipes."

They used to write the Justice Department asking what Bobby Kennedy ate for breakfast. "Then someone wrote for Nick Katzenbach's favorite musical selection," a secretary said of Kennedy's successor.

Here are some of Martha Mitchell's favorites:

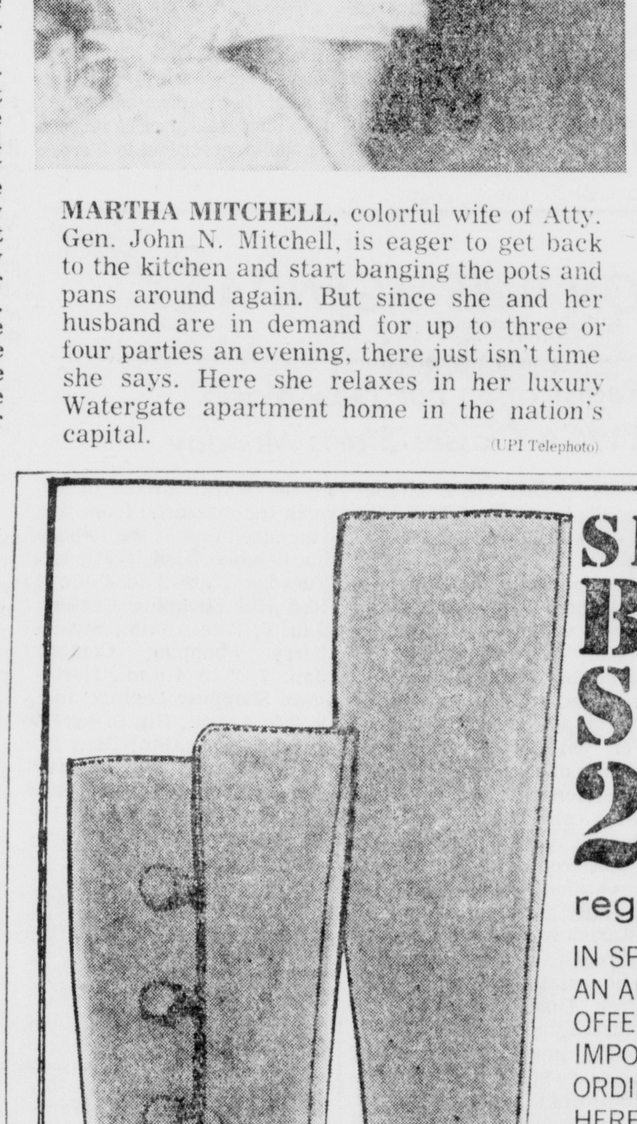
Garlic grits: 2 cup grits; 1-2 cup milk; 2 rolls garlic cheese; salt and pepper; 1 1-2 qts. water; 1-4 lb. butter; 4 beaten eggs.

Cook grits in water until done; add milk, butter, cheese, eggs, salt and papper to taste. Pour into buttered casserole; sprinkle with parmesan cheese and paprika. Bake 300 degrees 30 minutes.

Hortense peppermint bavarian: 50 marshmallows; 2 cups milk; 1 tbl. peppermint flavoring; 2 envelopes gelatin; 1 pint whipping cream; 1-2 cup cold water. Color pink or green. Melt marshmallows in milk. Add gelatin soaked in 1-2 cup cold water. Cool and add whipped cream. Serve with chocolate sauce.

Chicken in sherry: 8 chicken breasts; ¼ cup butter; 1 small jar mushrooms; 1 bunch green onions; 1 bouillon cube dissolved in ¼ cup water; 2 tbls. flour; 1 tsp. tomato paste; 1 cup chicken stock; 3-4 cup sherry; salt and pepper to taste.

Brown chicken breasts in hot butter, remove from pan. Brown mushrooms and onions. Stir in dissolved beef bouillon cube and remove pan from heat. Stir in flour. Add tomato paste, stock and sherry. Return to heat and stir while heating to boiling point. Add salt and pepper. Add chicken, cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender.



MARTHA MITCHELL, colorful wife of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, is eager to get back to the kitchen and start banging the pots and pans around again. But since she and her husband are in demand for up to three or four parties an evening, there just isn't time she says. Here she relaxes in her luxury Watergate apartment home in the nation's capital. (UPI Telephoto)

HELEN HELP US!

Car Pool Is Social Gathering Of Sorts And Should Be Pleasant

DEAR HELEN:

We ride six in a car pool. Four of the others sleep, read, talk — when they feel like it, but don't feel obligated as we're not close friends.

However, one rider and I are long-time friends, and we talk together in a foreign language because this is our native tongue and almost our only change to practice it.

The argument developed that we shouldn't talk so that others can't understand. But if others sleep, yawn, read, etc., why not? Should car pool people consider themselves in a social environment, or just look on this as a means of transportation, like a bus? — RUDE?

DEAR RUDE?:

Why not join the general conversation — if there is any. If not, then you have a right to converse in your native tongue.

A car pool is a social gathering of sorts, and it's everyone's duty to make the ride as pleasant as possible. If you close down communication completely you might miss some valuable friendships. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our home has always been open to our children's friends. Up until this year's experiences, I've liked the young crowd. Now — I don't know.

You can't respect girls who sell themselves cheap and boys who think only of sex. My daughter tells me the only way to have a boy friend is to "put out." In my day, the boy went steady with a good girl, and dated the tramp on the off nights, and everything worked out fine. Today the good girl sits home and prays for a date while these wild ones are having fun and spending the boy's money.

My daughter is a good girl. Fellows think she is a rare jewel, for she's very pretty, but they treat her as a rare jewel by staying their distance. They never ask her out the second time.

This free love scene forces girls to "play the game" when they're not ready. The emphasis on sex makes them afraid to say "No" for two reasons: They'll stay home, and (even more deadly) they'll be considered "frigid." When will girls rise up and tell the world that they simply aren't the highly sexed creatures men dream them to be? Until the absolutely "right" guy comes along. — MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

I agree with you that over-emphasis of sex has pushed many young people into disastrous affairs, but I don't agree that the "jewels" are all that "rare." Nor are they doomed to datelessness — not if they're attactive, interesting, amusing people who make their viewpoint clear without flaunting the "I'm a good girl" button. H.

DEAR READERS: (MALE AND FEMALE)

Here's another question for you. How about it: Does a girl "have to if she doesn't want to" these days, in order to make the dating scene? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Gotcha again. You said (when talking about "hate letters"): "Lady columnists, Yup — even us!" It's "even we." — GRAMMARIAN

DEAR GRAMMARIAN:

Touche! (But you have to admit, it sounds funny.)

(Says Daughter Sue: "What does he want, 'well' grammar or well put?") — H.

Concern Of Teen-Agers: Their Treatment As Respected Adults

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Today's high school students appear to be concerned most with their treatment as respected adults, according to a cross-section of 44 students interviewed for the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

The students' reactions, published in a booklet, "What Students Perceive," represent 250 students chosen with attention to "adequate racial and ethnic representaton, geographical distribution and full attention to varying views and attitudes," the commission said.

The commission claimed no interpretation of the material, but included an introduction by Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint, associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, who

"MOST OF the student complaints about the administration of their high schools focus on the inflexible rules and regulations which are made without student consultation or participation," Poussaint said.

"There is no reason," Poussaint said, "why dress codes must be imposed arbitrarily on students without consulting them, or why student councils—for many youngsters their first experience with democracy in action—should be rendered powerless and impotent."

He said they also resent being treated like children who are incapable of participating in decision making and being taught by teachers who are inflexible, impersonal, arbitrary and bigoted.

SINCE ADOLESCENTS are at a point of life where they practice more independent thought and logical reasoning, Poussaint said, "From the psychological standpoint the students' cry not to be treated 'like children' and their demand for greater student participation in administrative decisions affecting their lives is understandable and reasonable."

He said, "Students in this volume indicate a respect for those school officials who are interested in their feelings and opinions, and allow them to participate in school governance and problem solving.

"TEENAGERS ALSO seem to respond well to adults who are friendly, flexible, and display a minimum of the adult, 'We know better than you' attitude," Poussaint said.

"It is urgent that administrators begin to institute policies that will contribute to eliminating the sense of powerlessness and second-class status that schools so often have fostered among minority group children," Poussaint concluded from the remarks of minority students interviewed.

He also concluded that "school administrators should not hesitate to quickly rid the system of personnel who openly espouse bigotry."

Poussaint said, "With the rapid technological and value changes in our society it is even more crucial that the older generation lend an attentive ear to the keen perceptions of our rather sophisticated younger generation."

Warring Factions Threaten Split In Ranks Of Consumer Federation

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A growing dispute among warring factions threatens to split apart the Consumer Federation of America, the country's largest consumer organization, on th eve of its annual Consumer Assembly and annual meeting here.

Details of the dispute have been kept hushed up by most of those involved for fear that publicity could undermine the effectiveness of the federation at a time when lobbying for consumer legislation on Capitol Hill was at a peak.

But the dissident groups within CFA, now that Congress has turned its back on key consumer bills, are girding for an open fight which is likely to be aired publicly at the CFA's annual meeting on Jan. 27. The Consumer Assembly is scheduled here the following two days.

CFA's 37-member board of directors was called into session in November to consider suspending Frazier because of alleged violations of Federation bylaws growing out of Frazier's attempts to oppose President Nixon's nomination of David Dennison to the Federal Trade Commission.

WHEN FRAZIER chose to fight the ouster move with a libel suit, the directors decided to advance the date of the annual meeting from next August to January so that new officers could be elected at that time.

The directors said the changed date was arranged to save transportation costs which have become a sore point for smaller consumer groups wishing to be represented each year at separate meetings of the CFA and the Consumer Assembly, a conference usually devoted to legislative matters.

Since then, however, the official organization slate of new officers has been released, and Frazier's name is absent from the list. Nominated as next president is Don Willner, a Portland, Ore., state senator and former head of the Oregon Consumer League.

Frazier met recently with a group of supporters determined to fight the ouster move on the floor of the meeting if necessary. The dissidents decided to present a rival slate of officers, but their names have not yet been announced.

Among Frazier's principal backers are the heads of several citizen groups which belong to CFA and the Rev. Robert J. McEwen, the immediate past president of CFA. Father McEwen has issued a "minority" report to CFA directors citing "the growth of a climate of distrust and suspicion among members."

HE CONTENDS that the organizational structure of CFA is a "mickey-mouse patchwork ... that has merely confused lines of authority and made effective timing of our actions very difficult and has made harmony within the organization almost impossible."

He says the result is "dominiation of the little groups by the big money boys." He was referring to labor organizations, which contribute about half of CFA's $75,000 annual budget, and cooperatives, which contribute most of the rest.

Under the organization's bylaws, member groups are eligible to have up to 10 votes in a ratio of one vote per 25 members. With small consumer groups of citizens totaling only 51 of the overall total of 178 member groups, bonadfide consumer groups can easily be outvoted. More than 40 member groups are rural electric cooperatives.

Among the critics of such organization structure is the Consumers Educational & Protective Association International Inc., a militant group that has gained fame in Philadelphia by getting consumer complaints settled through organized picketing of merchants.

The group, known as CEPA, charged in a recent issue of its monthly newspaper, "Consumers Voice," that CFA executive director Erma Angevine had sidetracked a CEPA-sponsored change in by-laws designed to give each member group only one vote. Mrs. Angevine said the proposal came too late to be sent to all members in time for last August's annual meeting.

THE POSSIBILITY of conflicts of interest over policy within the CFA arose publicly last fall when Congressional opponents of import restrictions for various consumer commodities accused the CFA of failing to take a stand on the matter because of fear of displeasing its labor members who generally were in favor of the import restrictions.

Mrs. Angevine replied that CFA had not taken a stand becuase it had not been asked to do so by any member group. She said the Administration's import quota bill was not as important as numerous other issues. Mrs. Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser, has called the measure "the most significant anti-consumer legislation now in Congress."

Frazier's troubles as CFA president apparently began shortly before last August's annual meeting when he was involved in a public feud with the Nixon Administration over appointments to regulatory agencies.

Mrs. Angevine, who has been executive director since CFA was organized, was known to feel that she, as the organization's only registered lobbyist, should be the principal spokesman on Capitol Hill.

One of the bylaws passed at that meeting, but never reported in the CFA newsletter, appeared to increase the powers of the executive director in line with Mrs. Angevine's wishes.

The move to oust Frazier came a few weeks later when he chose to take a public stand against President Nixon's appointment of David Dennison to the FTC. After Frazier had taken his stand, Mrs. Angevine advised board members that such a move jeopardized passage of key consumer bills.

While Frazier was complaining to reporters that the Dennison appointment was being railroaded through the Senate, Mrs. Angevine issued a release announcing that the board of directors would not oppose Dennison. Frazier suffered further embarrassment by hearing of the news from Dennison himself.

On the outcome of this controversy rests the broader issue of how American consumers can be represented most effectively in the nation's Capitol.

Since then, however, the official organization slate of new officers has been released, and Frazier's name is absent from the list. Nominated as next president is Don Willner, a Portland, Ore., state senator and former head of the Oregon Consumer League.

Frazier met recently with a group of supporters determined to fight the ouster move on the floor of the meeting if necessary. The dissidents decided to present a rival slate of officers, but their names have not yet been announced.

Among Frazier's principal backers are the heads of several citizen groups which belong to CFA and the Rev. Robert J. McEwen, the immediate past president of CFA. Father McEwen has issued a "minority' ' report to CFA directors citing "the growth of a climate of distrust and suspicion among members."

HE CONTENDS that the organizational structure of CFA is a "mickey-mouse patchwork ... that has merely confused lines of authority and made effective timing of our actions very difficult and has made harmony within the organization almost impossible."

He says the result is "dominiation of the little groups by the big money boys." He was referring to labor organizations, which contribute about half of CFA's $75,000 annual budget, and cooperatives, which contribute most of the rest.

Under the organization's bylaws, member groups are eligible to have up to 10 votes in a ratio of one vote per 25 members. With small consumer groups of citizens totaling only 51 of the over-all total of 178 member groups, bonadfide consumer groups can easily be outvoted. More than 40 member groups are rural electric cooperatives.

Among the critics of such organization structure is the Consumers Educational & Protective Association International Inc., a militant group that has gained fame in Philadelphia by getting consumer complaints settled through organized picketing of merchants.

The group, known as CEPA, charged in a recent issue of its monthly newspaper, "Consumers Voice," that CFA executive director Erma Angevine had sidetracked a CEPA-sponsored change in by-laws designed to give each member group only one vote. Mrs. Angevine said the proposal came too late to be sent to all members in time for last August's annual meeting.

THE POSSIBILITY of conflicts of interest over policy within the CFA arose publicly last fall when Congressional opponents of import restrictions for various consumer commodities accused the CFA of failing to take a stand on the matter because of fear of displeasing its labor members who generally were in favor of the import restrictions.

Mrs. Angevine replied that CFA had not taken a stand becuase it had not been asked to do so by any member group. She said the Administration's import quota bill was not as important as numerous other issues. Mrs. Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser, has called the measure "the most significant anti-consumer legislation now in Congress."

Frazier's troubles as CFA president apparently began shortly before last August's annual meeting when he was involved in a public feud with the Nixon Administration over appointments to regulatory agencies.

Mrs. Angevine, who has been executive director since CFA was organized, was known to feel that she, as the organization's only registered lobbyist, should be the principal spokesman on Capitol Hill.

One of the bylaws passed at that meeting, but never reported in the CFA newsletter, appeared to increase the powers of the executive director in line with Mrs. Angevine's wishes.

The move to oust Frazier came a few weeks later when he chose to take a public stand against President Nixon's appointment of David Dennison to the FTC. After Frazier had taken his stand, Mrs. Angevine advised board members that such a move jeopardized passage of key consumer bills.

While Frazier was complaining to reporters that the Dennison appointment was being railroaded through the Senate, Mrs. Angevine issued a release announcing that the board of directors would not oppose Dennison. Frazier suffered further embarrassment by hearing of the news from Dennison himself.

On the outcome of this controversy rests the broader issue of how American consumers can be represented most effectively in the nation's Capitol.

Weird Witch Puts Spell On Children

By MARIE RAMEAU

OAKLAND — It was regrettable to see the curtain descend on Monday afternoon's "Hansel and Gretel" presented by the Oakland Ballet. It soon became obvious that director Ron Guidi felt very much at homein staging this classical story-ballet, and the production, despite modest sets, was very well put together.

The ballet also offered a pleasant contrast to the inevitable "Nutcrackers" performed by so many companies in the Bay Area. As a Christmas tradition, "Hansel and Gretel" is performed in Germany as an opera, but this Grimm fairy tale lost nothing in Guidi's adaptation.

The afternoon was distinguished by Arthur Conrad's annual appearance as the weird witch who captivated all the children in the audience with his exhilarating pantomine. The pantomine itself, too, was marked by masterly cohesion and direction and was, for the most part, danced instead of mimed.

The corps de ballet danced precisely and did not appear challenged beyond its capacity - a departure from the norm of taxing the corps choreographically beyond its strength. But all had sufficient technique to present themselves well in performance.

It was the principals, however, who carried the day. Sheri Jack as the Dew Fairy was sure and danced with vibrancy and joy; her Cavalier, John Sullivan, although slightly off-center in turns, emanated confidence in his variation, tipped by a strong finish.

As the Sandman, Margaret Schmidt displayed very slender lines with a soft port de bras and an arabesque that could easlily be breathtaking. Weakness in pointe work, however, tends to undermine one's entire presence, and in her case calls for speed, accuracy and a stronger attack.

As the first Angel in the lovely Adagio, Asta Arisa revealed a fine and graceful approach to legato sequences. Gifted with a spectacular develope', she still turns somewhat weakly and in some instances off time, but her performance was otherwise sheer music in this particular part.

This, however, could not be accomplished without the artful partnering of Ron Thiel, whose features also project well on stage. In the second act, the Candy Canes were sprightly and lithe, but the Birds in Act I indicated too early pointe work with the resultant sluggishness of legs and feet in rapid passages.

Hansel and Gretel were astutely cast . Both Susan Edgren and Terry Koch, who demonstrated an easy technique and pleasant appearance, showed much promise ad demi-charactere dancers in a ballet reminiscent, in certain aspects, of the old Bournonville tradition of the Royal Danish Ballet. As a satisfying presentation of a rather different Christmas tradition, this ballet is a delightful treat for adults and children alike. "Hansel and Gretel" concludes its all-too-brief season tonight at Kaiser Auditorium.

BART Plans Start By Early Next Fall

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bay Area Rapid Transit District—the billion dollar system which has had downtown San Francisco and Oakland in disarray for years—will get its first trains into operation late next fall.

The district's 1970 year-end report said its Alameda line between MacArthur Station in north Oakland and south Hayward will be the first segment to open.

BART general manager B. R. Stokes said the line would be extended to Fremont a short time later, while the Oakland to Concord line as far as Pleasant Hill and the Oakland to Richmond line will begin operating several months later.

The three-county transit district will put its Oakland-to-San Francisco transbay tube, its Market Street Subway and its Mission Street line to Balboa Park in San Francisco in ooeration during the fall of 1972.

The planned starting schedules were included in a report on 1970 construction.

Contracts have been awarded for 75 per cent of the system's $1.36 billion projected cost. Completed construction totals $479 million, with $392 million of work in progress and another $62 million in construction contracts to be awarded in 1971 and 1972.

Major building emphasis this year went to stations, with all but four of the 34 stations on the 75-mile system either completed or well underway. The exceptions are the Concord, Daly City, Embarcadero and West Portal stations.

Twenty-five miles of double tracks are completed, with another 45 miles under construction. The transbay tube is virtually complete, the downtown Oakland subway is 95 per cent finished and interior finishing is underway on seven San Francisco subway stations on BART's two lines in the city.

Stokes also reported receipt of five completed prototype BART cars from Rohr Corp. during the fall. Four are undergoing daily testing prior to the start-up of fullscale car production next spring.

Israeli TV: Expensive, But Spicy

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Provided you happen to be fluent in Hebrew, Arabic, Greek and English—and have $100 to spend on antennas — television viewing in Israel goes by countries, not channels.

Although television sets, imported from Japan, West Germany and Britain, are possibly more expensive here than anywhere else in the world, a forest of antennas rises from the rooftops of every Israeli city and town.

Sets, including antennas, start at around $500. But viewers have the choice of Hebrew and English programs broadcast from the Israeli Television Authority's transmitters in Jerusalem, Egyptian programs from Cairo, Lebanese from Beirut, Jordanian from Amman and English and Greek from Nicosia, Cyprus.

Home grown television is a mixture of locally produced Hebrew programs and British and American imports and old films. The imports all carry Hebrew subtitles.

Cairo broadcasts in Arabic include locally produced Arabian soap operas. Beirut and Amman broadcast in English and Arabic and Amman has an English-language news program which has a big viewer following here.

There are no English-language news programs on Israeli television, a fact which is a constant source of irritation to the television critic of the English-language newspaper, the Jerusalem Post.

Since the programs for the Arab stations and Cyprus television are never printed in the Israeli press, switching around the dial is very much hit or miss.

New Year's Eve Party For Youth: All Saints Church

Folk singer Verne Bullock will be featured at a New Year's Eve celebration for senior high school and college-age youths at 9 p.m. at All Saints Lutheran Church, 2 San Marin Drive, Novato.

David Anderson, director of Lutheran Youth Alive, and Ken Berven of Seattle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Berven of San Anselmo, also will perform.

There also will be music by a local group known as One Way Singers. The group includes Kent Knobelauch, Bruce Barton, Glenna Grewe, Mike Tovani, Caren Fossum, Dianne Lambe, Emily Eckhoff and Tob Cline.

The same performers also will appear at a party for junior high school students and their parents today from 7 to 10 p.m. at the church.

Whittier Firebug Sets More Blazes

WHITTIER (UPI)—A firebug believed responsible for setting some 70 small fires during the last seven months apparently ignited another series of conflagrations Monday night.

Sheriff's deputies estimated total damage during the period since last June at more than $200,000 and said they usually were garage and home fires averaging about $2,500 each.

The Monday night fires were in Whittier or outlying county areas and all were of a similar pattern.

MORALE BOOST

GI's Jet Home For Holiday

The "cheers almost burst the aircraft" when a contingent of 186 Vietnam veterans landed in Oakland last week on their way home for Christmas.

"The troops were unbelievable. There was a big cheer," said Army Maj. David Luckett, 39, of 1299 Parkwood Drive, Novato, one of the men who returned from the war zone under a christmas leave program.

For the first time in the war, servicemen were able to return to the U.S. on holiday leave on charter flights at reduced cost.

To Major Luckett, the trip meant the difference between spending Christmas in Vietnam, perhaps putting up makeshift decorations, singing christmas carols with the troops or toasting the holiday with fellow officers and being home.

Home meant a reunion with his wife, Billie, and three daughters, Elizabeth, 18, Suzanne, 14, and Jeri, 12, a wreath on the doorway, a "Merry Christmas" sign in the window and a Christmas tree in the living room.

As for the chance to fly home for Christmas, Luckett said, servicemen think "It's a beautiful service."

Yet, they felt upset because there weren't more planes "and better planning so there would have been an adequate number of planes to bring all that wanted to come home."

Although he waited in line four-and-a-half hours to get his flight ticket, Luckett said he was lucky. "Others waited 10 to 12 hours and many that wanted to come home couldn't and many were unable to afford it."

Luckett returned last Wednesday on a World Airways charter flight.

The holiday leave program was sponsored by the United Service Organization (USO) at a cost of $350 for the round trip to Oakland. The price is less than half the normal cost.

Servicemen also needed approval for leave from commanding officers, Luckett said. That enabled them to get in the scramble for flight tickets, which were available in Saigon and at various bases in the field through the USO on a first-come, first-served basis.

Luckett's flight from Saigon to Yokohama to San Francisco took less than 14 hours, flying time with "service good and food good," he said.

Luckett, serving with a military intelligence advisory team in Kien Phong Province near Cambodia since last August, is on his second tour of duty in Indochina.

To qualify for the leave program, a serviceman must have had at least four months, but not more than eight months' service in Vietnam, since there is a one-year tour of duty.

An 18-year Army veteran, Luckett has only missed two Christmases with his family - in 1965 during his first year in Vietnam and in 1954 when he was serving in Korea.

Before going to Germany, the Luckett family had spent two Christmases in Novato, 1966 and 1967, when Luckett was stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Luckett expects to retire in two years, but before that he will have to return to Vietnam on a flight Monday from Oakland International Airport.

Police State In America Is Foreseen

CHICAGO (UPI)—The president of the Association of American Law Schools says he sees "indications of a mounting threat to individual liberty in this country in the form of repressive measures characteristic of a police state."

Jefferson B. Fordham, former dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School and currently a visiting professor at the University of Utah Law School, spoke Monday at the first general session of the association's convention.

Fordham said press reports had termed a "daring thing" Rep. William R. Anderson's challenge of Senate testimony by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover that two jailed priests were involved in a kidnap conspiracy.

"It is appalling," Fordham said, "to reflect upon the repressive threat to freedom and justice in such a state of affairs. Meanwhile, I salute representative Anderson. I associate myself with him."

An 18-year Army veteran, Luckett has only missed two Christmases with his family - in 1965 during his first year in Vietnam and in 1954 when he was serving in Korea.

The family was together for Christmas last year in Munich, Germany, where he was stationed.

Before going to Germany, the Luckett family had spent two Christmases in Novato, 1966 and 1967, when Luckett was stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Luckett expects to retire in two years, but before that he will have to return to Vietnam on a flight Monday from Oakland International Airport.

Police State In America Is Foreseen

CHICAGO (UPI)—The president of the Association of American Law Schools says he sees "indications of a mounting threat to individual liberty in this country in the form of repressive measures characteristic of a police state."

Jefferson B. Fordham, former dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School and currently a visiting professor at the University of Utah Law School, spoke Monday at the first general session of the association's convention.

Fordham said press reports had termed a "daring thing" Rep. William R. Anderson's challenge of Senate testimony by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover that two jailed priests were involved in a kidnap conspiracy.

"It is appalling," Fordham said, "to reflect upon the repressive threat to freedom and justice in such a state of affairs. Meanwhile, I salute representative Anderson. I associate myself with him."

Different Stories Behind Two Newspapers' Troubles

John David Cronk, 26, died last Aug. 11 in Traverse City Hospital, a state institution for the mentally retarded. His death was listed as caused by "acute pulmonary congestion."

Cronk's father did not believe this was the cause of death. He hired Dr. Charles E. Black, a pathologist, to perform an autopsy. Dr. Black reported the junior Cronk died from severe chest and abdominal injuries, apparently caused by beatings.

THE REACTION was immediate, but not what the Weekender editor expected. Dr. Duane Sommerness, hospital superintendent, organized committees to bring pressure on business firms to withdraw their advertising from the Weekender. The point was driven home to them that Traverse City Hospital's $11.5 million budget makes it the city's biggest employer.

Advertisers heeded the pressure. From August to mid-December, the Weekender's advertising dropped 40 per cent. The three-member staff cut their own pay to $27 each per week to keep the paper appearing. How much longer it can last is questionable.

TWO MONTHS AGO, a better-known paper disappeared in York, Pa. — not because it, like the Traverse City Weekender, had exposed unsavory truths (which, in its long career, it often had), but because it had come to confuse crusading with honest reporting.

The York Daily Gazette had been leftist-liberal for 55 years under the ownership of Josiah W. Gitt. It had also been fearless. Until recent years, its stance assured that both sides of controversies got their airing in York.

However, Gitt got carried away by his own crusades to the point where during the 1964 presidential campaign, he not only closed the news columns to Goldwater advocates but even refused to publish Goldwater advertising. The voice that cried against censorship became itself a censor. And the Gazette lost readers — and consequently, advertising, which moved to the rival York daily.

It lost more readers, and more advertising, because its coverage of a series of racial incidents beginning in 1968 played up versions given by blacks involved and downgraded those of the police. Again, it confused crusading with reporting.

Business got so bad that Gitt asked all employees to accept a 10 per cent pay cut. The International Typographical Union Local refused, and went on strike. American Newspaper Guild members refused to cross the picket line. The paper suspended publication. After awhile, Gitt sold the business, but the new owners brought out the paper as the York Daily Record — no longer the Gazette in name, appearance, or anything else.

THE YORK GAZETTE signed its own death warrant by distorting the news to fit its political notions. It lost advertising revenue because it no longer had the readership.

The Traverse City Weekender may die for its devotion to printing the news. Its advertising has fled as the result of special-interest pressure — the same kind of special-interest pressure, though without the overtones of violence, that has been attempted unsuccessfully for nearly a year by the International Typographical Union in San Rafael.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Flournoy's Report Tells Story— State Gets Less, Spends More

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One of the general barometers of business conditions in California which is devoid of politics, partisanship, and general propaganda is the report of the state controller, as it is based on actual income and outgo of state funds.

The latest report is not very heartening, as the barometer is away down, far below the estimates of the state Department of Finance as far as cash receipts are concerned.

Controller Houston Flournoy reports that receipts through Nov. 30 were nearly $43 million below Department of Finance estimates issued as late as Nov. 16.

"THIS EMPHASIZES," Flournoy said, "the continuing gloomy outlook for state finances.

"We must not be misled by the cash revenues being $128 million higher than those for the first five months of the 1969-70 fiscal year. The increase is attributable principally to revenue being cridited to the general fund earlier this year and should not be considered as income growth . . .

"The sales and use cash revenues actually increased, but not as greatly as they should have when we consider the usual growth and inflation.

"The bank and corporation franchise tax, another barometer of business conditions, shows declining revenue receipts to far this year in comparison to last, and in addition is the making of substantial refund of prepaid taxes to those corporations whose earnings did not meet their expectations last year."

THE STATE NOT only is spending more money than it is receiving, but is also going above the estimates of expenditures made by the Department of Finance.

Flournoy said cash receipts for the first five months of the year amounted to $1,604,951,453; estimates made by finance were $1,647,900,000; and actual expenditures for the same period were $1,875,684,165.

With this kind of a report, it is small wonder that the administration is worried about the situation for the next fiscal year and is preaching curtailment of expenditures for the balance of the year.

THE LEGISLATURE has six months to legislate the state out of the fiscal hole it has gotten itself into as a result of overspending by the legislature and partially by the administration.

Whether it will be able to accomplish this without increasing taxes remains to be seen.

But the prediction is that as usual, it will increase taxes rather than cut down on the non-essential.

False Allegation On Teachers Pay

It is true that the school district with the higest salaries can afford to select the best teachers from among the many applications. Shouldn't your children receive the best? At Reed district where A.T. Berkett resides, no teacher earns $14,979 as stated in his letter. $13,775 is the highest salary paid and only three teachers receive this; 20 receive $13,075. Forty-five teachers earn $5,000 — $10,000. What "some" teachers earn and what "many" districts do and waht "usually" is the situation does not seem to be true of Reed district. A. T. Berkett has overgeneralized or Reed is rare.

Comparisons of teachers to people in industry is certainly "not realistic"; for comparisons, if it is applicable at all, can only be used with persons who require a like amount of preparation and have a similar amount of responsibility in their jobs.

I repeat what my colleague, Dr. Hyman Krongard stated in an earlier letter to the editor (I.J., Dec. 3): a beginning teacher grosses less than $4.32 an hour and a master teacher at the top of his career, $8.64 an hour.

Were the beautiful picture A.T. Berkett paints, $14,979, 100 per cent medical insurance, dental insurance for teachers and their families, etc. to apply to all teachers and all districts including Reed, some of that "moaning" by teachers would stop.

RICHARD W. HURLEY
Greenbrae.

Irony In Case Of Angela Davis

Angela Davis is on trial — almost. If she is innocent, she will go free. Yet, her behavior thus far makes that outcome dubious. When she was wanted, she ran; when she was caught, she fought extradition; when she was returned, she raised a fist. Black power? Power for what? In protest? Protest against what, crimes of violence?

In view of the tragic events outside a San Rafael courtroom, explaining the ownership of the murder weapon seems a reasonable request; empathy for the victims, maimed and murdered, and their families seems a humane expectation. Instead, Miss Davis returned in arrogant militancy and smug defiance, appealing, of course, to her followers whose idea of justice is impeding the machinery of law.

The irony of it all is that Miss Davis will be afforded every protection under law, and she will employ every tactic within that very law to establish her innocence and return her to her university vantage point from which she may, once again, debase and villify the system of government which guaranteed her her rights.

True, courts are not flawless; lawyers are not without their shortcomings; and all whites are not innocent. But when the weaknesses or errors of man become the green light for vindictive retribution, the ideal of law and justice will be trampled in the traffic of ignorance and villainy.

THE DRUMMONDS

If Nixon Plan Works Out, Saigon Wins War And Peace

By ROSCOE AND GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Here is realistic, candid judgment of top Nixon administration officials on how they believe the Vietnamese war will end:

1 — They see no prospects of a negotiated settlement. Hanoi has negotiated only one item in two years —the shape of the conference table — and shows no willingness to negotiate anything more. The United States will not break off the talks; we'll be there if Hanoi changes its mind.

2 — The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong are militarily and politically weaker — significantly weaker — than at any time since they were near victory in 1964. They know they cannot win, but they believe or at least are hopeful that South Vietnam will lose through internal dissension.

3 — But the North Vietnamese and the VC are not giving up — and won't. They are abandoning the strategy of major military confrontations, by returning to protracted guerrilla fighting with the aim of political disruption. Their goal will be to foment political disaffection among the South Vietnamese, make it difficult for Saigon to rule and to protect its people from terror and sabotage. There will be occasional major battles with the South Vietnamese main forces, but their purpose will be primarily psychological.

4 — The U. S. will continue its steady-paced withdrawal on the Nixon timetable. Before long American combat troops will be out, remaining U. S. support forces will be primarily volunteer and the South Vietnamese will be on their own, wholly in charge.

IS THIS THE WAY it will happen? Will it work?

For the first time since President Nixon began sustained withdrawal, we have begun to think it will. We always saw it as possible. Now we begin to see as attainable with better than an even chance that the South Vietnamese can and will prevail on their own.

Why? Because the United States has finally learned the lesson it should have learned in Korea — and didn't — and therefore failed to apply in South Vietnam until almost too late.

"We'll do it," was the mood of the U. S. military when we went to the defense of South Korea, and we either believed or used as an excuse the view that the South Koreans were poor fighters, could not be trained and made ready.

How wrong the military was. It got bogged down and nearly lost when the Chinese intervened massively. And then the United States began to train and equip the ROK forces which proved themselves brave, sturdy and resourceful fighters.

THEN THE UNITED STATES repeated the mistake all over again in Vietnam. "Step aside and we'll do it," we said, when the big U.S. buildup began in 1965. "Don't get in our way."

And now we're stepping aside and they're doing it. We have seen the army of South Vietnam grow constantly stronger in morale, leadership and in battle-tested ingenuity.

THIS IS WHY we believe that the only major element of uncertainty is political. Will the present government of South Vietnam have the will and the wisdom and the stability to press forward with needed social reform? And, above all, will it have the courage to guarantee absolutely free elections this coming year as required by its constitution — permitting all legal candidates to compete with no favors to itself?

Surely this is what the war is all about —the right of the people to choose their own leaders. We believe this will happen and, if it does, South Vietnam will have won both the war and the peace.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Violence Backfires Again In Russian Jewish Protest

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — So we are to be deprived this coming year of the pleasure of seeing the passionate Maya Plisetskaya dance again as the dying swan and of hearing some awesome Russian basso bring Boris Godunov to musical life. They are sizable pleasures, but 1971 will not be a total failure because we miss them.

For most of us, the Soviet government's decision to cancel the American tour of the Bolshoi Ballet and Opera means no more than that. But for the Jews in the Soviet Union, whose trials relate to the cancellation, and for the Soviet-American cultural exchange program, the controversy reaches more broadly.

The stated reason for the cancellation was that our government had permitted "criminal acts" by Jewish militants against Russian performers and facilities in this country, carried out to protest the treatment of their fellow Jews in the Soviet Union, whose trials relate to the cancellation, and for the Soviet-American cultural exchange program, the controversy reaches more broadly.

The stated reason for the cancellation was that our government had permitted "criminal acts" by Jewish militants against Russian performers and facilities in this country, carried out to protest the treatment of their fellow Jews in the Soviet Union.

IT WAS NOT cut from whole cloth: The Soviet side specified demonstrations, including bombings, against the touring Moiseyev Dance Co. in Chicago, Russian diplomatic missions in Washington and New York, the Moscow Philharmonic, the Tass News Agency office here, and Russian airline and tourist offices.

To say the United States government "permitted" these acts is incorrect. But in fact, both federal and local governments implicitly admitted they could have provided better protection.

Such demonstrations have been common in recent years. They reached their crescendo in protest against a crackdown on a group of Russian citizens, mostly Jews, accused of conspiring to hijack an airplane flying out of Leningrad last summer.

Disruption of cultural exchanges and negotiations for them is nothing new in the history of the Soviet-American program. It works both ways.

In most cases, the pattern has been American response to what our side considered sufficient provocation by the Soviet Union. Now the pattern is reversed, and there is no evidence that the demonstrations here have had any effect toward righting wrongs against Jews in the Soviet Union.

THAT IS SOMETHING on which both American and Russian officials agree. Speaking for the administration, the state Department called the New York bombing "senseless, criminal," and it condemned such acts. On the Russian side, a Soviet spokesman here said sit-ins at the embassy "can only hurt relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. (They) won't help the Jews in the Soviet Union."

Lest their sympathizers think these statements merely characterize heartless officialdom which does not care about the plight of the Jews in Russia, I quote another official whose concern is beyond question — Mrs. Golda Meir of Israel:

"There is nothing in common between the just struggle for the rights of Jews in the Soviety Union and irresponsible acts, such as have taken place recently in New York. If there is any connection, it is only that anyone who commits an act of sabotage against a Soviet installation sabotages the responsible and organized efforst of Jews the world over for the sake of Soviet Jewry.

"This has never been our way, and I denouce it. It can only do harm to our just struggle."

Forty-five teachers earn $5,000 — $10,000. What "some" teachers earn and what "many" districts do and waht "usually" is the situation does not seem to be true of Reed district. A. T. Berkett has overgeneralized or Reed is rare.

Comparisons of teachers to people in industry is certainly "not realistic"; for comparisons, if it is applicable at all, can only be used with persons who require a like amount of preparation and have a similar amount of responsibility in their jobs.

I repeat what my colleague, Dr. Hyman Krongard stated in an earlier letter to the editor (I.J., Dec. 3): a beginning teacher grosses less than $4.32 an hour and a master teacher at the top of his career, $8.64 an hour.

Were the beautiful picture A.T. Berkett paints, $14,979, 100 per cent medical insurance, dental insurance for teachers and their families, etc. to apply to all teachers and all districts including Reed, some of that "moaning" by teachers would stop.

MAN BITES DOG

"No one wants it polluting the air, land or sea. So they just drive it around 24 hours a day."

Irony In Case Of Angela Davis

Angela Davis is on trial — almost. If she is innocent, she will go free. Yet, her behavior thus far makes that outcome dubious. When she was wanted, she ran; when she was caught, she fought extradition; when she was returned, she raised a fist. Black power? Power for what? In protest? Protest against what, crimes of violence?

In view of the tragic events outside a San Rafael courtroom, explaining the ownership of the murder weapon seems a reasonable request; empathy for the victims, maimed and murdered, and their families seems a humane expectation. Instead, Miss Davis returned in arrogant militancy and smug defiance, appealing, of course, to her followers whose idea of justice is impeding the machinery of law.

The irony of it all is that Miss Davis will be afforded every protection under law, and she will employ every tactic within that very law to establish her innocence and return her to her university vantage point from which she may, once again, debase and villify the system of government which guaranteed her her rights.

True, courts are not flawless; lawyers are not without their shortcomings; and all whites are not innocent. But when the weaknesses or errors of man become the green light for vindictive retribution, the ideal of law and justice will be trampled in the traffic of ignorance and villainy.

Would They Be Spies On Porpoise?

Sonar waves in the Pacific have brought this rapid response to the current news release from Saigon that three porpoises trained by the United States Navy as underwater spies may soon get their first combat test in Indochina:

We laugh and cavort
To jazz up your circus
But now, chasing frogmen,
You're scheming to work us.

Let's get it quite clear
We're not yet so human
That we'll sully our playpen
To suit your Pentagon porpoises' purpose.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One of the general barometers of business conditions in California which is devoid of politics, partisanship, and general propaganda is the report of the state controller, as it is based on actual income and outgo of state funds.

The latest report is not very heartening, as the barometer is away down, far below the estimates of the state Department of Finance as far as cash receipts are concerned.

Controller Houston Flournoy reports that receipts through Nov. 30 were nearly $43 million below Department of Finance estimates issued as late as Nov. 16.

"THIS EMPHASIZES," Flournoy said, "the continuing gloomy outlook for state finances.

"We must not be misled by the cash revenues being $128 million higher than those for the first five months of the 1969-70 fiscal year. The increase is attributable principally to revenue being cridited to the general fund earlier this year and should not be considered as income growth . . .

"The sales and use cash revenues actually increased, but not as greatly as they should have when we consider the usual growth and inflation.

"The bank and corporation franchise tax, another barometer of business conditions, shows declining revenue receipts to far this year in comparison to last, and in addition is the making of substantial refund of prepaid taxes to those corporations whose earnings did not meet their expectations last year."

THE STATE NOT only is spending more money than it is receiving, but is also going above the estimates of expenditures made by the Department of Finance.

Flournoy said cash receipts for the first five months of the year amounted to $1,604,951,453; estimates made by finance were $1,647,900,000; and actual expenditures for the same period were $1,875,684,165.

With this kind of a report, it is small wonder that the administration is worried about the situation for the next fiscal year and is preaching curtailment of expenditures for the balance of the year.

THE LEGISLATURE has six months to legislate the state out of the fiscal hole it has gotten itself into as a result of overspending by the legislature and partially by the administration.

Whether it will be able to accomplish this without increasing taxes remains to be seen.

But the prediction is that as usual, it will increase taxes rather than cut down on the non-essential.

Violence Backfires Again In Russian Jewish Protest

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — So we are to be deprived this coming year of the pleasure of seeing the passionate Maya Plisetskaya dance again as the dying swan and of hearing some awesome Russian basso bring Boris Godunov to musical life. They are sizable pleasures, but 1971 will not be a total failure because we miss them.

For most of us, the Soviet government's decision to cancel the American tour of the Bolshoi Ballet and Opera means no more than that. But for the Jews in the Soviet Union, whose trials relate to the cancellation, and for the Soviet-American cultural exchange program, the controversy reaches more broadly.

The stated reason for the cancellation was that our government had permitted "criminal acts" by Jewish militants against Russian performers and facilities in this country, carried out to protest the treatment of their fellow Jews in the Soviet Union, whose trials relate to the cancellation, and for the Soviet-American cultural exchange program, the controversy reaches more broadly.

The stated reason for the cancellation was that our government had permitted "criminal acts" by Jewish militants against Russian performers and facilities in this country, carried out to protest the treatment of their fellow Jews in the Soviet Union.

IT WAS NOT cut from whole cloth: The Soviet side specified demonstrations, including bombings, against the touring Moiseyev Dance Co. in Chicago, Russian diplomatic missions in Washington and New York, the Moscow Philharmonic, the Tass News Agency office here, and Russian airline and tourist offices.

To say the United States government "permitted" these acts is incorrect. But in fact, both federal and local governments implicitly admitted they could have provided better protection.

Such demonstrations have been common in recent years. They reached their crescendo in protest against a crackdown on a group of Russian citizens, mostly Jews, accused of conspiring to hijack an airplane flying out of Leningrad last summer.

Disruption of cultural exchanges and negotiations for them is nothing new in the history of the Soviet-American program. It works both ways.

In most cases, the pattern has been American response to what our side considered sufficient provocation by the Soviet Union. Now the pattern is reversed, and there is no evidence that the demonstrations here have had any effect toward righting wrongs against Jews in the Soviet Union.

THAT IS SOMETHING on which both American and Russian officials agree. Speaking for the administration, the state Department called the New York bombing "senseless, criminal," and it condemned such acts. On the Russian side, a Soviet spokesman here said sit-ins at the embassy "can only hurt relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. (They) won't help the Jews in the Soviet Union."

Lest their sympathizers think these statements merely characterize heartless officialdom which does not care about the plight of the Jews in Russia, I quote another official whose concern is beyond question — Mrs. Golda Meir of Israel:

"There is nothing in common between the just struggle for the rights of Jews in the Soviety Union and irresponsible acts, such as have taken place recently in New York. If there is any connection, it is only that anyone who commits an act of sabotage against a Soviet installation sabotages the responsible and organized efforst of Jews the world over for the sake of Soviet Jewry.

"This has never been our way, and I denouce it. It can only do harm to our just struggle."

Weather Forecasters On A Limb, But It Didn't Get Sawed Off

Uncle Sam's weather forecasters get more mud slung at them than the last jockey in a 10-horse race during a downpour.

Early in December, though, the seers were really asking for it. They came out with a fancy press release through the U.S. Department of Commerce, listing 13 California cities where there would be "zero chance" of snow for Christmas.

Besides such torrid places as Bakersfield and San Diego, the forecasters said it simply couldn't snow on Dec. 25 in San Francisco, Oakland, Eureka or Sacramento. I thought this was a sure jinx.

Remembering snow on Mount Diablo across the bay the week before Christmas, I got out auto chains, and checked the antifreeze. But the weather men were right. Darn it. A soggy snowball to them.

DON'T BLAME ME for this bon mot. I'm passing it along simply because the burden of carrying it on my shoulders alone is too much. The editor of these pages, Bryce W. Anderson, says this week between Christmas and New Year's is the "season of many happy returns." Listen to all those merchants chuckling weakly.

Favorite outdoor sport this time of the year must be driving around looking at everyone's Christmas decorations. I've run into thick traffic in sleepy little byways where the biggest jam normally is when two milk delivery trucks pass each other.

A few folks have noticed that San Rafael lacks big, street-spanning decorations. That's because many of the downtown merchants volunteered to line their own storefronts with cheery lights this year, according to the chamber of commerce. The effect, where it's been done, is pleasing, I'd say.

THE FAREWELLS were all but tearful the day after Christmas as the Erwin Holton of Ross parted with two pet donkeys. The burros were going to live in larger quarters in Black Point. Mother donkey Pamela and 6-month-old daughter donkey Roberta didn't seem at all dismayed at looking forward to have six acres of pastures to roam as four-legged lawnmowers.

But, golly, nobody had ever told Pam and Roberta about cows! The donkeys got all wide-eyed, trembled, and ran for the other end of the pasture the first time the neighbor's friendly cows nosed up to the fence to get acquainted.

The burros' new owners have mapped out a careful, psychologically sound system of introducing the two newcomers to the bovines. But I wonder what Pam and daughter will do the first time a deer jumps in to share the grazing?

USSR Has Few Expatriates

MOSCOW (UPI)—Defection, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder.

The Russians do not even have a word for it although the concept is very much in the Soviet consciousness.

So much so that what in the West is often described as innocent expatriation or emigration may be a felony tantamount to treason and, in aggravating circumstances, a capital offense.

There were relatively few Soviet expatriates or "defectors" in the more permissive 1920s when foreign travel for artists was much simpler.

The most famous defector or "nevozvrazhnetz" (non-returnee) of the period was Fedor Chaliapin, probably the greatest singer in Russian history, who, during an authorized trip abroad, decided to remain in Western Europe and America.

Russia's historic Bolshoi Opera and Ballet Theatre never suffered a greater loss than Chaliapin.

Nor has the Bolshoi, which has just canceled what was to have been an unprecedented tour of the United States, known to have produced any "defectors" in recent years.

Unable and unwilling to resist the "fleshpots" of capitalism in the past two decades have been two dancers from the Leningrad Kirov Ballet, two from Igor Moiseyev's folk-dance ensemble and several others from dancing troups, orchestras and the circus.

Not all of them were politically motivated in not returning.

The most recent defector this summer was Natalia Makarova, the prima of the Kirov ballet, who, during a tour of Britain with her company, the Kirov ballet, decided to remain abroad when her director refused her permission to stay in England a few weeks longer for purely artistic reasons.

What would have been regarded a strictly personal decision elsewhere became a case of defection in this country.

Advertising Vs. Cozy Screening For School Job

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Opening for senior high school principal . . . Salary range: $20,000-$25,000 (12 months). Deadline for application — Jan. 15, 1971. Contact Mrs. Edna Bowden, Director of Personnel, Inglewood Unified School District, Inglewood, California 90301."

This advertisement appeared, not in a professional education journal, but in a recent Sunday issue of the New York Times.

The only thing unusual about it was the source. The Sunday New York Times regularly carries from two to five columns of advertisements for teachers, principals, superintendents, etc. — the ads coming roughly half-and-half from public and private schools. But California schools rarely advertise in the public press except for "classified" employees — clerks, janitors, bus drivers, etc.

THE USUAL METHOD in California for recruiting an administrator (superintendent, assistant superintendent, principal, etc.) is to notify the district's staff of the opening, in case some of its members seek promotion to the job, and ask the county superintendent of schools to conduct a recruiting program.

This recruiting program may be quite far-flung or quite restricted, depending on what the district wants. A resume of the position offered is circulated to a list prepared by the county superintendent. If there is any public announcement, it comes in the news columns of the local paper. However, it is not unusual to do the recruiting for a principal or assistant superintendent before making public the fact that there is to be a change.

THIS SYSTEM has its advantages. Carried out quietly, it can result in filling the job at the same school board meeting at which the incumbent's pending departure is announced. This avoids public outcry on behalf of someone already in the district who is well liked and may want the promotion.

Also, it restricts the number of applicants, thus simplifying the job of the screening committee that makes the actual selection. The makeup of the screening committee varies. For selecting a principal, it generally consists of the district superintendent, someone from his staff, and perhaps a teacher representative. For a higher position it usually includes also somebody from the county superintendent's office and from either a nearby teacher training institution or the state education department. It may include a board member.

The screening committee recommends a few names to the board. It is quite simple for the committee to control the selection, if it so desires, by recommending one candidate who appears acceptable along with a couple of others whose qualifications look definitely inferior.

If the screening committee has out-of-district members, they usually are chosen by the county superintendent. If he is a Stanford man, for instance, he likely will get someone from Stanford's school of education to serve on the committee. He also will make sure that his alma mater publicizes the opening among its education graduates — and the chances are very good that the screening committee will find an acceptable candidate who got his degree on "the Farm."

WHILE ALL THESE things may be advantageous from one point of view, they may not be so desirable from others. They may preclude getting the best man for the job by restricting the publicity and keeping the selection largely in the hands of those who want to retain the status quo. And they remove from any real share in the selection both the public and the school board that is elected to represent the public.

The Inglewood Unified School District may have the right idea — although it went pretty far afield by placing its advertising in New York. Many eastern and midwestern school systems — not to mention those in other countries — fill their posts through public advertising.

But of course, such a method is not nearly so cozy.

Call For Legal Card Parlors

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Supervisor Terry A. Francois has proposed that the city of San Francisco legalize card rooms for draw poker.

He said that legalized card rooms would also "relieve the police of the work of ferreting out illegal games."

The board turned the idea over to a study committee.

Moon's Age: Rock Sample Gives Guess

CHICAGO (UPI)—Rocks collected on Apollo missions have led scientists to believe the moon is at least 4.6 billion years old and formed at essentially the same time as the Earth and the rest of the solar system.

One of the geophysicists who studied the rocks and the data compiled about them by other scientists said today the moon rocks show the principal volcanic activity probably occurred early in the moon's history.

But the evidence has not been destroyed by subsequent geological processes as it has been on earth, Professor George W. Wetherill of the University of California Department of Planetary and Space Science told the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Isotopic data on both lead and uranium (in the Apollo 11 samples) show that the Earth and moon were separate bodies, at least for the last 4.6 billion years," Wetherill said.

The geophysics professor said that even older rocks probably would be found on the lunar highlands because of this area of the moon's surface is much more heavily cratered by meteorites.

Wetherill said he regretted the "premature cancellation" of Apollo missions would prevent exploration of these areas and other key regions of the moon, such as the new craters Copernicus and Tycho.

He said the samples brought back by Apollo 12 were much different than the ones gathered during the first moonwalk. One rock brought back from the second voyage to the moon was granite-like and may have been hurled out of the Copernicus crater, he said.

Fragments of it appear to be as old as those found on the Apollo 11 site, even though other samples gathered with it were relatively much younger—only 3.3 to 3.6 billion years old.

USSR Has Few Expatriates

MOSCOW (UPI)—Defection, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder.

The Russians do not even have a word for it although the concept is very much in the Soviet consciousness.

So much so that what in the West is often described as innocent expatriation or emigration may be a felony tantamount to treason and, in aggravating circumstances, a capital offense.

There were relatively few Soviet expatriates or "defectors" in the more permissive 1920s when foreign travel for artists was much simpler.

The most famous defector or "nevozvrazhnetz" (non-returnee) of the period was Fedor Chaliapin, probably the greatest singer in Russian history, who, during an authorized trip abroad, decided to remain in Western Europe and America.

Russia's historic Bolshoi Opera and Ballet Theatre never suffered a greater loss than Chaliapin.

Nor has the Bolshoi, which has just canceled what was to have been an unprecedented tour of the United States, known to have produced any "defectors" in recent years.

Unable and unwilling to resist the "fleshpots" of capitalism in the past two decades have been two dancers from the Leningrad Kirov Ballet, two from Igor Moiseyev's folk-dance ensemble and several others from dancing troups, orchestras and the circus.

Not all of them were politically motivated in not returning.

The most recent defector this summer was Natalia Makarova, the prima of the Kirov ballet, who, during a tour of Britain with her company, the Kirov ballet, decided to remain abroad when her director refused her permission to stay in England a few weeks longer for purely artistic reasons.

What would have been regarded a strictly personal decision elsewhere became a case of defection in this country.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Postnasal Drip Among City Dwellers A Pollution Problem

Postnasal drip is a common ailment. The majority of victims are healthy and have X-rays of their sinuses and doctor bills to prove it. Mucus from the nose collects in the back of the throat and produces considerable gagging, hacking and coughing when it reaches more sensitive areas.

The membranes of the nose and throat are covered normally by a thin layer of mucus that protects this lining and keeps it clean. City dwellers, who inhale dust and dirt with every breath have more than their share of mucus. It is a common aftermath of pollution.

THE SAME applies to the heavy smoker, who is concentrating his air pollution. Furthermore, the secretions increase when a cold or a nasal disorder develops. Many Northerners are bothered chiefly in the winter months as they go in and out of overheated and underhumidified offices and homes. Allergy also is a possibility, especially during the hay fever season.

Sinus disease is considered the culprit, at one time or another, by everyone with postnasal drip. But victims of sinus are more likely to be bothered with headache, nasal stuffiness and disturbances of smell, rather than a slight dripping down the back of the throat, except when the sinuses are draining. But these structures deserve to be examined when postnasal drip is present even tho there is only a slight chance that they are involved. Sinus disease is deceptive and specialized tests are needed to make the diagnosis.

BEFORE ANTIBIOTICS, many persons used nose drops over a long period of time to eliminate what they thought was nasal or sinus trouble. This type of medication is designed to be used for a few days, not for weeks, months or years.

When nose drops are used constantly, they keep the membranes in a perpetual state of turmoil and the nasal discharge continues so long as the drops are used. These individuals get well as soon as treatment is stopped. A dilute salt solution (¼ teaspoonful to a glass of warm water) is an excellent substitute because it cleanses without provoking irritation.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addresses envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

OIL AND ARTERIES

C. W. writes: Does corn oil clean out hardened arteries?

REPLY

No. Corn oil, a vegetable by-product is used to combat a high blood cholesterol level which currently is implicated in arteriosclerosis. There is no proof that the oil cleans out arteries, that high cholesterol blood levels cause hardening of the arteries, or that lowering the level prevents or cures the arteriosclerotic process.

ALCOHOL AND THE LIVER

REPLY

The exact cause is not known. It may stem from the toxic effect of alcohol on the liver cells. Alcoholics are poor eaters and liver changes could also develop from nutritional deficiencies. Individual susceptibility also enters the picture because many persons who drink heavily never develop cirrhosis.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Postnasal Drip Among City Dwellers A Pollution Problem

Postnasal drip is a common ailment. The majority of victims are healthy and have X-rays of their sinuses and doctor bills to prove it. Mucus from the nose collects in the back of the throat and produces considerable gagging, hacking and coughing when it reaches more sensitive areas.

The membranes of the nose and throat are covered normally by a thin layer of mucus that protects this lining and keeps it clean. City dwellers, who inhale dust and dirt with every breath have more than their share of mucus. It is a common aftermath of pollution.

THE SAME applies to the heavy smoker, who is concentrating his air pollution. Furthermore, the secretions increase when a cold or a nasal disorder develops. Many Northerners are bothered chiefly in the winter months as they go in and out of overheated and underhumidified offices and homes. Allergy also is a possibility, especially during the hay fever season.

Sinus disease is considered the culprit, at one time or another, by everyone with postnasal drip. But victims of sinus are more likely to be bothered with headache, nasal stuffiness and disturbances of smell, rather than a slight dripping down the back of the throat, except when the sinuses are draining. But these structures deserve to be examined when postnasal drip is present even tho there is only a slight chance that they are involved. Sinus disease is deceptive and specialized tests are needed to make the diagnosis.

BEFORE ANTIBIOTICS, many persons used nose drops over a long period of time to eliminate what they thought was nasal or sinus trouble. This type of medication is designed to be used for a few days, not for weeks, months or years.

When nose drops are used constantly, they keep the membranes in a perpetual state of turmoil and the nasal discharge continues so long as the drops are used. These individuals get well as soon as treatment is stopped. A dilute salt solution (¼ teaspoonful to a glass of warm water) is an excellent substitute because it cleanses without provoking irritation.

OIL AND ARTERIES

C. W. writes: Does corn oil clean out hardened arteries?

REPLY

No. Corn oil, a vegetable by-product is used to combat a high blood cholesterol level which currently is implicated in arteriosclerosis. There is no proof that the oil cleans out arteries, that high cholesterol blood levels cause hardening of the arteries, or that lowering the level prevents or cures the arteriosclerotic process.

ALCOHOL AND THE LIVER

REPLY

The exact cause is not known. It may stem from the toxic effect of alcohol on the liver cells. Alcoholics are poor eaters and liver changes could also develop from nutritional deficiencies. Individual susceptibility also enters the picture because many persons who drink heavily never develop cirrhosis.

WRONG WAY

You've seen this sign many times. But so many have violated its warning that perhaps this should be on their tombstones! The "WRONG WAY" isn't just a matter of direction but the way in which too many people drive. Speeding, out of control through alcohol, inattention, carelessness. ☆ The WRONG WAYwaits for every driver. But fortunately you have a choice: you can be mature, responsible to yourself and to others. This is the RIGHT WAY. And you don't need a sign for that!

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

IF YOU THINK THE "WRONG WAY" is just a sign you might consider these statistics: To date in 1970 more than 1450 drivers have been booked for drunk driving in Marin County. Also, nearly half the fatal holiday accidents in California in 1969 involved alcohol. You get the message.

WRONG-WAY TRAGEDY. California Highway Patrol Officer Nathan Seidenberg lost his life along with the wrong way driver in a head-on collision on Highway 101 in San Rafael, October 23, 1970. It is ironic that the CHP, in attempting to protect everyone on the highway, is subjected to enormous risks. The only answer is in mutual cooperation within the protective arm of the law.

Marin Bird Watchers See Chance To Take U.S. Title

Marin County bird-watchers are going all-out to win the World Series of bird-watching Saturday night and Sunday.

The Marin and Golden Gate chapters of the National Audubon Society have merged forces withe the Point Reyes Bird Observatory to wrest the crown away from San Diego. The southern county is current national champion in the annual Christmas season bird census.

If sheer manpower means anything, birds within a 15-mile-diameter circle centering on the Point Reyes National Seashore will be the best-counted feathered creatures in the U.S.

Preparations have included signing up 150 volunteers — a national record — three dogs, a 40-foot Coast Guard cutter, five smaller private craft and a kayak. And countless pairs of binoculars and telescopes.

John Winter, a scientist at the Point Reyes observatory, said yesterday that a radio station also is getting into the act. Station KSFO will begin broadcasting recorded owl calls at midnight Saturday. Owl-seekers will have the calls blaring from portable radios to persuade the night-fliers to hoot back so they can be counted.

The count technically will extend 24 hours until midnight Sunday, but Winter predicted it probably will end about 8 p.m. Sunday if enough species and enough individual birds have been counted to surpass San Diego's current record of 221 species in the 1961 Christmas census, that is.

"It'll be a mamoth production," Winter said. He and fellow observatory worker John Smail are coordinating the census.

The idea of a holiday season bird count began more than 70 years ago with a proposal by Frank M. Chapman, curator of the Natural History Museum in New York City. He was dismayed by the 19th Century hangover of the Christmas-season "side hunts," Winter said. In those hunts, local sportsmen chose up sides and took to the woods, killing every creature they could find. The side with the most carcasses won.

Chapman proposed the bloodless bird census competition as a countermeasure, more as an entertaining outing than a really scientific venture, Winter said. The Point Reyes bird expert said the census has value in tracing changes in bird population through the years.

Winter explained that the flotilla recruited for this year's cunsus will watch for sea and shore birds, while scores of other watchers will comb land areas within the 15-mile circle. The dogs will be used to flush birds hiding in the underbrush, but not to catch them, Winter said.

The Marin bird count will be competing with 800 similar censuses nationwide for the honor of being the largest.

Airliner Drops Chunk On Roof

There was no one in the building and no persons on the ground were injured.

The jumbo jet, carrying a crew of four and a Federal Aviation Administration supervisor, landed safely at Los Angeles International Airport.

The National Transportation Safety Board and the FAA were investigating the accident.

Supervisors Raise Pay To Deputies

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved a 6.5 per cent pay raise for sheriff's deputies, retroactive to Dec. 15, and commended the officers for dedication to duty during a long contract stalemate.

The new raise, plus a 5-percent raise granted on Sept. 1, brings the total raise for sheriff's deputies this year to 11.5 per cent over last year's pay. They were holding out for a 12.5 per cent raise when negotiations broke down last August.

The pay raise means that top pay for deputy sheriff II will go from $937 to $998 per month, and maximum salary for deputy sheriff I from $849 to$905.

Deputies also won time-and-a-quarter pay for overtime work such as for court appearances, search and rescue, riot control and prevention, guarding hospitalized prisoners, holiday work, and emergency security work at the Civic Center.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

ACCELERATOR — Endorsed the countywide campaign, headed by Mrs. Walter G. Strauss, to raise $50,000 to help purchase a $175,000 linear accelerator to replace a cobalt unit at Marin General Hospital.

LIBRARY — Asked the Marin County Law Library board to release information on the law library savings account and inventory of books and periodicals so that County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell can make a complete audit. Mitchell said he has been unable to get the information.

RAISE — Gave Undersheriff Sidney Stinson a special raise from $1,480 per month to $1,630 per month because of increased responsibility in carrying out security measures. Supervisors declined raises for the director of the county service office and the superintendent of Marin Juvenile Hall on grounds that no emergency exists in those departments, and such salaries should be considered at budget time.

CALA FOOD — Upheld the Marin County Planning Commission and approved a 25-foot high sign for Cala Foods, which took over the old Lee Brothers Market in Marinwood.

OCEANA MARIN — Asked the county administrator to explore the possibility of using a 1915 bond act to finance bonds for the Oceana Marin-Dillon Beach sewage treatment plant. Under the act, the county would underwrite the bonds, and the bonds can be sold at lower interest rates.

WIRE COVER — Approved a $6,800 contract with Cagwin and Dorward of San Rafael to install wire covers over drain rock around the perimeter of the Civic Center and the Hall of Justice. Purpose is to prevent use of the rocks by vandals.

GNOSS FIELD — Increased the airplane tie-down fee at Gnoss Field north of Novato from $15 per month to $20 per month, and decided that the county airport cannot accommodate a third fixed base operator.

NO HUNTING — On a motion by Michael Wornum, asked the Army to halt hunting activity at Fort Cronkhite, especially at Rodeo Lagoon, because the lagoon is a sanctuary for the vanishing brown pelican. However, the Army announced earlier yesterday it had taken such a step.

KILLER DOGS — Approved a $515 payment to Tennessee Valley rancher George Giannecchini for three sheep and two cows killed by rampaging dogs last October. Supervisors asked the Marin County Humane Society, the county agricultural commissioner and school officials to see what can be done to control dogs that run loose in Tennessee Valley.

DRAINAGE — Approved a $3,776 contract with Bidegain Landscaping Co. of San Rafael to provide subdrainage for planter areas around the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Five bids ranged to a high of $7,685.

TRAFFIC —Approved a contract with Traffic Signal Repair Co. of Sunnyvale to maintain county traffic signals for $2,825 per year, beginning Jan. 1. This will be slightly less than the $3,210 paid to the state Division of Highways for maintenance and repair of signals for fiscal 1969-70.

TEACHER CONTRACTS

New Approaches Likely To Collide

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Two new approaches to teacher contracts are likely to collide head-on as school boards and faculty councils begin negotiating on salaries and working conditions for next school year.

The negotiations will get under way in earnest in most districts during January and February.

One of the new approaches is that being urged on school boards by Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who is legal advisor to Marin's school districts. Godino wants the districts to have teachers sign individual written contracts spelling out their obligations.

A trial run of such a contract, prepared by Godino, is already being made in Reed School District. When it was offered initially early this month, it was rejected 100-to-0, according to the California Teachers Association's new Council of Marin.

The teachers objected principally to two clauses in the contract, according to the CTA and representative Reed district teachers. One of these provides: "It is expressly understood and agreed that said laws, rules and regulations (of the state and district) may be changed during the term of this agreement and that the parties thereto shall be bound by such changes."

The other highly objectionable clause, according to the teachers, is one calling for a fine of $75 per day for any teacher who fails to put in a full day's work.

Godino said the $75 figure was a "negotiating figure," but he felt the contract should spell out a penalty for a teacher's failing to perform his duties.

Quite different is the "master agreement" being urged on its Marin locals by CTA through its Council of Marin. This is a labor union type of contract. It would spell out the obligations of the employer (the school district) along with those of the employees (the teachers). It would be signed by board and faculty council members. Presumably, copies of it would then be prepared, either by CTA or school district, for all the teachers, but they would not necessarily sign it as individuals.

Unlike the contract proposed by Godino, with its specification that both parties are bound by law and rule changes which occur during the year, the CTA's "master agreement" would freeze the conditions of employment as of the date of signing.

In an article urging "master agreements" in the December issue of Focal Point, the CTA Council of Marin's news letter, executive director Bert Skaggs wrote:

"At the present time the teacher is bound by his contract. The district on the other hand can change policies and procedures that affect the teachers any time during the year — unless there is a Master Agreement. A contract should be bi-lateral. Changes should only be made during the period of the contract by mutual consent of both parties."

Godino contends that school district cannot legally sign such a contract, because changes made by the legislature and the state board and department of education are beyond the district board's control, yet must be followed on the effective dates decreed. The district, according to Godino, would be in violation of the law if it held back such changes until a new contract was negotiated.

Skaggs, in his Focal Point article, declared: "The way some school boards and administrators make unilateral decisions has often been described as 'the divine right of kings.'"

Godino contends that the practice of automatically rehiring teachers with no written contracts or with mere signing of an agreement to teach at such-and-such a salary has made the district-teacher contract unilateral — but in favor of the teacher. He contends that teachers think nothing of resigning in mid-year, taking for granted that they will be released, yet hold the districts obligated not only to keep them through the year but to rehire them indefinitely under the tenure laws.

Although Godino has urged all Marin districts to adopt individual written contracts, most appear to be holding back "to see how it turns out in Reed," he said.

The teachers, however, will present an united front, according to Skaggs. Asked if coordination of bargaining would be a principal activity of the CTA Council of Marin, he replied, "Absolutely."

He said he doubted very much, however, whether the CTA will attempt to get a uniform county-wide contract applying in all districts.

Reports have surfaced that a part of coordinated bargaining may be an agreement that teachers in all Marin districts will remain off the job if board and faculty council come to an impasse over a contract in any district in the county.

One who is convinced this plan is in the works is Supt. Milton S. Cohen of Larkspur School District, who said he has heard it from inside CTA circles. "I've been trying to excite boards of trustees to this threat for some time," said Cohen.

Asked about this possibility, CTA's Skaggs replied: "Quote the person you heard it from and don't say it came from me."

Tiff Brews Over Fees For Parking

The slate college chancellor's office has called for an increase for parking permits from $13 to $21 per semester and the elimination of the reserved space program. The daily parking rate would be increased from 25 to 35 cents.

Raymond R. Soper of Petaluma, chairman of the college staff council, said 300 members of the organization had opposed the plan, as did the president's cabinet and many faculty members.

Soper said no public transportation is available to the college and the parking fees therefore constitute a mandatory expense. "We feel it is unfair to require employees to pay in order to park their automobiles at their place of employment," he said.

Hearing Date Set In Hub Burglary

Preliminary hearing has been set for Jan. 5 in Marin Municipal Court for Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael, who is charged with burglarizing a San Anselmo home.

Marin Bird Watchers See Chance To Take U.S. Title

Marin County bird-watchers are going all-out to win the World Series of bird-watching Saturday night and Sunday.

The Marin and Golden Gate chapters of the National Audubon Society have merged forces withe the Point Reyes Bird Observatory to wrest the crown away from San Diego. The southern county is current national champion in the annual Christmas season bird census.

If sheer manpower means anything, birds within a 15-mile-diameter circle centering on the Point Reyes National Seashore will be the best-counted feathered creatures in the U.S.

Preparations have included signing up 150 volunteers — a national record — three dogs, a 40-foot Coast Guard cutter, five smaller private craft and a kayak. And countless pairs of binoculars and telescopes.

John Winter, a scientist at the Point Reyes observatory, said yesterday that a radio station also is getting into the act. Station KSFO will begin broadcasting recorded owl calls at midnight Saturday. Owl-seekers will have the calls blaring from portable radios to persuade the night-fliers to hoot back so they can be counted.

The count technically will extend 24 hours until midnight Sunday, but Winter predicted it probably will end about 8 p.m. Sunday if enough species and enough individual birds have been counted to surpass San Diego's current record of 221 species in the 1961 Christmas census, that is.

"It'll be a mamoth production," Winter said. He and fellow observatory worker John Smail are coordinating the census.

The idea of a holiday season bird count began more than 70 years ago with a proposal by Frank M. Chapman, curator of the Natural History Museum in New York City. He was dismayed by the 19th Century hangover of the Christmas-season "side hunts," Winter said. In those hunts, local sportsmen chose up sides and took to the woods, killing every creature they could find. The side with the most carcasses won.

Chapman proposed the bloodless bird census competition as a countermeasure, more as an entertaining outing than a really scientific venture, Winter said. The Point Reyes bird expert said the census has value in tracing changes in bird population through the years.

Winter explained that the flotilla recruited for this year's cunsus will watch for sea and shore birds, while scores of other watchers will comb land areas within the 15-mile circle. The dogs will be used to flush birds hiding in the underbrush, but not to catch them, Winter said.

The Marin bird count will be competing with 800 similar censuses nationwide for the honor of being the largest.

Airliner Drops Chunk On Roof

There was no one in the building and no persons on the ground were injured.

The jumbo jet, carrying a crew of four and a Federal Aviation Administration supervisor, landed safely at Los Angeles International Airport.

The National Transportation Safety Board and the FAA were investigating the accident.

Supervisors Raise Pay To Deputies

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved a 6.5 per cent pay raise for sheriff's deputies, retroactive to Dec. 15, and commended the officers for dedication to duty during a long contract stalemate.

The new raise, plus a 5-percent raise granted on Sept. 1, brings the total raise for sheriff's deputies this year to 11.5 per cent over last year's pay. They were holding out for a 12.5 per cent raise when negotiations broke down last August.

The pay raise means that top pay for deputy sheriff II will go from $937 to $998 per month, and maximum salary for deputy sheriff I from $849 to$905.

Deputies also won time-and-a-quarter pay for overtime work such as for court appearances, search and rescue, riot control and prevention, guarding hospitalized prisoners, holiday work, and emergency security work at the Civic Center.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

ACCELERATOR — Endorsed the countywide campaign, headed by Mrs. Walter G. Strauss, to raise $50,000 to help purchase a $175,000 linear accelerator to replace a cobalt unit at Marin General Hospital.

LIBRARY — Asked the Marin County Law Library board to release information on the law library savings account and inventory of books and periodicals so that County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell can make a complete audit. Mitchell said he has been unable to get the information.

RAISE — Gave Undersheriff Sidney Stinson a special raise from $1,480 per month to $1,630 per month because of increased responsibility in carrying out security measures. Supervisors declined raises for the director of the county service office and the superintendent of Marin Juvenile Hall on grounds that no emergency exists in those departments, and such salaries should be considered at budget time.

CALA FOOD — Upheld the Marin County Planning Commission and approved a 25-foot high sign for Cala Foods, which took over the old Lee Brothers Market in Marinwood.

OCEANA MARIN — Asked the county administrator to explore the possibility of using a 1915 bond act to finance bonds for the Oceana Marin-Dillon Beach sewage treatment plant. Under the act, the county would underwrite the bonds, and the bonds can be sold at lower interest rates.

WIRE COVER — Approved a $6,800 contract with Cagwin and Dorward of San Rafael to install wire covers over drain rock around the perimeter of the Civic Center and the Hall of Justice. Purpose is to prevent use of the rocks by vandals.

GNOSS FIELD — Increased the airplane tie-down fee at Gnoss Field north of Novato from $15 per month to $20 per month, and decided that the county airport cannot accommodate a third fixed base operator.

NO HUNTING — On a motion by Michael Wornum, asked the Army to halt hunting activity at Fort Cronkhite, especially at Rodeo Lagoon, because the lagoon is a sanctuary for the vanishing brown pelican. However, the Army announced earlier yesterday it had taken such a step.

KILLER DOGS — Approved a $515 payment to Tennessee Valley rancher George Giannecchini for three sheep and two cows killed by rampaging dogs last October. Supervisors asked the Marin County Humane Society, the county agricultural commissioner and school officials to see what can be done to control dogs that run loose in Tennessee Valley.

DRAINAGE — Approved a $3,776 contract with Bidegain Landscaping Co. of San Rafael to provide subdrainage for planter areas around the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Five bids ranged to a high of $7,685.

TRAFFIC —Approved a contract with Traffic Signal Repair Co. of Sunnyvale to maintain county traffic signals for $2,825 per year, beginning Jan. 1. This will be slightly less than the $3,210 paid to the state Division of Highways for maintenance and repair of signals for fiscal 1969-70.

TEACHER CONTRACTS

New Approaches Likely To Collide

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Two new approaches to teacher contracts are likely to collide head-on as school boards and faculty councils begin negotiating on salaries and working conditions for next school year.

The negotiations will get under way in earnest in most districts during January and February.

One of the new approaches is that being urged on school boards by Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who is legal advisor to Marin's school districts. Godino wants the districts to have teachers sign individual written contracts spelling out their obligations.

A trial run of such a contract, prepared by Godino, is already being made in Reed School District. When it was offered initially early this month, it was rejected 100-to-0, according to the California Teachers Association's new Council of Marin.

The teachers objected principally to two clauses in the contract, according to the CTA and representative Reed district teachers. One of these provides: "It is expressly understood and agreed that said laws, rules and regulations (of the state and district) may be changed during the term of this agreement and that the parties thereto shall be bound by such changes."

The other highly objectionable clause, according to the teachers, is one calling for a fine of $75 per day for any teacher who fails to put in a full day's work.

Godino said the $75 figure was a "negotiating figure," but he felt the contract should spell out a penalty for a teacher's failing to perform his duties.

Quite different is the "master agreement" being urged on its Marin locals by CTA through its Council of Marin. This is a labor union type of contract. It would spell out the obligations of the employer (the school district) along with those of the employees (the teachers). It would be signed by board and faculty council members. Presumably, copies of it would then be prepared, either by CTA or school district, for all the teachers, but they would not necessarily sign it as individuals.

Unlike the contract proposed by Godino, with its specification that both parties are bound by law and rule changes which occur during the year, the CTA's "master agreement" would freeze the conditions of employment as of the date of signing.

In an article urging "master agreements" in the December issue of Focal Point, the CTA Council of Marin's news letter, executive director Bert Skaggs wrote:

"At the present time the teacher is bound by his contract. The district on the other hand can change policies and procedures that affect the teachers any time during the year — unless there is a Master Agreement. A contract should be bi-lateral. Changes should only be made during the period of the contract by mutual consent of both parties."

Godino contends that school district cannot legally sign such a contract, because changes made by the legislature and the state board and department of education are beyond the district board's control, yet must be followed on the effective dates decreed. The district, according to Godino, would be in violation of the law if it held back such changes until a new contract was negotiated.

Skaggs, in his Focal Point article, declared: "The way some school boards and administrators make unilateral decisions has often been described as 'the divine right of kings.'"

Godino contends that the practice of automatically rehiring teachers with no written contracts or with mere signing of an agreement to teach at such-and-such a salary has made the district-teacher contract unilateral — but in favor of the teacher. He contends that teachers think nothing of resigning in mid-year, taking for granted that they will be released, yet hold the districts obligated not only to keep them through the year but to rehire them indefinitely under the tenure laws.

Although Godino has urged all Marin districts to adopt individual written contracts, most appear to be holding back "to see how it turns out in Reed," he said.

The teachers, however, will present an united front, according to Skaggs. Asked if coordination of bargaining would be a principal activity of the CTA Council of Marin, he replied, "Absolutely."

He said he doubted very much, however, whether the CTA will attempt to get a uniform county-wide contract applying in all districts.

Reports have surfaced that a part of coordinated bargaining may be an agreement that teachers in all Marin districts will remain off the job if board and faculty council come to an impasse over a contract in any district in the county.

One who is convinced this plan is in the works is Supt. Milton S. Cohen of Larkspur School District, who said he has heard it from inside CTA circles. "I've been trying to excite boards of trustees to this threat for some time," said Cohen.

Asked about this possibility, CTA's Skaggs replied: "Quote the person you heard it from and don't say it came from me."

Tiff Brews Over Fees For Parking

The slate college chancellor's office has called for an increase for parking permits from $13 to $21 per semester and the elimination of the reserved space program. The daily parking rate would be increased from 25 to 35 cents.

Raymond R. Soper of Petaluma, chairman of the college staff council, said 300 members of the organization had opposed the plan, as did the president's cabinet and many faculty members.

Soper said no public transportation is available to the college and the parking fees therefore constitute a mandatory expense. "We feel it is unfair to require employees to pay in order to park their automobiles at their place of employment," he said.

Hearing Date Set In Hub Burglary

Preliminary hearing has been set for Jan. 5 in Marin Municipal Court for Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael, who is charged with burglarizing a San Anselmo home.

Our total strength now exceeds $2.9 Billion. And our network of 50 regional offices extends nearly 600 miles from Lake County in Northern California to Orange County in Southern California.

Although we have changed our name and increased our strength there will be no change in the friendly, personal service that has been the policy of Santa Rosa Savings since our founding in 1888. All of our managers, tellers and counselors are still here to continue serving you.

More than ever, we're proud to say, we offer you the very most for your savings. Complete safety--the safety of insured savings backed by great strength. Plus the highest earnings—now the highest ever paid on insured savings.

In fact, no other type of financial institution or investment can offer you so much with the complete safety of insured savings and great strength.

Our new Great Western Savings signs are now going up at all four Santa Rosa Savings offices. We're celebrating. And you're invited. We have special free gifts for you. And plenty of refreshments.

So come to where the strength is. And the highest earnings. Come to the new Great Western Savings...in Santa Rosa, Novato, Sonoma and Lakeport.
